

MIMIC WARFARE NOW IN PROGRESS

Naval Engagements Off Rhode Island Coast Prove Exciting.

CALIFORNIA BATTLE TODAY

As Warships Meet at Sea, Coast Artillery and Infantry Prepare for "War" Near Presidio—Governor Johnson Reviews.

ROCK ISLAND, R. I., July 20.—Although the theoretical nature of the morning's powder war at sea had hardly cleared away last night, another conflict is believed to be impending. Even the men of the fleets do not know officially which was the victor in the early engagement and will not know until the Navy Department has had an opportunity to examine the reports of the umpire.

Just as the sun arose, according to Commander E. W. Eberl of the defenders, the battleship fleet approached from sea, engaged the enemy and was apparently destroyed. The battleship fleet in command of the invaders and the Washington, Salem and Chester—part of the attacking fleet, came in from sea very rapidly, passed the north end of Block Island and then headed in the direction of Gardiner's Bay.

This movement was destined as a 10-minute attack by Rear-Admiral Osterhaus in command of the invaders and he claimed to have won victory by one and one-half minutes.

MIMIC WARFARE ON TONIGHT

Coast Artillery and Thirtieth Infantry to Engage in California.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 20.—Upon recommendation of the War Department, the Thirtieth Infantry and nine companies of Coast Artillery will engage in mimic warfare tomorrow night, the former, aided by the Cruiser Maribea, making a night attack upon San Francisco.

The umpire of the attack will be Colonel J. P. Wieser, commandant of the Presidio; Colonel J. C. Brooks, Major J. P. O'Neill and Major L. S. Hoadley. These officers are all members of the Regular Army and will make an official report to the War Department. The sham battle will be one of the activities of the annual camp of the California National Guard, now being held near the Presidio.

Governor Johnson visited the camp today and for the first time in 25 years the salute of 17 guns was fired from the big ordnance guarding the Presidio reserves. A full dress review was given in the Governor's honor.

BABE SAVED BY CURTAIN

Falling Pole Breaks Window Pane Just Above Child's Buggy.

ALBANY, Or., July 20.—(Special.)—When a falling electric light pole crashed through a large front-glass window in the residence of Charles Monson, in this city, last evening, glass from the shattered window was thrown all over the room and even into an adjoining room, but none touched the three-month-old baby of Mr. and Mrs. Monson, which was asleep in its buggy directly under the window.

The baby's escape from injury was most remarkable, for glass fell all around it. The buggy was against the edge of the window curtain in such a way that the curtain protected the buggy, and that was the only portion of the entire room not struck by flying glass. The pole, which stood in the curb in front of the Monson residence, rotted off at the base and fell from its own weight.

The time set for its completion is October.

CARS HANG FROM BRIDGE

Six Persons Hurt When Passenger Train in Oklahoma Is Wrecked.

MUSKOGEE, Okla., July 20.—A north-bound passenger train No. 5, on the Midland Valley Railroad, crashed through a bridge one-half mile west of Avant, Okla., late yesterday. The bridge, which is 53 feet high, had been weakened by a swollen creek. A wrecking train has been sent from here to the scene.

According to reports received here late last night, at least six persons were injured, among them Conductor Smith, of Muskogee.

The engine passed completely over the bridge before the pier gave way. The baggage and smoking cars are over the trestle, about to fall, and the "Jim Crow" car, which crashed through, lies at the bottom of the creek.

TRUTHFUL PRESS URGED

EDITOR SPEAKS AT CATHOLIC TEACHERS' INSTITUTE.

Need of Providing Accurate Information of World's Events for School Use Emphasized.

John O'Hara, editor of the Catholic Sentinel, spoke at the School and Catholic Teachers' Institute at the afternoon session of the Catholic Teachers' Institute, now being held in St. Mary's Academy. Mr. O'Hara dwelt upon the necessity of providing accurate information of the world's events for use in the school.

The speaker said that the great events of the day were often given in a distorted form and that a choice should be made between the press which prints the news as fact and the press which prints inaccuracies. Mr. O'Hara referred to the current event clubs which are found in many of the German universities and it was found that the sources were the Catholic press. Mr. O'Hara also pointed out the use which might be made by students of matters recorded in the daily press as material for their work.

Dr. Thomas B. Lawler also addressed the institute on "Methods in the Study of United States History." Dr. Lawler declared that in presenting the subject to the teacher should be material for study. The teacher should be able to furnish supplement material in developing the various phases of the question under treatment. The speaker said that most of the great events in history could be reduced to three topics: When did the event take place; who were those connected with it; and what were the results. Dr. Lawler also emphasized the importance of using pictures in the study of history.

