

ATWOOD ADDS 123 MILE LAP TO DASH

Birdman Darting From St. Louis to Atlantic Is Now in Cleveland.

"EASY CANTER," HE SAYS

"In Five Days New York Will See Me Hop Over Its Tallest Sky-scrapers and Glide Into Stand at Coney," He Declares.

RECORD OF ATWOOD'S FOURTH DAY IN AIR

10:29 A. M., left Toledo. 11:28 A. M., arrived Venice, O. 1:18 P. M., left Venice. 1:23 P. M., arrived Sandusky, O. 3:15 P. M., left Sandusky for Cleveland. 4:41 P. M., landed in Cleveland. Distance traveled on fourth day, 123 miles. Actual time flying, 2 hours 20 minutes. Distance from St. Louis, 643 miles. Total flying time, 13 hours 15 minutes. Distance before completing the 1200-mile trip to New York, 622 miles.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 17.—With another gain to his credit of 123 miles, Harry N. Atwood arrived in Cleveland late today in his aeroplane flight from St. Louis to New York. He covered the 123 miles between Toledo and Cleveland in an actual flying time of two hours, 20 minutes. "Just an easy canter," said Atwood, as he stepped from his biplane in a park on the lakeshore. "I almost went to sleep with the monotony of it. In five days New York will see me hop over its tallest skyscrapers and glide into the stand at Coney Island."

Birdman Has Gone 643 Miles.

The Bostonian has now traveled 643 miles from his starting point in St. Louis. He has still 557 miles to fly to reach New York. His total time actually in the air since he left St. Louis last Monday is 12 hours and 15 minutes.

Atwood's entrance into Cleveland was thrilling. Coming with the "up-hill" slant usual with him on approaching a city, the aviator soared to an altitude of 1500 feet, where, enveloped in the misty atmosphere, the biplane was barely visible.

That an aeronaut cannot quickly pick out the spot arranged for his landing in a strange city was again evidenced when Atwood descended at Edgewater Park, in the western part of the city, where Eucled Beach, 12 miles to the east, had been assigned to him.

Crowd Not Disappointed.

Not to disappoint the people, Atwood ascended and in 15 minutes covered the 12 miles over the city and landed safely. Leaving Toledo at 10:29 A. M., Atwood had spurted along the edge of Lake Erie at an altitude varying from 2000 to 4000 feet. He made intermediate landings at Venice and Sandusky, although his schedule called for only one.

For 20 miles after leaving Sandusky he steered his machine out over the lake. Finding the air currents over the lake too uncertain, he laid his course over the land and at Lorain resumed his regular route over the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern tracks. Between Toledo and Venice he flew 55 miles in 59 minutes, including time lost in searching for a landing place.

Harold F. McCook and other officers were directed to appear in the Illinois Circuit Court the first Monday in October.

The guests of wind that made flying dangerous yesterday were missing today instead there was a light but steady breeze directly off the lake and aviators said it helped rather than hindered the flights.

Annie, now dead three years, was set up as co-respondent. Both Thornton Hains, novelist and brother of Captain Hains, who was with him when the fatal shots were fired, and General Hains, the father, who makes his home near Sandy Hook, were in court in charge of the case.

Captain Hains began the action against his wife some time ago. Papers were served on her, though none of those in court today could tell where she is now.

MAN DRINKS CARBOLIC

"HERE'S MUD IN YOUR EYE," HIS LAST WORDS.

Wife Is Told That He Is Going to California to Look for Work. Ambulance Is Deathbed.

With the salutation, "Here's mud in your eye," G. E. Mitchell drank two ounces of carbolic acid in a drugstore at Grand avenue and Hawthorne avenue at 5:30 yesterday afternoon, before any of a half dozen persons standing nearby could knock the bottle from his hands. A Red Cross ambulance was summoned, but Mitchell died on the way to St. Vincent's Hospital.

Mitchell was 21 years old and lived with his wife and two children, aged 5 and 8 years, at 7123 Forty-first street Southeast, and was foreman at the Mount Scott Cemetery. His father, P. G. Mitchell, has a grocery store at Twenty-third and Irving streets and lives at 712 Hoyt street. His father was of the opinion that domestic trouble was responsible for the suicide, and Mrs. Mitchell said her husband was dependent because he had been out of employment for three weeks and worried because he could not obtain work.

She said he left home yesterday morning, taking $20, and said he was going to San Francisco to try to find work.

Mitchell represented to the druggist that he wanted a bottle of carbolic acid to use for disinfecting purposes. When the bottle was handed to him he hastily pulled the cork out and saluting those near him, drank the contents.

Patrolman E. Adams, traffic officer at the corner, and Patrolman Fuller, who happened to be passing, were hailed and poured alcohol and olive oil down the man's throat until an ambulance arrived. Mitchell was placed in the ambulance and started for St. Vincent's Hospital but died on the way. The ambulance then turned around and the body was taken to the coroner.

MEMORY IS SHORT

Roosevelt Says People Are Prone to Forget.

PANIC REAL 4 YEARS AGO

Doubt That Action in Steel Case Saved Country Would Have Been Greeted With Derision Then, Colonel Declares.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—Ex-President Roosevelt says in an article in the Outlook today on "The Steel Corporation and the Panic of 1907," that he has nothing to do with the hidden motives of the Steel Corporation. What concerned him then was the fact that the country was facing a panic and that he could act to save it.

"The purchase, as made, did not by itself, one way or the other, affect the status of the Steel Corporation, so far as the Sherman law was concerned, and his actions were open and he does not apologize for them.

"Most individuals have short memories," he says, but he recalls that in 1907 the wisdom of his course was not questioned.

Colonel Roosevelt begins by saying that no one need feel "either concern or hope" as to whether anything done by his Administration will be "discarded," because all was done in the open. As to the trust's real purpose, it was not his business, or in his power to search the "hidden domain of motive."

T. R. SCARED, SAYS BRYAN

"Peerless One" Declares Trusts Forced Him to Sanction Merger.

URBANA, Ill., Aug. 17.—William J. Bryan, speaking at a Chautauqua, declared former President Roosevelt was "intimidated" by the steel trust in consenting to the Tennessee Coal & Iron merger. "Placing the most favorable construction on Roosevelt's own words before the Congressional investigating committee," Bryan said, "isn't it a pitiful fact that such an organization as the steel trust can be so all-powerful in this country as to walk into the office of the President of the United States and intimidate him with the fear of a panic into allowing it to carry out its own designs?"
