LONDON. Aug. 1.-(Special. - 11 in a painful truth that the clergy are assigned a starvation wage, as low as that of the casual laborer," says the Bishop of Manchester, who is leading a campaign for better pay for parsons. The question brings up an old prob-lem for English parishes, where the endowments attached to churches are insufficient and voluntary presents have to be relied on by the minister and his family to keep their head above water financially. That method has gone so far that the Bishop of Manchester adds: "I have lived long enough to see pauper clergy bring up pauper families, shough none of them ever came within reach of the poor law; men and women who were al-ways on the lookout for doles, and were forced to expect them." There are hundreds, of ministers in England not receiving $1000 a year, which looks mean compared with the salaries offered the few who have been invited to American pulpits. Many are paid not more than $250 above the salary they got when they left college 30 or 40 years ago. Hence it is that the view overlooking a modern city, close-at-hand, presents an unsatisfactory spectacle. Because of the multitudes of uninviting roof-tops that are thrust upon and jar the vision. A jumble this, when compared to Nature's landscape composition; as embraced, for example, in the outlook from "Eastmoreland".

Here, from the hillside, is presented a pleasing, and to some, a fascinating panorama that appeals instantly to our innate artistic sensibilities.

It will be sufficient for me to remark further, that Plat Nc. 1 of "Eastmoreland" (400 Sites) was purchast almost wholly on account of the beauty of the scenic outlook. This is another of the reasons why I have said "Watch Eastmoreland Now"
