CITY WANTS LINE'S RIGHTS TO RIVER

Mount Hood Road's Franchise Held Up Pending Negotiations With Company.

LITTLE SANDY IS SOUGHT

Superintendent Dodge Believes Bull Run Pipe Will Be Inadequate in Five Years-Railway's Attorney Would Hold Fast.

In an effort to get the Mount Hood Railway & Power Company to give the city the right to all waters in the Little Sandy River except flood waters, the committee on judiciary and elec-tions of the City Council, composed of Councilmen Joy. Wilhelm and Jennings. decided yesterday not to take action until the next meeting of the commit-tee concerning the granting of a franchise to the company for laying a track on Villa avenue in Montavilla.

The company desires to lay a track at this point, to be used by the Portland Railway, Light & Power Company in running its Montavilla cars to a connection with the Mount Hood line. that passengers may be transferred at that point.

City's Water in View.

Superintendent Dodge, of the water department, said that in ten years the new Bull Run pipeline just being completed will not be adequate, with the other line now in use, to supply the city with water, provided the city con-tinues at its present rate of growth. It will be practically impossible to ob-tain much more water from Bull Run, he said, without diverting the waters of the Little Sandy into it, which he ught the city ought to obtain the

Under the present arrangement the company has the right to the use of the natural flow of the Little Sandy and the Big Sandy, and the city has the right to the flood waters of the Little Sandy. The water of the Big Sandy is not fit for drinking purposes, declares Superintendent Dodge. The average daily flow of the Little Sandy, according to Engineer Clarke, of the water department, is about 11,000,000 gallons, not quite half the present daily supply of Portland through the Mount Hood Company agreed with the city to contribute $50.-990 toward a reservoir to hold the flood waters of the Little Sandy, when flood waters of the Little Sandy, when the city desires to build one. This promise was obtained in ex-Mayor Simon's administration. But in return for this new franchise the Councilmen and City Attorney Grant believe the company should give the city the natural flow of the Little Sandy, and take the flood waters for itself, it already having the natural flow of the Big Sandy. To this C. W. Fulton, attorney representing the corporation, would representing the corporation, would not consent yesterday. He insisted that the company he represents is spending its millions for the erection of a power plant and a reservoir at the headwaters of the Big Sandy covering 200 acres. He said the company will need the waters of both streams with-in five years. On the other hand, it He said the company wil pointed out that the corporation so far has done no more than lay the foundation for the power that the wooden flume it has built is apparently of temporary construction.

is more uncertainty. Boston will probably put in an invitation, and Minneapand Kansas City are also in the field.

London Spoke Cheered.

The afternoon session was filled with lively discussion. In the reading of telegrams and messages from clubs of Eastern cities, a letter from Harvey Wheeler, of Boston, sending his good wishes to the convention, was followed by a great burst of applause when the secretary mentioned, after the closer of the reading, that through Mr. Wheeler's agency a Rotary Club had been organized in London, so that the American organization could now boast of affiliations across the sea.

The report of E. L. Skeel, of Seattle, chairman of the committee on civic activities, brought forth a surprise in the form of a long and keen debate. in which the California delegate appeared to be arrayed squarely in opposition to all other members. Mr. Skeel's recmmendation that Rotary Clubs should take up discussion of subjects of civic development at their meetings for the information and cultivation of its members evoked approval from the large majority of the delegates. A motion had already been put to have the report of the committee adopted, when the California delegation, under the leadership of the representatives from San Francisco, suddenly attacked it with sharp speeches, declaring it was foreign to the original purpose and injurious to the prestige of the associations for them to mingle in the accu ment of other civic questions. Such work, they declared, should be left to the Commercial Clube of the cities. Robert Robertson, the sole delegate from Oakland, Cal., was chief among the attacking party. His speeches were brief and witty.

Opposition Only Joke.

