ORDER TO CAPTAIN IS KEPT SECRET

Wireless Man on Santa Rosa Won't Divulge Instructions to Faria.

WOMAN SPRINGS SURPRISE

"Wish to God I Had Used My Own Judgment and Pald No Attention to San Francisco," Statement Credited to Skipper.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 16 -(Special.) Questioned Sunday concerning the wreck of the steamer Santa Ross last Friday, Barnard Frankel, wireless operator on the luckless vessel, refused to say whether or not he had transmitted orders to Captain Faria from officials of the Pacific Coast Steam-ship Company talling him not to land the passengers, but said that when the passengers finally were taken ashore, after the ship had broken in two. Faris acted in defiance of the company's orders.

Mrs. Ella Campbell, of this city, a passenger on the Santa Rosa, declares that when the steamer began breaking up at 5:30 Priday afternoon, Captain Farla make the following statement in her hearing:
"I wish to God I had followed my own judgment and paid no attention to those follows in San Francisco."

Woman Willing Witness.

"I distinctly heard him say those exact words," said Mrs. Campbell today, "and am ready to give this testimony before any board of inquiry."
Officials of the company have denied that they ordered Faria, by wire-inled that they ordered they will be they less, not to land the passengers. Cap-tain Farla himself, now on his way to San Francisco, a broken and dispirited man, will not talk.

Concerning Faria's alleged defiance of company orders, after the Santa Rosa split in two, Wireless Operator Frankel said today:

"At about 5:30 o'clock," said Frankel, "just before the ship swung around and eracked in two, I received the following. order from San Francisco for the cap-tain: 'Get out two more kedge anchors and try to held her until the President arrives.'

Captain Is Quoted.

"Kedge enchors be damned," shouted Kedge anchors be damned," shouted the captain. It is a case of life and death new, and I am going to land these people before it is too late."

He had scarcely finished speaking when the vessel swung around and broke in the middle. It was then that the work of taking off the passengers

All but two passengers are ac-counted for, according to an in-formal announcement made here today by representatives of the Pacific Coast eamship Company, which owned the eat. The missing are: C. H. Stark, Conkland, for Los Angeles, and Mrs. S. Payne, San Prancisco for Redondo. Company officials say they believe these persons will report within a day or so. Miss Eluett, of San Francisco, preported missing, was found tonight at Summerland, Cal.

Armed resistance on the part of the occupants of the store increased the fury of the mob, which ran amuch through the principal streets, breaking windows of private residences and business houses. In a short time the par-tisans of Diaz rallied and formed a counter mob. Few of either faction were armed with revolvers, clubs, stones and knives being weapons most stones and knives being weapons most frequently used.

Merchants and owners of stores attacked posted themselves in many cases on top of their buildings and shot into the attacking mob. Most of the deaths are ascribed to them.

The opposition afforded by the mob of Diaz supporters served to increase the tumult in the streets, but also to reduce the fury of the attacks upon business houses. The local authorities were powerless to restore order and the fighting continued most of the night.

Two companies of soldiers were sent from here to Catian this morning to guard the town. During the fighting the house of Sekhauh, an English firm, raised the British flag, but it proved no protection, the mob attacking the structure as it did the others, but no great damage was done.

Prelate Points Out That Children Are Ten Times as Well Educated as Mothers.

PARIS, July 1 -- (Special.) -- Profesors and undergraduates are described as being "in great emotion" here, and the directing council of Paris Uni-versity will be called on as soon as possible to undertake "an exhaustive examination of the new situation."

The new situation in question is that brought about by the new thirst of French girls for learning. The first authority to point this out was a right reverend prelate in a lecture which he gave to the girls themselves and their astonished mothers a few weeks ago. The mothers heard with amazement that their daughters now in the later teens not only knew about ten times as much as they did in their day, but were also at least twice as learned as Germany has taken the first step toward the electrification of her rallroad system. The Prussian house of deputies has adopted the government he opened a branch store at North Plains. About May I both stores were attached by a Portland firm and on June 8 Mr. Weyrick was adjudged a proposals as contained in the estimates of the ministry of public works, which embodied an appropriation of $12,500,000 as a first installment for the electrification of several sections of the Prussian state lines. 263 HORSES ARE BURNED

There has been electric traction in one short section, however, between Bitterfeld and Dessau, a distance of 17 miles, for some months past, while a mile a minute speed has been main-tained, and the experience gained on tained, and the experience gained on that line has been so encouraging that the ministry of public works has assented to the proposal of its expert advisers to extend the process of electrification at once to the important Magdeburg-Leipsic section, 80 miles long, and to several lines in Silegia. In all an installation for the transmission of current will have to be constructed along 720 miles of single rails. Apart from the main lines there are sidings and additional lines in or near station, which involve an additional 240 miles. The work of preparing this aggregate distance of 260 miles of single rails for electric traction will be intrusted to several great electric firms, and must be completed within two years. Germany will by 1912 thus enjoy the advantages of electric traction over 360 miles of main tric traction over $60 miles of main

The Prussian state railroads are not purely a commercial enterprise, inasmuch as strategic considerations are taken into account in constructing and managing them, so that the assent of the ministry of war was necessary before the process of electrification could be carried out. It is understood that the military experts hesitated at first, owing to the opinion entertained by some that it was easier for the enemy to interrupt traffic on an electrified line than on a steam railway, but the objections were withdrawn.
