Beavers Knock Moskiman Out of Box and Locate Browning's Curves, Too.

LOCALS USE TWO TWILERS

San Francisco Becomes Somewhat Menacing in Fifth and Sixth, So McCredie Sends Koestner in to Replace Henke.

BY ST. J. PETAINE. McCredie sent Ferdinand Henke against the Seals yesterday, and against the fact that the University of Oregon had won a trifling victory, he delivered the goods for six innings, and Portland in the meantime had piled up enough runs to insure a victory before Koestner went on the mound, and the final result was 7 to 3 in favor of the league leaders.

"Doc" Moskiman essayed the pitching task for the Seals, and for three innings he got by without being damaged. It was to have been Harry Sutor's turn to leave for the Seals, but the star pitcher of the visiting crew had paid a visit to Seaside and did not get back to Portland in time, which put it up to the doctor to do the honors.

In the fourth inning Moskiman met with a warm reception. The Beavers drove him from the mound. A series of bingles resulting in the substitution of Browning.

Krueger was the first Beaver up in the fourth and he ripped a single to center. Peckinpaugh and Kuhn did likewise, and Krueger was in with the first run. McKune hit to McCredie, who booted, and Peckinpaugh scored. Henke fanned, but when Charbourne hit safely, scoring Kuhn. Mohler was tagged in the sixth, and the crowd, excepting J. Cal Ewing, who was among those present, applauded earnestly as the bell clanged half a dozen tolls.

In the fifth inning the Seals managed to work one run across. Schmidt beat out an infield tap to McKune, and Henke's error in covering first gave Browning a chance to reach base. The first, Powell and Mohler flew to Krueger, making two out, but "Honus" McCredie laced one to left which tallied Schmidt, but Krueger, who had been taking second on Kuhn's relay to McKune of Krueger's return.

After disposing of Weaver and Tennant in the sixth, Henke walked Shaw and successive hits by Vitt and Schmidt brought "Honus" over for another run. Browning was passed in this inning. The Seals were unable to get any of the Seals' chance by fanning Powell.

In the next inning, the seventh, Koestner mounted the hill for the Beavers, and he pitched with the Seals, but he was not able to get any of the Seals' chance by fanning Powell.

For good measure, the Beavers got to Browning in the eighth and chased another run across. Peckinpaugh was called out on strikes, but Kuhn singled to left. McKune flew to Mohler, and Koestner and Chadbourne staged in succession, sending the Fresno redhead across with the last run of the game.

The following is the score: Seals 7, Beavers 3. Krueger featured yesterday's game, and accepted all of them neatly and cleanly.

Sutor and Steen will be the opposing twirlers today, which happens to be ladies' day.

Yesterday's score follows: San Francisco..... Portland.....

Baseball Notes. Henke pitched a fine game despite his weakness, and the fact that he was taken out about mid-way through the game. He is likely to suffer similarly these days.

Buddy Ryan was in harness once more, and the score sheet indicates that he was likely to suffer similarly these days.

Artie Krueger was the champion batter of the afternoon, for the Big Dutchman seemed not to be working with any of them started the dismantling of "Doc" Moskiman.

Moskiman, by the way, started his career with the Seals against the Beavers last Friday. He was taken out after the first inning, but he has not yet been replaced.

CARLISLE'S UNASSISTED TRIPLE PLAY THIRTEENTH IN BASEBALL, DECLARES EASTERN EXPERT.

WALTER CARLISLE, VERNON OUTFIELDER.

Reports of unassisted triple plays have come from all sections of the country since the recent agitation in the East, inspired by a Chicago scribe's statement that only two authentic cases are on record in major and Class A ball. Carlisle's feat at Los Angeles on Wednesday added fuel to the flames. George L. Moreland, president of the Ohio and Pennsylvania League, one of the best-known statisticians in the country, is now authority for the statement that 17 such killings have been made in the many years of organized baseball.

"Seven times was this noteworthy performance recorded prior to 1906, when Second Baseman Murch, of Manchester, in the New England League, turned the trick in a game with Bedford on September 6, 1906," declared Moreland in answer to a telegram.

