

MAJORITY LARGE AGAINST FREE LIST

Bailey's Amendment Defeated, New Wool Proposal Is Quickly Offered.

RECIPROCITY GAINS SPEED

Heyburn of Idaho Denounces Republicans Who Support Measure as "Semi-Democrats" — La Follette Amendment Due.

WASHINGTON, July 12.—Senator Bailey's free list amendment to the Canadian reciprocity bill was defeated in the Senate today by a large majority.

Pursuing the policy of forcing the opponents of reciprocity to proceed without delay, Senator Penrose urged Senator Bailey to introduce his wool tariff amendment at once.

Rapid Work Promised.

The consideration of the reciprocity bill is expected to move with rapidity from now on. The wool amendment probably will be disposed of tomorrow, and Senators La Follette and Bristow are ready with their amendments and their speeches against the bill.

Heyburn Defends Protection.

He declared that he opposed amendments to the bill, as well as the bill itself, "because every amendment is a splinter of the Republican flagstaff of protective policy."

Senator Dixon, of Montana, declared he would vote for the Bailey amendment to the reciprocity bill and that if the reciprocity bill were passed he would be willing to "stay until December and go through the whole tariff list."

Wool Duty Much Reduced.

"The change for the woolen schedule as a whole will be reduced under the proposed amendment from 33.33 per cent under the present law, to 23.45 per cent, or a reduction of 23 1/2 per cent, and more than 25 per cent below the present rate."

MERCURY CLIMBS ALL DAY

Thermometer at 91 Degrees Registers Season's Hottest Period.

Beginning with a normal temperature of 80 degrees at 6 o'clock, the thermometer yesterday registered an increase of two degrees an hour, until at 3 o'clock it reached 91 degrees, the maximum for the day, recording the warmest day of the season. This high temperature remained stationary until 6 o'clock.

In the early forenoon indications were that the temperature would be little above the average, but by noon the showing of 84 degrees made it plain that something out of the ordinary was to be expected in the way of heat. In spite of the change in the weather, for which the community was not prepared, there was no distress, due, no doubt, to the absence of humidity.

In places exposed to the direct rays of the sun the heat was excessive. In the shade, however, the air was not uncomfortably warm.

The forecast for today for Portland and vicinity is cooler late this afternoon or tomorrow morning, with easterly winds.

OLCOTT THREATENS SUIT

Multnomah County Owes for Care of Wards, Says Secretary.

SALEM, Or., July 12.—(Special.)—The dispute between Secretary Olicott and County Treasurer Lewis of Portland, relative to payment of $4000 alleged to be due the state for caring for patients at the State Asylum for the Insane, shows no indications of cessation. When Olicott demanded the $4000 Lewis came back with a claim of $2560 for care of non-resident poor in Multnomah County.

Now Lewis has written that he has been restrained by the County from paying over the $4000. Judge Ryan, assistant to the State Treasurer, has responded to Lewis that he believes the Treasurer's attitude must be "blunt" as far as papers have been served on the State Treasurer relative to such an injunction suit.

Secretary Olicott also has notified Lewis that there is no appropriation now available for non-resident poor and that the new law of the last session leaves it to the counties to collect for the maintenance of insane, when such insane have relatives who are able to care for the patients.

COAST CITIES SEE COAL HOPE FADE

Cancellation of Entries Sounds Knell to Free Fuel in Northwest.

CONGRESS HOLDS KEY

Deliberate Lawmakers Give Small Indication of Opening of Alaskan Fields—Monopolies Strike Fear to Western Representatives.

OREGONIAN NEWS BUREAU, Washington, July 12.—With the Cunningham coal entries held for cancellation, and all other coal entries, filings and locations suspended and threatened with like treatment, and with the public coal lands withdrawn so they cannot be acquired and developed, Alaska is today thoroughly "conserved" according to the Pinchot idea, at least so far as its coal is concerned. And thus it will remain until Congress comes to the rescue and enacts some sort of practical legislation that will permit the opening up of Alaska's rich coal fields.

Meanwhile, the people of Alaska will continue to pay $15 a ton for their coal; the people of the Pacific Coast and Rocky Mountain states will be denied access to the Alaska coal, the best west of Pennsylvania, and not even the United States Navy or Revenue Cutter Service can make use of the Alaska coal, which experience has shown to be the equal of the best coal bought by the Federal Government today in Eastern markets.

Alaska's Voice Stilled.

This is conservation; this is Pinchotism. Congress alone can put an end to this condition of affairs, but Congress has never been hasty about legislating for Alaska; it is more "skittish" about it now than ever before. Alaska has no voice in Congress; the voices of Pacific Coast Senators and representatives in behalf of Alaska is seldom heard, and probably nothing can be done until Gifford Pinchot works out a plan of managing the Alaska coal available, and he will be in no hurry about that, for he is satisfied with the situation as it exists today.

Apparently three courses are open to Congress: (1) hold up Alaska's coal for future generations; (2) pass a leasing bill or a bill providing for mining limited areas on a royalty basis; or (3) extend the present coal land laws to Alaska, authorizing the sale of the coal at its appraised value. Inaction would have the effect of saving the coal for future use, and that is likely to be the plan pursued for the next few years, unless the conservationists come out strong for some one form of legislation.

Sale of Lands Unlikely.

If the conservationists declare themselves it probably will be for leasing bill, or a royalty bill, either plan promising little relief, in the judgment of Western men. There is apparently little reason to believe that Congress, after all that has been said about the Cunningham entries, will be willing to provide for the outright sale of these lands, even at their appraised value, for the fear of monopoly is so great that most men would not have the nerve to vote for a bill, no matter how strongly it might be safeguarded against monopoly. On the other hand, if a bill should pass, the probabilities are that the Geological Survey would fix such a value on the lands as to make the sale of them unprofitable, as has been done with the better grade of coal lands in the Western states, and thus, again, development would be made impracticable, and a thing of the distant future.

All in all, the outlook for the early development of the Alaska coal lands is anything but bright. The plans most likely to be adopted, if Congress ever gets down to business, are likely to prove impracticable, and the more feasible plans are likely to be frowned down by the National lawmakers.

VANCOUVER TIME CHANGED

Cars to Run Every Half Hour Instead of 25 Minutes.

Owing to the fast time required to make the run from Vancouver to Portland by the streetcar company it was decided yesterday to change the 25-minute service to a 30-minute schedule, making a trip every half hour.

For a month a 25-minute service has been maintained and occasionally the streetcar would not make connections with the ferry. This caused a 25-minute wait on the part of the passengers at Hayden Island and caused annoyance and delay. The failure to make connections was largely due to the draw on the Burnside-street bridge over the Willamette River. It was found that when the car was held 10 or 15 minutes, as was the case occasionally, the car could not make connection with the ferry. Beginning with Monday the cars will run every half hour.
