YOUNG TONGUE GLIB

Corvallis 11-Year-Old Girl Makes Esperanto Speech.

SCHOOLS TO EMBRACE IT

Announcement Made That Oregon High Classes Are to Put Study in Curricula — Convention Closes at Oaks.

Esperanto, the universal language is the easiest language in the world to learn declared speakers yesterday at the second day's session of the convention of Esperantists. To prove the point, 11-year-old Helen Mills, of Corvallis, gave several recitations in the language, took part in a general discussion in the new tongue and pointed out herself as an example of a person who has studied it but a short time. She is now one of the most fluent speakers of Esperanto in the state despite her age and the fact that she has studied but a short time.

The morning session of the convention was devoted to talks by Oregon Esperanto teachers and the practical methods of teaching the language were discussed. Arrangements were made for a big reception here the middle of October when H. W. Yeamas, of Detroit, a world-wide Esperanto authority will be in the city en route to the international congress of Esperantists at Antwerp. Arrangements were also made for a general campaign to obtain more members for the Northwestern Association and to introduce the language into the schools of the Northwest.

Schools to Teach Language.

Announcement was made that the association has the promise of the Oregon school authorities that Esperanto will be introduced in all Oregon high schools and colleges and that five credits will be allowed. This is considered a big victory as the language is given half the educational weight of German and French, both of which receive ten credits in the state schools. The policy of the association was outlined yesterday by Judge J. D. Fienner, of Boise, who was elected president of the association Wednesday. He says the phenomenal growth of the language in the last two years gives assurance of still greater growth in the years to come. He said the nucleus of the Esperanto movement in the Northwest should be in Portland as that city had been the seat of the first Northwestern Esperanto societies and at present is one of the best fields for the development of the language.

Other speakers at yesterday's convention were Professor W. A. Henry, of Coquille, Or., who dwelt on the methods of teaching Esperanto and its value in a commercial way and also as an educational feature. A. Denlinger and R. D. Merchant, of Portland, spoke on the growth of the language and the possibilities for the future.

Session Ends at Oaks.

In the afternoon the Esperantists went to the Oaks where they heard a special band concert played by Conway's band. In the evening a programme was carried out in the Oaks auditorium at which music and addresses were the features. The chief speaker was George K. Rogers whose topic was," Esperanto, Its History and Aims." He told of the development of the language since its beginning 29 years ago and showed that not until the last few years have the nations realised its value.

Miss Helen Mills gave a recitation in Esperanto. This was followed by an address in Esperanto by J. R. Tomlinson. J. Benton Lindsay sang a solo. The programme was brought to a close with a concert by Conway's band.

At the Oaks the annual convention was brought to a close. Each member has pledged himself to work for more members and all expect that by the next convention thousands of Esperantists will be in the Northwest where there are only hundreds at present.

ATTORNEY COHEN VICTIM

Phrenologist Gives Vent to Feelings by Attack on Lawyer.

Winner at the bar, but a bad second in physical combat, Attorney Max G. Cohen is nursing an abrasion of the forehead, received in the hall of the Justice Court yesterday from the hands of Mary Clay, a ponderous phrenologist.

The woman is a militant person who has given Cohen trouble for a long time in his efforts to oust her from property owned by one of his clients on Burnside street. Several days ago Cohen tried the expedient of locking up part of the premises and when Mary broke through, backed by 200 pounds of solid flesh, he had her arrested and tried in Police Court.

Mary had the best of the first encounter, but Cohen came back with an action for forcible entry, which was heard yesterday by Justice Olson. Cohen won, and as he emerged triumphant, Mary swung upon him with a muscular arm and sent the attorney staggering. Bystanders pacified the angry woman.

ELLIS THREATENS FIGHT

Ex-Councilman Says He Will Invoke Initiative on Street Ends.

Ex-Councilman Ellis said yesterday that if he fails in his effort to obtain passage of 16 ordinances revoking special permits granting private property owners the use of street ends in South Portland, he will frame an initiative petition and place the subject before the voters at the next election. He declares he will also include in the initiative measure a provision for revoking every special permit granted for the use of city streets by private individuals or corporations without compensation.