In a few moments, however, most of the delegates rallted from their surprise at the unexpected opposition, warmed to the defense of the resolution with flery speeches and called for a vote to put the opposing delegation utterly to rout The vote was unanimous in favor of the resolution. In the pause of surprise that followed the bailot, a member of the Ban Francisco delegation explained that the whole thing had been a con-spiracy on their part to bring about a n them. L. B. Thresher led the closing discus-ion of the afternoon session, on the uestion of whether the National Asacciation should have an official period-lcal. The meeting was adjourned at 6 and convened again at 7:30 to give Mr. Thresher an opportunity to complete his argument. The entire convention agreed with his suggestion that the periodical, the National Rotarian, or one similar to it, should be continued as the of-ficial monthly organ of the association. L. B. Mettler, of Kansas City, led a discussion in which the assembly de-cided in favor of a resolution that in future the Rotary associations should not withhold their plan of organization from publicity, and should work toward the elimination of the features in it which make it resemble in some re-spects a secret organization. The meeting last night was followed with an informal reception by the Portland Commercial Club to the visiting delegates and their friends.

Business seems to all lightly on the shoulders of the Rotarians. The assembly yesterday comprised perhaps the largest representation of strong business men from all parts of the United States that has ever been brought together in one room in Portland. While their business session was on they accomplished an enormous amount of routine work, but after its close they larked like boys all the way, to the headquaretrs, and their most dignified members joined in the sport of decoratmembers joined in the sport of decorat-ing one another's backs with the Pan-ama-Pacific buttons that the San Franisco delegates had scattered among

TAFT'S TOUR UNDECIDED

President Not Yet Certain Whether He Will Visit Portland.

A response was received yesterday by H. Beckwith, president of the Commercial Club, to the invitation sent last week to President Taft, inviting him to accept the hospitality of the club in Portland in his coming tour of the Western states.

President Taft declares that the itinerary for the coming tour is not yet settled but that if this city is included in his route he will be pleased to conider the invitation.

Arrangements for his entertainment here will depend upon later informa-tion concerning the plans for the tour, which is expected within a short time.

Miles of hard-surface streets and boulevards are splendid for automobile owners, but how does the poor devil that had his home eaten up to pay for them feel about it? This is not a theory but a condition that actually exists today. Some time ago I called at the Auditor's office in Portland to inquire as to the methods used in making the same protection for the little whom I was talking that the regulation was very simple. He said that th

A general squabble in which charges were hurled in every direction and which for a time threatened to break out in a free-for-all fight, culminated yesterday's session of the graft investigation before the County Court, in which County Detective Maher is accused of conspiring with F. L. Perkins, a newspaper reporter, of forcing "protection money" from North End saloonkeepers and others.

After two Frenchmen had toldson th witness stand that Fercot, one of the alleged supporters of the protection fond, had admitted that he had perjured himself in denying his connec tion with the case, Judge Cleeton announced that unless the prosecution had something more of a substantial nature to support the charges against Maher, he did not care to hear any further testimony. Attorney Fouts said that he had other witnesses he intended to produce. Then Attorney Clark, on the other side, said that the Frenchmen had all perjured themselves on the trial and he suggested that all be indicted on charges of perjury, that the truth might be brought out.

He said he was attempting for his paper to get at the facts in regard to graft ru-mors and said he had conferred with Captain Bailey, of the police depart-ment, and obtained from him a list of places at which to look for informa-tion. against Maher.

Henry Libert, a French insurance agent, testified that he was at Seaside the morning of August 17 and visited Fercot. He said that Fercot was not ill, as had been reported in Portland, and that he had told him (Libert) that he had had too much notoriety out of the local investigation and for that reason wanted to get out of it. Fercot, he said, told him Perkins and Deputy District Attorney Frank (Libert) that he had had too much notoriety out of the local investigation and for that reason wanted to get out of it. Fercot, he said, told him Perkins and Deputy District Attorney Frank Collier had visited him at 2 o'clock that morning and obtained an affidavit in the case.

Denial Advised, Testified.

Libert said Fercot declared he had denied everything in the affidavit and that he had done so at the instigation of Ed Donovan. A. Methivier, another Frenchman, who was with Libert, told a similar story and declared that Fer-cot had denied that he had contributed to the jackpot merely to escape noto-riety at Seaside where, Methivier said, Fercot has a good name.

