

BULL RUN RIGHTS BAR MT. HOOD LINE

Members of Council Refuse Grant Awaiting Road to Surrender Privilege.

MONKS CITES OBJECTION

Official Declares City Should Have Exclusive Control Over Water Supply — Company Denies Intent to Use River.

Councilman Monks said yesterday that the reason a few members of the City Council are opposing granting of a franchise to the Mount Hood Railway & Power Company to construct an extension to the Portland Railway, Light & Power Company's terminal in Mount Hood, is that the Mount Hood Company has held rights in the Bull Run reserve which the Councilmen are not satisfied have been fully surrendered.

Mr. Monks pointed out that the Mount Hood Company obtained water rights to the Bull Run and Sandy rivers and that at one time the city had only the right to use water for domestic purposes, and in the case of the Sandy River only to the use of the food waters.

"Several members of the Council desire to see the city's water rights in the Bull Run reserve fully protected," said Mr. Monks. "The city ought not to be bound by any company in its right to the water supply. Councilman Burgard and I shall ask City Attorney Grant for an opinion as to the city's rights in this case."

Company Denies Plot.

"We do not wish to be vindictive or to prevent needed improvements to the city. But at the same time the city ought to have exclusive right to its water supply."

Assertions that it has prior rights to the water of Bull Run River, and that it is using this advantage to force the city to grant its franchise and other rights, have been met with scorn by officials of the company.

The Mount Hood Company, say officials, does not intend to use Bull Run water for its hydraulic power plant, but, on the contrary, is spending about $20,000 for the construction of a tunnel through which it will divert the water of the Little Sandy River a mile out of its course and deposit it in the Bull Run far below the intake of the city water department.

The water then will be carried in the Bull Run for more than a mile to the power plant now being erected, where the same quantity that is placed in the stream will be removed for power generation.

The courts have held that a river is a common carrier, and that any person who deposits water in it at one place may remove the same amount at another place farther down the stream.

Rights Below Intake.

The Mount Hood Company has established rights to use Bull Run water below the city's intake, but as there is little left after the city's needs, the company has no intention of exercising this right. Provision to use the water of the Little Sandy has been made instead.

At the conclusion of a conference yesterday morning between Mayor Rushlight and Councilmen Burgard and Wallace, Deputy City Attorney Tomlinson was instructed to prepare two ordinances for presentation to the City Council, one providing that no water main under eight inches be laid hereafter within the city limits and the other providing that 4 per cent instead of 4 1/2 per cent be paid for the proposed public dock bonds.

BUILDING OWNERS ADVISED

E. J. Daly and J. G. Edwards Told by Inspector to Get Permit.

Building Inspector Plummer sent a letter yesterday to E. J. Daly and J. G. Edwards, owners of the building which Architect D. L. Williams started to erect at Belmont street and Grand avenue without having obtained a permit. The Building Inspector explains that it has been necessary to stop the work on the building because Mr. Williams did not make his plans conform to the building code before applying for his permit. The letter in part is:

"I feel that there is no reason why a permit should not be taken out, and cannot understand why there has been no attempt on the part of the architect to comply with the building code, and so arrange for the issuance of a permit."

It has been suggested to the architect that the proper thing for him to do was to change his plans to conform to our interpretation of the building code, to obtain a permit and start the work. If he or you object to any of the changes which will have to be made, an appeal to the board of appeals should be made, and then the matter can come up before it for final settlement. This will, of course, prevent the construction of the building pending the decision of the board of appeals, and is a good working arrangement.

The present situation is productive of considerable loss of time and money and is unsatisfactory to me and I feel very probably, unsatisfactory to you. Anything you can do to help straighten out this matter will be appreciated.

Municipal Judge Tazwell continued John S. Seed's case for the second time yesterday, setting it for trial Saturday. John H. Stevenson, who appeared as Seed's attorney, said suit would be filed against the city at once to obtain an injunction restraining the Building Inspector from interfering with work on the building.