"If I get out the initiative petition I expect to include in it streets running through the terminal yards in North Portland, and other pieces of City property. I am looking up the terminal yards property now, and will soon have it checked up," said Mr. Ellis.

WOMEN AS MOTHERS

Their Lot Recalled in the Family Life of Pioneer Days.

PORTLAND, July 20.—(To the Editor.)—The amazing account in The Oregonian of last Friday of one lone man's achievements in "diversified farming," who, by his individual exertions, had netted $50,000 in 25 years on a beginning of $10, makes the experienced mother of a large pioneer family of farm-born children pause and wonder who it was that boiled, baked, stewed, fried, churned, scrubbed, washed, ironed, sewed and patched, to say nothing of bearing and raising those "six children" for F. A. Bell? Did these children come "ready-made" while he was" giving his entire time and attention to caring for the land and cultivating crops?" If so, and this ignored, overworked and perhaps ignorant woman were asked her opinion as to "votes for women" she would most likely console herself, or try to, as I did under like experiences in my younger days, with saying, as she toiled beyond her strength and for many years saw no light ahead, "I have more rights now than I know what to do with."

Just now, my attention is called by a capable lady teacher who is doing a voter's work on disenfranchised pay, to the statement of Miss Hobbs, chief clerk to our broad-brained and big-hearted Governor, who says she "hopes the time never will come when women will be able to vote." If Miss Hobbs had gone to the Legislature as I did, 40 years ago, as a pioneer in the equal rights movement, when no woman in Oregon, Washington or Idaho had been "able to vote," and had encountered the criticism, fatigue, poverty and heart-aches through which such as she can now enjoy remunerative clerkships, she would, I verily believe, know better now than to encourage parasitic women to live in idleness in hotels and boarding-houses, where toiling husbands feed and clothe them, by disseminating such fustion.

The women of the land who have learned by dear experience to demand equal rights with men before the law for all the people, are not asking to "look nice" as candidates for any office. What we seek is not merely "votes for women," but the effect the extension of the elective franchise will ultimately bring to all men and women who must work for a livelihood and who need the equal opportunities which Miss Hobbs could not have reached through any other channel than the equal suffrage movement, which, though not yet attained by all women, has enabled her to bring herself before the public as a conspicuous, and I may add, example.

LANE CHERRIES THRIVE

OREGON FRUIT IS SENT TO CALIFORNIA THIS YEAR.

426,000 Pounds, County's Largest Pack, Is Shipped—Early Frosts Help Season's Yield.

EUGENE, Or., July 20.—(Special.)—The largest cherry pack in the history of Lane County, 426,000 pounds, has just been put up at the plant of the Eugene Fruitgrowers' Association. The pack not only exceeds in quantity that of any previous year, but the quality is fine. The thinning of the blossoms by early frosts resulted in exceptionally large fruit.

Of the total output, 15 carloads were made into maraschino cherries for the soda fountain trade, and were packed in barrels; three carloads of the fresh fruit were shipped to points in Northern California, and one carload of the canned fruit was consigned to San Francisco, making a total of 19 carloads shipped from here.

An interesting detail of this year's crop is the shipment of Oregon fruit into California.

The largest previous pack of cherries in Lane County was in 1908, when the total ran to 345,000 pounds. The pack for 1909 and 1910 was the same for both years—300,000 pounds.

Owing to the exceedingly hot and dry weather, the loganberry crop will fall considerably short of the estimate. Contracts entered into by the Fruitgrowers' Association call for 600 cases of this fruit, but it is probable that not over 400 cases will be put up. The red raspberry crop, however, will show a considerable gain over former years. One hundred and fifty cases will be put up this year, as against 100 cases, the largest previous pack.

TWO DOCTORS IN MIXUP

Dr. George Parrish Attacks Dr. A. C. Smith.

Swinging a right uppercut before Dr. Andrew C. Smith could put up his guard, Dr. George Parrish yesterday afternoon knocked Dr. Smith to the floor in the lobby of the Medical building, where they both have offices. When Dr. Smith arose the two physicians clinched and were separated by outsiders.

