Girl Tells of Her Love.

"I first met Dr. McDavit in his office when I was having my teeth attended to," said Miss McDonald. "He was always very nice to me. One day he told me that if I bit him while he was filling a tooth, he would kiss me. I did not bite him, but the next day he told me to press down to make an impression in wax. I did so, and it pinched his finger. Then he threw his arms about my neck and kissed me twice. "He told me that he loved me, and I loved him, and after the third visit to his office, I made no attempt to resent his caresses. He promised me that he would get a divorce and marry me, and it seemed that I should be very happy always."

Several women in the courtroom be-gan to sob at this point in the testi-mony, and Judge Hanna ordered court adjourned till 2 P. M. Then Miss Mcnald took up her story again.

Because I didn't wish my parents to learn about my disgrace," she said, "I decided to go away. My father and mother had warned me against Dr. McDavit, but I believed in him. I told them that he was my best

When court adjourned, D. McDonald, father of the girl, rushed at the prisoner. Deputies preyented him from landing the blow which he had aimed at McDavit's head. In an instant, the courtroom was in an uproar, but the deputies whisked McDavit out of the room and away to jail before the demonstration took serious form.

Scattle Residents Are Restrained From Interfering With Operation of Suburban Line.

SEATTLE, Aug. 31.-United States District Judge Cornelius H. Hanford today continued the temporary injunction granted last week to Augustus S Peabody, of Chicago, trustee for the bondholders, restraining the City of Seattle and the residents of Rainier Valley, a suburpan district, from interfering with the Seattle, Renton

The attorneys for the city will be given an opportunity tomorrow to ar-gue a motion to abate the injunction. The motion to abate is urged by the city on the grounds that me action brought in Mr. Peabody's name is not brought in good faith, but in collusion with the Seattle, Renton & Southern Railway for the purpose of evading the decision of the state courts, which have already decided the point at issue in favor of the patrons of the road.

The temp rary injunction issued by Judge Hanford last week caused such a storm of protest that a mass meeting was held, at which the court was denounced in incendiary speeches and an nounced in incendiary speeches and an effigy of Judge Hanford was hnged in the street. At First and Burnside streets, Reid was crossing the street and stepped from behind another automobile in front of the car driven by Costner. The automobile knocked Reid down and the front wheels ran over his legs. A crowd saw the acci-dent and helped lift the heavy car off Reid.

COURT WILL NOT PUNISH

Prisoner Sees Double Meaning in Ruling and Is Deeply Puzzled Thereat-Approaching Marriage Good Excuse.

CHICAGO, Aug. 31.—(Special.)—Otto Klopke was discharged from custody in the Sheffield-avenue Police Court to-day when he told Municipal Judge Delan that he was drunk last night be-cause he was about to be married. "This court," said Judge Delan, "will not attempt to punish any man who is about to be married."

Klopke was charged with disorderly conduct. The policeman who arrested him testified that he had been drinking heavily and was unable to steer a straight course over the billowy, heaving sidewalks. ing sidewalks.

After several attempts to throw his helm up into the wind and bring his storm-tossed bark into port, he was falling away rapidly before the wind and was in imminent danger of capsizing when the officer towed him up to station.

"Well, judge, you see, it was this way," said the penitent when he was asked what he had to say for himself, "I am going to be married, and I was just celebrating."

"Did you say that you were going to be married?" the judge asked. "Going to be married." Klopke re-

Thereupon the judge made his cryptic ruling.

"Say," said the dazed Klopke, as he was led out of the courtroom, "what did the judge mean? Did he think I ought to get married or that I was going to get enough punishment after I was married?"

Still sorrowfully shaking his head.

Still sorrowfully shaking his head, Klopke started homeward in deep thought, and at last reports he had not yet solved the problem.

NAVAL BATTLE PRACTICE WILL BE PROLONGED.

Be Used and Fighting in Storm to Be Part of Game.

Maximum Range of Nine Miles to

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—At dawn tomorrow the Atlantic fleet, the real power of the American Navy, will begin its spectacular Summer practice off the Chesapeake Capes, under simu-lated battle conditions. Realizing that future combats will be fought at great distances, not a shot will be fired during the two weeks of the practice at a range less than 9000 yards. The maximum ranges of the practice will be 16,000 yards, or more than nine miles.

Instead of holding the practice for two or three days, as has been the custom, the Navy Department has extended the programme over two weeks, that the battleships may be sure to encounter rough weather. It is argued that the sailor cannot choose his time or conditions of battle and for that reason the elementary exercise of the past has been abandoned for two great battle practices in the open sea each year.

Features of the exercises will be tests with box kites, representing aeroplanes, and experimental work in replanes, and experimental work in repelling night attacks by torpedo vessels and submarines.

Before the practice closes the Dreadnought Delaware will make a second attempt to demolish the San Marcos (the old Texas) and end this ship's existence. Only a few days ago she was almost shattered by the Delaware's 12-inch rifles at ranges of 15,-900 and 16,000 yards.
