DELAY IS ENCOUNTERED

With Return of Judge Bronaugh to City, Sub-Committee Plans to Take Up Drafting of Tentative Commission Document.

Little progress is being made by either of the two committees appointed to draft a commission form of charter for submission to the voters of Portland at

At its last meeting the committee appointed by ex-Mayor Simon authorized the appointment of a special committee of three members, consisting of Judge E. C. Bronaugh, chairman of the committee; George B. Cellars and William F. Woodward, with instructions to draft F. Woodward, with instructions to draft and submit back to the full committee a tentative commission charter. This subcommittee, owing to the absence from the city of Judge Bronaugh, has not met. "I understand Judge Bronaugh will return tomorrow," said Mr. Woodward, one of the committee, yesterday, "and if he does the committee will get busy just as soon as he is ready. I am estisfied that if the three members of the committee are left alone for one week we can in that time prepare a tentative draft of a charter adjusting tentative draft of a charter adjusting the present document to a commission plan of government. When this has been done, all that will remain to be done ington. will be the consideration of minor changes, which can be disposed of in a The n the proposed revised charter. This will greatly facilitate and expedite the work

In the meantime, the various subco mittees of the other charter revision committee, appointed by the East Side Business Men's Club, are busily engaged threshing out the particular part of the chater assigned to them. This committee will hold another meeting at the City Hall tomorrow night, when it is expected a number of the subcommittees will be prepared to make definite reports to their associates on the general committee.

Score of Newcomers Who Advertise Train Passage for Sale Are Saved by Ignorance, Railroads Not to Prosecute.

An irresistible desire to settle in Oregon and ignorance of the statutes of this state yesterday combined to make a party of newcomers from the Middle West liable to fine and imprisonment because they advertised for sale in The Oregonian the unused por-tion of their round-trip tickets. There were 21 persons in the party and the advertisement described an equal num-ber of tickets good for passage East to ber of tickets good for passage East to various points from Galveston, Texas, to Duluth, Minn. In view of the circumstances, the innocent violators of the anti-ticket-scalping law will not be prosecuted by any of the railroads directly interested.

The personnel of this party of homeseekers has not been learned but the sale of their return trip tickets was advertised in The Sunday Oregonian. Under the provisions of the law enacted by the Oregon Legislature several years ago, the sale or transfer or the use of any railroad ticket by other than the person to whom it was originally the person to whom it was originally sold is prohibited absolutely. The same statute provides fines and imprisonment for any person selling or attempting to sell any such tickets. Agent's Duty to Watch.

To guard against possible violations of this statute, the various transcontinental railroads maintain at the Union Depot a joint agent whose buslness it is to validate at this point all round-trip tickets sold in the East

Having advertised the sale of 21 tickets to different destinations in the East, the members of the party of Ore-gon homeseekers will find that their plan of disposing of their tickets in the open market has been blocked.

Rail Officials on Guard,

The railroad officials by this time have obtained the respective numbers of the tickets and any purchaser will find that his investment was one, for the minute he offers the ticket for validation at the Union Depot, it will be confiscated promptly. Under the Oregon statute the only Under the Oregon statute the only way regularly to dispose of a railroad ticket or an unused portion of a ticket is to present it at the local ticket office of the company over whose line it was issued. The company, in case of a round-trip ticket, will refund to the holder in cash the difference between the amount paid for the ticket and the fare one way from the point of pur-chase to the point where it is offered