The address which was to have been given by City Superintendent Rigler on "Primary Arithmetic" was postponed to a later session. In its place Dr. Lawler gave an illustrated lecture on the Philippines.

Dr. Lawler gave a lecture on "Japan" in place of the address which was to have been given by Rev. Mr. Moynihan on "The Evolution of the Human Race." The speaker will speak at the afternoon session on "The Vocation of the Teacher." T. W. Spaulding, of San Francisco, also spoke on "The Philosophy of Education." Mr. Spaulding is president of the Western Playground Association. The sessions will be opened at 9 o'clock by Miss Doyle, who will speak on "Some Points on the Teaching of English in the Grades."

TREASURE SHIP LANDS

SEATTLE POTLATCH ON WITH CROWDING OF KING D'ORO.

One Hundred Thousand Spectators View Marching Northmen.

Astoria Delegation Attracts.

SEATTLE, Wash., July 20.—(Special.)—One hundred thousand spectators gave prolonged cheers of "Long live the King" at 2:25 o'clock this afternoon, when Rev. W. A. Major lifted the royal crown and placed it on the dancing locks of Rex Rex, crowning him "King d'Oro" of the royal realm of Seattle. The ceremonies of the coronation, following the reception of the King d'Oro by the Potlatch grandstand, were highly impressive.

The parade was declared by visitors to be one of the best ever seen at the Potlatch. The landing of King d'Oro preceded the parade. Crowded to the rails with real Alaska goods and King d'Oro left Portland at 2:19 o'clock this afternoon. Amid the shrieking of whistles from every vessel in the harbor and factory along the waterfront, the bronzed and stalwart men of the north marched down the gangplank to the cheers of 100,000 spectators.

Not a hitch occurred in the program, day or night. As a fitting preliminary to the arrival of the Potlatch, the thousands of spectators crowded along the waterfront saw a soul-stirring sight when Lieutenant Eugene B. Ely arose in his aeroplane promptly at 12 P. M. Soaring aloft, he darted off for Duwamish Head and disappeared.

Astoria sent a splendid delegation. Grand Duke H. L. Henderson headed the Astoria crowd, his Centennial drum corps, which arrived by special train, capturing all Seattle.

An interesting feature of the historical pageant this afternoon was a band of mounted Yakima Indians. The Pacific torpedo flotilla, consisting of 13 torpedo-boat destroyers, arrived from the Puget Sound Navy yard today and participated in the illuminated naval parade tonight. The water celebration closed with an exhibition of fire-fighting by two fire tugs, and a pyrotechnical display from a barge anchored in the bay.

WOMAN GUARDS PROPERTY

With Gun in Hand, Rancher's Wife Holds Logger's Party at Bay.

ABERDEEN, Wash., July 20.—(Special.)—Objecting to the removal of logs from her land because of the damage the dragging of the logs over her property would do, Mrs. D. D. Eno, wife of D. D. Eno, a Wynoochee River rancher, stood off C. W. Arland, well-known logger and former County Commissioner, and a crew of his men, with a gun on Monday.

Arland, accompanied by a force of his workmen, went to the Eno ranch district to remove logs from the land owned by the Wynoochee River and tributary sloughs which had floated there during the high water of the winter. Mrs. Eno refused to allow them to be moved, reinforcing her refusal with a gun. Arland sought legal advice and after some little trouble was given permission to move the logs, first giving a written agreement to Mrs. Eno to pay for any damage done to the land in hauling.

VALUE OF AN ANCESTRY

Worth of Jefferson Davis and Abraham Lincoln Contrasted.

WASHINGTON (D. C.) Post. The Norfolk Ledger-Dispatch, whose opinions on any and all subjects merit attention, has taken a fall out of Prof. Dodd, of the University of Chicago, for his attack upon "subsidizing capitalists" and the press. The professor, according to the professor, is demoralizing affairs in the Old Dominion, as they have already done in the States of the North

PENDLETON MAN CAUGHT

Alleged Horse Thief Arrested at Vancouver; Put in Jail.

VANCOUVER, Wash., July 20.—(Special.)—Wanted in Pendleton, Or., for stealing horses, T. H. Redding, alias Big Slim, was arrested here last night by Sheriff Sanford, Deputy Sheriff Redding denied his guilt, but he was taken to the county jail and locked up. When he entered the jail, an inmate took a snout at him, and stretching forth his hand, greeted him, "Howdy, Redding; welcome to our happy home." The man who recognized Redding is William Lewis, serving a 60-day sentence for petty larceny. He said that he and Redding had done time together in Salem.