The fight grew out of an attack made by Dr. Smith on Dr. Parrish in the meeting of the County Medical Society Wednesday night, in which he charged Dr. Parrish with unprofessional conduct. Friends of Dr. Parrish, who was not present, carried the news to him, and, meeting Dr. Smith in the lobby of the building, he attacked him.

Judge J. D. Fienner, New President of the Esperanto Association of the Pacific Northwest.

W. J. Alexander, a landscape gardener who was standing in the lobby of the building at the time of the fight, said:

"Dr. Smith was in the lobby, just getting into the elevator, when Dr. Parrish called him, and they stood talking angrily for several minutes. Dr. Smith stood on his guard with his hands in position to fight, but after a while, when they began to talk more quietly, he put them down. Dr. Parrish spoke again and Dr. Smith answered: 'Yes, I said it.' I did not hear what Dr. Parrish said in reply, but Dr. Smith said: 'Yes, and I meant you, too.'

"In the meantime Dr. Smith had got off his guard and was leaning with one arm against the wall and had his right hand in his pocket. Then Dr. Parrish struck and Dr. Smith stumbled backward and tumbled over to the floor on his hands and knees. He got up groggy and Dr. Parrish hit him again and Dr. Smith fell again. When he got up again they clinched and fell. Dr. Parrish beneath. Then Drs. William Knox, J. F. Beaumont and B. Fisher grabbed Dr. Smith and pulled him away. Dr. Parrish rose and Dr. Smith went into the elevator and to his rooms."

MEN UNDER BOND

Grand Jury Indicts Five Enumerators on Fraud Charge.

MANY WITNESSES QUIZZED

Introduction of Liquor on Territory of Indians Basis for Majority of Indictments in Two Weeks' Session.

After reporting 27 indictments and finding seven "not true" bills, the Federal grand jury yesterday submitted a final report and was discharged by United States Judge Bean. The jury was in session two weeks and in that length of time examined 126 witnesses.

Most important of the indictments returned were those against five enumerators for alleged census frauds in this city. The trial of these men, Jeremiah Hurley, John H. James, Harry DeHord, J. Conrad Vellweger and Vincent A. Manning will be tried at the next term of the Federal Court, probably in September. In the meantime each is enjoying his freedom under $1500 bonds.

All of the other indictments were of minor consequence. Charlie Bennett, Ed McGinnis, "Shorty" McDonald, J. V. Waddell, John Doe Littlefield, A. K. Pollard and J. W. Wyland were indicted for introducing liquor on the Klamath Indian Reservation. Hugo Albright will be tried for the alleged larceny of a horse at Klamath Falls, the property of the United States Reclamation Service. Larceny of cattle from the Umatilla Indian Reservation is the charge against Frank Johnson. Joe Stoll and "Doc" Jones will be tried for selling liquor to Indians on the Klamath Indian Reservation. Chew Kee, a Chinese resident of Pendleton, is charged with manufacturing opium products. Vincent Wontock and Stuart Rooney were indicted for introducing liquor on the Siletz Indian Reservation, while Ling Fook will be tried for smuggling opium into the United States.

BANKRUPTCY PETITIONS FILED

Portland and Sherman County Men Give Financial Statement.

C. L. Daggett, of this city, for many years prominent because of his active participation in Democratic politics, yesterday filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the United States Court. Mr. Daggett gives his liabilities as $1614, with available assets of $500. Two years ago Mr. Daggett was the Democratic nominee for Sheriff, and in the recent municipal election ran as an independent candidate against Ralph C. Clyde for Councilman-at-Large. He was superintendent of the garbage crematory during the Lane administration.

Another petition in bankruptcy was filed yesterday by J. C. Beckner, a farmer of Klondike, Sherman County. In his petition Mr. Beckner admits liabilities aggregating $8230.32, with assets, including a 320-acre farm, amounting to $7467. Of these assets, however, Mr. Beckner claims exemptions to the amount of $1837.

