DEED TO RIGHTS ASKED

Divided responsibility is one of the serious objections to the abstract system in handling title matters. If you suffer loss through a defective real estate title, it may be the fault of one or a number of persons—a responsibility that is therefore difficult to locate.

In relation to this statement I would respectfully say that it is true, as Mr. Fulton says, that the Mount Hood Railway Company's rights to the waters of the Bull Run River are of no value to that company, who object to them or can there be on the part of that company the making of a deed in fee simple of its rights to such water to the City of Portland.

The ownership of rights of water below a spillway governs the flow of the same water above the spillway, and to obviate any misunderstanding, and to settle them at this time by a deed to the city.

It is the brightest jewel which "gems the city's crown" and no man nor company of men should be allowed to hold rights to one drop of the water either above or below the spillway of the city, and the right to the water of the Mount Hood Railway are not extinguished now and forever, the City of Portland will see the day when it will see the necessity of the water.

The Bull Run water system is peculiarly and intimately interwoven into the general welfare of this city, and the Bull Run River, which is the source of the water, is the lifeblood of the city.

The authority from the City Council granted in ordinance No. 1909 and the deeds from J. W. Miller and W. A. Mooney, L. W. Sherman and C. E. White, the latter being the leader. They made the ascent August 15. All the women reached the top of the peak.

Will the Mount Hood Railway Company give such a deed to the city? Respectfully, HARRY LANE.