Redding is alleged to have stolen horses in a number of different places throughout Washington and Oregon, the last place where he is wanted being Pendleton. Sheriff Taylor, of Umatilla County, telephoned today that he would come here for Redding.

ERIE, Pa., July 20.—Sore in body and limping perceptibly, J. C. (Bud) Mars left the hospital yesterday, where he has been recovering from injuries due to a fall with his aeroplane last Friday. Mars went to a hotel here, where he will be confined to his room for several days.

Redding said he would not attempt another flight for at least six months, and might abandon aviation. He is contemplating another trip around the world and says it may be years before he is seen in another aeroplane flight.

PRISONER TO VIEW DEAD

Deputy to Take Vagrant to Morgue Where Wife's Body Lies.

Accompanied by a Deputy Sheriff Jesse Merritt, prisoner of the state, will be permitted to gaze for the last time on the features of his dead wife, whose funeral he will not be permitted to attend. He will be taken to the morgue, where his wife's body is lying this afternoon.

Merritt tried many times to see his wife at Multnomah Park, but was denied from tuberculosis, and July 19 escaped at the risk of his life from the Linnton rockpile and took 10 days in trying to get to his home. When he finally reached the house at midnight July 16, he was caught by a Deputy Sheriff and was taken back to the rockpile. Merritt is serving a sentence for vagrancy.

Mrs. Merritt was 43 years of age. She leaves four children. The date of her death was not given. Her body will be laid in a plot in Multnomah Cemetery.

and West. Incidentally, the Ledger-Dispatch mentions a previous Doddism, to the effect that "The ancestry of Jefferson Davis was no better than that of Abraham Lincoln." To which assertion it seems that several rejoinders were printed in Richmond of a nature calculated to bring no enjoyment to Dodd.

It must be the time of year, or a fondness for dead issues, or a predilection toward the whimsical, that leads to the latter statement of Professor Dodd a greater fascination than invests his strictures against the money power and an unscrupulous press. Perhaps it is that these have been a trifle overworked in recent times, while the other, mellow with age and crusty with long seclusion, takes on the flavor of a rare vintage that was bottled in the days when the ancestral question was a burning topic.

No one holds in scorn or light esteem the value of gentle birth. It is a heritage so much greater than money that the two may not be mentioned in the same breath. A long line of unadorned heroes, a bulwark behind which womanly virtue may take shelter unafraid. But it should not become an empty boast, nor like charity, to be traded upon, nor like genius, to cover a multitude of sins. Neither was it intended to be dragged in the dust of little dissensions, may have been a word. But he carried his democratic beliefs to Edinburgh, as proud a city in his day as the world held. And Sir Walter Scott has told how, when a child, he stood in the stately company and saw Burns received as an equal by the bluest blood and brightest intellects of Scotland.

The rank is but the guinea's stamp; A man's man for a' that. Burns may have been a word. But he carried his democratic beliefs to Edinburgh, as proud a city in his day as the world held. And Sir Walter Scott has told how, when a child, he stood in the stately company and saw Burns received as an equal by the bluest blood and brightest intellects of Scotland.

Why not let it go at that? If there be those who rest wholly on ancestry, we commend them to the incident of the boy who repeated the Darwinian theory to his father. "You may have descended from a monkey, young man, but I didn't!" was the haughty reply of the cheery parent.

According to the finding of the jury, Mr. Marsh had been suddenly stricken by a sinking spell and had fallen several feet from the bank into the shallow creek.

G. W. Marsh was born in Washington County, on the famous Marsh homestead, which was at the time the property of his father August 17, 1842. He married Miss Dora Lyons. There are four children, Mrs. J. H. Wilcox, of Oswego; John F. Marsh, living on the home farm; William Jensen, of Hillsboro, and Helen Marsh, aged 4 years.

Mr. Marsh was for 30 years an active figure in the politics of Oregon, being elected in 1906 a member of the House of Representatives. He was a supporter of Dolph during the famous holdup session. Four years ago, he was defeated in the primaries for the office of County Judge and defeat was also met in a similar contest last fall.

The juices of lemons and limes give a pleasing amount of acidity, and the fresh, spicy ginger and pure confectioners' sugar offer a mild, stimulating, grateful food value. Clicquot Club Ginger Ale is non-astringent, and the water (from the famous Clicquot Club spring) is particularly pure and refreshing.
