CITY CLUB TO CO-OFFRATE WITH GRES-max.-One of the results of the an-nual trip to Gresham last week by the East Bide Business Men's Club is an agreement by the club to co-operate with the Gresham Fair Association in future more than in the past. The Portland club will undertake to in-crease interest in the annual races and track meet at Gresham Lewis Shat-tuck, of Gresham Commercial Club, who received the Portland business men, expressed his approciation of the who received the Portland business men, expressed his appreciation of the visit, and business men noted the great development of that suburb. Many who went there for the first time, expressed surprise over the beauty of Powell Valley of which Gresham is the center. Business men who at-tended the fair believe that a closer relationship will be developed be-tween the suburb and the city through the wenowed nublic market. the proposed public market.

New Bills Open at the Vaudeville Houses

Orpheum.

THAT off-quoted "picture from life's other side" takes on a real value and becomes an understandable thing at the Orpheum this week when the audience is given a birdseye view of the workings of a police court on the sudience is given a birdseys view of the workings of a police court on senience day. For a vaudeville achievement the dramatic worth of the production is stupendous. In theme it concerns the woes and sorrows, dreams and joys and loves of the folk in the underworld. With a fidelity that grips, the story is unfolded. Twenty-three characters occupy the stage for almost an hour. Three scenes are shown-first, the courtroom with its judge, officers, re-porters, the hangers-on and the pris-oners, the insures, a dops-field, Slip-pery Jake, awaiting sentance, his sweetheart, Dago Annie, brazen and loud; two fighting beligerants, a woman shoplifter, and the innocent man, who is railroaded to the peniten-tiary through political intrigue. A second scene shows the Bridge of Sighs, which connects the pris-on's interior. Truly a sermon on social problems, the production sustains abiding interest throughout. In addition to this big act, jest, music and scong are executered generabiding interest throughout. In addition to this big act, jest, music and song are scattered gener-ously in the bill. Two dusky charm-ers are the Nichols Sisters, burnt-cork dusky, not really ebon. In stiffly-slarched white frocks, surrounded by wide other scheme the two little mulds wide pink sashes, the two little maids frisk about, exchanging lively badi-nage, and introducing cheerful dittles. Charles and Fannie Van have a novel little sketch, "A Case of Emer-

Charles and Fannie Van have a novel little sketch, "A Case of Emer-gency," that is a case of laughter as well. Charles, in the role of a stage carpenter, steals another man's job long enough to find out he isn't in-tended as a "helper" for Fannie's vaudsville act. In the settling of dif-ficulties a strike of the stage em-ployes becomes imminent, when in charles gets back his job and peace is restored. Their repartee is scream-ingly funny. Another man-and-giri act is put over by Bulter Haviland and Alice Thornton, who have a lot of fresh patter and nonsensical lines woven about their roles as an insur-rings at the Theater." Maston and Murray, another team, man-and-giri, open the bill with an indifferently poor collection of subga and chatter-most of it old. The Four fuos a deal of slapstick stuff.

Pantages.

THERE'S class to the whole programme at Pantages this week. Spectacular doesn't issoribe the feats of the three Dean brothers, who have chosen to the their bodies into endless knots for the pleasure of the vaude-ville-loving public. Young and good-looking and exceedingly elever, these boys have a future as contortionists. A laugh-extorter, captivating from start to finish, is the little Western one-act drama, "Bed Res." Helen Le Sagel takes the part of a "schoolmarm," Sagel takes the part of a "schoolmarm, who enjoys the much-demonstrated af-fections of the County Sheriff and the local parson. The audience also en-joys them before the playlet ends. In the disguise of "Hed like," a sort of terrible Turk, as it were, the Sheriff, Edward de Corsia, interrupts the woo-ing of the sanctimonious suitor, Fred I Lewis and fun enues.

ing of the sanctimonious suitor. Fred I. Lewis, and fun ensues. Minnie Bernhardt's living Marion-ettes deserve mention in the review of the week's programme. Impersonations of thilian Russell and Carnes, done by Antonio Stokes, are depecially good. No act can be said to be less worthy of praise than another. However, Keel-er and Don are screams in their pan-tomime juggling act. John P. Reed, the monologist, is just what he is billed—a prince of story-tellers—and the Doric Musical Trio en-trance with fun-making songs.
