EX-WIFE SUES MINER
WILLIAM TREVOR ACCUSED OF NOT SUPPORTING SONS.

Woman, Who Remarried, Like Former Husband, Clings to Boys. Two Sisters Free Brother.

Alleged failure to support his minor children—Ernest, aged 10, and Arthur, aged 8—resulted in William Trevor, a mining promoter, with offices in the Alasky building, being forced to defend a charge of non-support in the County Court yesterday afternoon. The charge was brought at the instance of Mrs. Louise Khury, his former wife, from whom he was divorced in 1905. The case was complicated by the fact that both Trevor and his former wife have remarried.

When Trevor asked Judge Cleaton to let him take care of one of the children, Mrs. Khury protested before the judge was able to explain that the custody of the children had been settled by the divorce decree and that he had no authority to alter the decree. So violently did Mrs. Khury cry that it was feared for a few minutes that she would become hysterical. Seizing the boys, she held them close to her, apparently fearful that she was to lose them. Judge Cleaton decided that mining stock which Trevor had given the children's mother before the divorce was to apply to their support and that the mother must sell it and apply the proceeds to the support of the children if it is found that it has a market value and she can obtain a loan to buy it. In the event that it has no market value, Trevor must supply the funds necessary for the proper care and education of the two boys. Mrs. Khury declared to support her and three small children, Mrs. L. B. Oatman relented and pleaded with Judge Cleaton for his liberty. The young man promised to spend his money on his family hereafter and was allowed to go. The young couple left the Courthouse together.

John L. Crim, who had told Judge Cleaton a week before that he would support his children, but who, on his own admission, had failed to make any move in that direction in the intervening week, was sentenced to six months on the rockpile, the sentence not to take effect in case he files a bond of $500 as a guarantee that he will pay his wife $25 a month for the support of the children.

Dudley Boomer, who was sentenced to serve a year on the rockpile a few weeks ago, after conviction on a non-support charge, was paroled. Two of his sisters appeared before Judge Cleaton and entered urgent pleas on his behalf, promising themselves to support his children if he fails to do so.

MRS. EMANUEL MAY DEAD

Wife of Capitalist and Realty Dealer, Aged 51, Dies at Hospital.

Mrs. Emanuel May, wife of a capitalist and real estate man of Portland, died at St. Vincent's Hospital early yesterday morning following an operation Tuesday. She was born in Brown's Valley, Cal., in 1860, and was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Selling, uncle and aunt of Ben Selling, of Portland.

Mrs. May was married in Pendleton in 1885 and she and her husband soon afterward moved to Portland, residing here continuously since. Mrs. May was a member of the Order of the Eastern Star, the Women of Woodcraft, and a prominent worker in the Council of Jewish Women, and in the Neighborhood House and library. She was prominently identified with social work.

Emanuel May, her widower, and a daughter, Fannie, and son, Samuel, survive. The funeral will be held from the family residence, at 29 Twenty-fifth street North, at 9 o'clock Sunday morning. Rabbi Wise will officiate.

Mining Man Sued for $8612.

T. J. Uhlman, who left the city last week taking with him, it is alleged, $2000 belonging to the Weinhard estate, is made defendant in a suit filed in the Circuit Court yesterday by the Weinhard estate asking judgment for $8612. The amount represents two years' back rent for the Hoyt Hotel, of which Uhlman was proprietor.