"On August 17, 1908, First Baseman Decker, of the Richfield, Pa. team, in a game against Beaver Springs, also made a triple unassisted. At Mohler, Mo., Jack O'Neil performed the feat in the Dayton Central League team, on April 19, 1909, and now comes Carlisle."

Moreland has proof of two additional unassisted triples performed in amateur games, so in reality the records show 15 of the rare plays.

the early stages of the game, the pitchers were invincible and it was not until the sixth that a runner made the circuit. A wild throw by Mahoney let Hoffman score from second and in the same inning Zaehner drove the ball out of the lot. Sacramento made 11 hits, but snappy playing by Oakland prevented run getting. Oakland made only three hits. Score: Sacramento..... Oakland.....

ROOSTERS DUMP AWAY WITH GAME

Annis Allows but Three Hits but Playing of Tigers Is Most Ragged.

MIKE LYNCH IS ANNOYED

Bengal Leader Decides to Put Team Through Course of Sprouts Following Work in Game With Nick Williams' Troupe.

TACOMA, Wash., July 20.—(Special.)—Although Annis held the Roadsters to three hits, inferior support at critical times gave the visitors the fourth game of the series today, 3 to 1. Bloomfield got away lucky, the four hits made by the Tigers being isolated. Morse scored the only run made by Tacoma after being safe on a fielder's choice and counting when Burns knocked out a double which was almost good for three bases.

Two double plays by the Roadsters cut down the Tigers' chances in the sixth and ninth innings, and the Bengals must admit that their favorites were cleanly out-played during the matinee. Score: Roadsters..... Tigers.....

Robinson & Co. On Washington Near Fifth. PUNCH IS DOUBTED "Mysterious Billy's" Chance to "Come Back" Dubious. FIGHTER GREAT IN HIS DAY

Portland Fan Tells New Version of Baumgarten-Ostleick Mixup in Game Between Indians and Roadsters at Spokane. BY ROSCOE FAWCETT. Portland fans who will watch with interest the "come back" efforts of "Mysterious Billy" Smith, who is to exchange jabs with the colored artist, Rufus Williams, at San Francisco tonight, when Billy left Portland several weeks ago he confided to his friends that he expected to try his luck again in the squared circle, but as he carried around with 115 pounds on his welterweight frame the announcement caused only ripples of amusement.

He has now made good his promise after weeks of training, but whether he will emulate the illustrious heavy-champion, who has been so well acquainted with him, or whether he will determine, chances are, of course, that he will. "Billy" was a great welterweight in his day, in fact, he was the first to hold the welter title, but "Billy's" day of useful pugilistic service passed into the gloaming months ago.

The writer once asked Charley White, the New York referee, what he thought of Smith and where he ranked him in the galaxy of welterweight stars. White pondered a moment and then took a pencil and paper from his vest pocket and wrote: "Tommy Ryan, first; Joe Wolcott, second; 'Mysterious Billy' Smith, third."

White has the pleasure of refereeing several bouts in which Smith participated and followed the Portland man's movements closely, probably, than anybody else. He has many stories to tell of Billy's prowess. When Smith met Kid McCoy, in 1896, in Boston, at catchweights, Billy lost in two rounds. McCoy had just beaten Ryan and Smith was jealous of the Kid's great feat. Every time they met on the street Billy would start a rough and tumble fight.

"I went over to Boston on the same train with McCoy for that fight and I asked McCoy how he planned to fight Smith," said White, digging back into his memory. "I'm going to get this fellow's goat. I'll grab in a clinch and whisper in his ear. So you're the 'Mysterious Billy' Smith are you? Well I'm going to bust the mystery tonight," answered the Kid.

"Smith fell for McCoy's game right at the start," continued White. "Smith began roughing in the clinches after the whistles blew and finally hauled back and slugged the referee and was disqualified for unfair fighting. "When the two fighters were in the office getting their money McCoy remarked to Smith, 'How's the mystery now?'"
