patrons who viewed them at a public exhibit Tuesday evening, offering to wager $200 that the Chicago artist's work is not "free-hand" painting.

Mr. Mears says he has known from the start that Mr. Webster's art is not strictly "free-hand" work, as he first traces the outline of the picture he intended to paint on the lyory. The letter Mr. Mears received from Mr. Harri-Mr. Mears received from Mr. Harri-

Mr. Mears received from Mr. Harrison is:

There appeared in this morning's Oregonian a statement purporting to come from you to the effect that a great injustice had been done Mr. Webster by reason of my statements to the effect that the miniatures of Mrs. Mears and her two daughters, exhibited to me as having been painted by Mr. Webster, were not genuine freehand painted miniatures. The article contains the further statement, purporting to come from you, that "before he makes any statements of this kind anywhere vise he had better be sure of his proof or keep still."

That this subject may be determined once and for all, and an opportunity be furnished for establishing the truth or faisity of my comments upon Mr. Webster's ministures, I hereby offer to submit it to the decision of the American Association of Miniature Painters, the leading American authority on painting of this kind, or to any other recognized authority on the painting of miniatures whom you may select.

As a guarantee of my good faith in this consection I have this day deposited 2508 with Colonel C E. S.