RIVAL FERRY OWNERS FIGHT

The Dalles Company Would Prevent Other Operating.

The right of County Courts to grant exclusive franchises for the operation of ferries across boundary streams is involved in a suit pending in the United States Court. The suit was brought by The Dalles & Rockland Ferry Company to restrain A. E. Hayes and W. T. Hendryx from operating an independent ferry system at The Dalles.

The plaintiff company was organized under the laws of the State of Washington and for a number of years has been engaged in the ferry business under a Wasco County license giving it the exclusive ferry privilege at The Dalles. Hayes and Hendryx recently formed a company and began the operation of a ferry across the Columbia at the same point. The other company then went into the courts and is asking for an injunction perpetually restraining the rival concern from operating its ferry. Judge Bean yesterday heard arguments on the application for a permanent injunction and took the matter under advisement.

LUMBER COMPANY IS SUED

Seattle Man Wants $13,905.32 on Alleged Contract Failure.

Alleging vilolation of the terms of the contract, F. J. Martin, of Seattle, in a suit filed in the United States Cour yesterday, asks judgment against the Beaver Lumber Company, of Prescott, Or., for $13,905.32.

Plaintiff alleges that in 1909 he furnished under contract the defendant corporation with a dry pipe system of automatic sprinklers which was to be paid for in installments. According to the complaint, one of the provisions of the contract was that if the lumber company failed to meet its payments, all payments made for the sprinkling system were to be considered as rental and the dealer given the right to sue for the entire amount of the contract. It is charged in the complaint that the lumber company not only failed to meet the final payment, but notified the Seattle man that it would not pay the final installment. Martin is suing for the full amount of the contract.

BOILERMAKER IS ANNOYED

Two Neighbor Families Arrested for Noisy and Disorderly Conduct.

Though a boilermaker by trade, Ralph B. Michaelson could not stand the racket made by his neighbors in a flat at 546 East Twenty-seventh street, so he caused the arrest of everybody in the house on charges of disorderly conduct. The defendants were J. J. McCormack, a streetcar conductor, and his wife, and Albert Cantenwine, a printer, and his wife.

"When did this trouble occur?" asked Deputy City Attorney Sullivan.

"July 2, 4, 7, 11 and 16," was the reply of the boilermaker.

Michaelson alleged that a tub full of beer and watermelon, a 15-hour graphophone, boisterous and improper language, and a pajama and kimono parade in the recent hot spell, comprised the main offenses. The four defendants asserted that their conduct had been eminently proper and that Michaelson and his wife were jealous because they had not been invited.

Judge Tazwell took the case under advisement.

MUSIC TO CHARM WRITERS

Band Soloists Will Appear at Press Club's "Jinks" Tonight.

Oodles of good music, fun and some surprises are promised members of the Press Club at the "jinks" to be held tonight at the clubrooms, Elks' building, Seventh and Stark streets. Some of the top-liners are: Patrick Conway and 12 soloists from his band, playing at the Oaks; Mrs. Joseph Dunfee, of Syracuse, N. Y., soprano soloist, with the band, and Leipsig, the conjurer, now appearing at the Orpheum. Such is the announcement of the club's entertainment committee.

The programme is scheduled to begin at 9:30. Each succeeding entertainment is meant to outdo the one previous. Therefore a "hummer" of a time is due, for the last Friday night entertainment at the Council Crest amusement park was a splendid one. Members may invite friends to the "jinks."

SWINDLE CAUSES SUICIDE

Roll of Confederate Bills Found Beside Man Who Shoots Self.

Despondency following a swindle of which he was the victim is believed to have been the cause leading John Papagranopoulos to take his life by shooting himself in a rooming-house at 28½ Fourth street, yesterday morning.

Patrolmen Inskeep and Sims found the body, and beside it lay a safety-deposit box which had been opened with a can-opener, and which contained a roll of Confederate money.

Papagranopoulos rented the room for a week and paid the rent in advance. The proprietor, a woman, heard the revolver shot and rushed to the room, to find it locked. Then she called the police.