At the conclusion of the hearing Judge Cleeton announced that nothing whatever had been brought out so far against Maher and said he would hear against Maner and said he would heat no more testimony unless it was against Maher. Attorney Fouts prom-ised to produce witnesses against Ma-her and the case went over until next week, the date to be set later.

PAVING ABUSE MARKED

CHARTER CLAUSE TO AID SMALL HOME OWNERS ASKED.

Condition Which Permits of Improvement Assessments Absorbing Property Are Deplored.

ST. JOHNS, Or., Aug. 21 .- (To the Editor.)-I would like to call the attention of the chartef commissions (both kinds) to the following clipped from The Oregonian of Aug. 17, 1911,

At the meeting of the Water Board yes-terday T. B. Wilcox, one of the members, suggested that the City Council should re-scind about half the ordinances which have been passed for the hard-surfacing of streets. Mayor Rushlight concurred in this view.

It was pointed out that these improvements are in many instances forced on property owners. Mayor Rushlight told of a young man of Monfavilla who visited him a few days ago and complained that he was paying for his home on the installment plan, that it cost $2500 and he had paid all but $1000. The street improvement cut $350, and he could bond the place for only $300, and was unable to raise the difference of $250 to meet the street assessment. The Mayor said he was helpless in that case. He told of another instance where a property owner turned over 21 lots to the street contractor, because the lots were worth only $300 each, while the street assessment was $400 a lot.

"The contractor tried to sell them to me," said the Mayor.

If this is true, and there is no rea-

If this is true, and there is no reason to doubt it, is it highway robbery or just plain stealing? Was the man that lost his 21 jots "benefited" by the street improvement; will the contractor get a judgment against him for the other $100 per lot? And the young man at Montavilla—his lot assessed at $300, street improvement, $535, cannot raise the $235 cash, with the result that the property will be sold. But of course, he can rent it from the contractor, or whoever buys it. I can-not help saying that a City Engineer who will plan and recommend such an improvement as suitable and nocessary, and a City Council that will accept such plan and order by resolutions such mprovements made, are in my opinio (whatever that is worth) incompetent to the last degree to hold the offices for which they draw salaries.

And these two cases cited are only two out of hungreds that could be cited in the City of Portland. Many small home owners now will be rentera soon, because of the practical confisca-tion of their little homes by the cost of street and sewer work.

Now how can this be prevented in future? By putting the following clause in the new city charter:
Limit of Assessment—No lot, part Multnoman County, Oregon, except upon the express consent of the owner of such land or his duly authorized agent, first obtained in writing.

This little clause in the charter will do more to ourb the activities of the do more to curb the activities of the paving trust (if there is any) than any other thing that can be done. This clause, it is fair to say, is a part of the charter of St. Johns and while it has at times been the chause of delay in street improvements, it has also prevented confiscation of property or hardship on the little home owner.

An attempt was made to change this clause in our charter two years ago but the voters refused to change it.

but the voters refused to change it.
And perhaps you may ask: What concern is it to the people of St. Johns what is in the new charter of Portland? Just this: The voters of St. Johns voted by a majority of 66 votes to annex to Portland and it is likely that the voters of St. Johns will be voters in Portland when the new charfer is submitted to the people for ratification

FEATHER HARVEST LURES

Young Women Employed at Oaks Watch Ostriches Avidly.

Young women employed at the Oaks have learned that it is almost time for the harvesting of a crop of feathers at the ostrich farm, and every girl and woman at the Oaks has been plotting and planning to get an ostrich plume from this harvest.

The ostriches at the Oaks are all prime birds, and yield good and valuable plumes every eight months. The birds were last plucked early in the year, and their manager is making preparations for another gathering of the long feathers. Young women em-ployed at the Oaks have but one fear, however, and that is that the birds will not be plucked until after the farm closes for the season.

So far Miss Tinty Broadwick, the girl aeronaut, is the only young woman of the Oaks family who feels sure of a "feather." Miss Broadwick says she will get one, even if she has to drop Write or telegraph for reservations,
