Portland Club Guest of Governor in Visit to Institutions at Salem.

CONVICTS APPLAUD JURIST

Judge Morrow of Circuit Court Is Speaker at Penitentiary-Party Has Luncheon at Oregon Hospital for Insane.

SALEM, Or., Oct. i.—(Special.)—Bent on seeing with their own eyes and hearing with their own ears what is being done in Oregon's institutions for convicts, insane, deaf, dumb and blind, and for the youth who may sometime reform, the Progressive Business Men's Club of Portland yesterday passed the day as guests of Governor West and his official family at Salem.

The party, 163 strong, which boarded a special Oregon Electric train at the Jefferson-street station. Portland, at 9 o'clock, was augmented to 100 by the time the Penitentiary was impected. This was the first place visited. Warden Curtis plicted the visitors through the foundry, machine shop and other departments, ending with a visit to the prison chapel.

It was here that an incident rarely seen within prison walls occurred when 400 cenvicts applanded heartily a judge whose duty it had undoubtedly been to sentence some of his auditors to prison. It was an able address from a judicial standpoint which Judge Morrow, of the Circuit bench, delivered to the prisoners following a greeting from Eugene Brookings, president of the club. Jurists Often Majudged Declared.

Juriata Often Minjudged Declared.

Jurists Often Misjudged Declared.

"The judiciary of the state is often misjudged," said Judge Morrow, "and too often there is a feeling among those involved in various court cases that the judge has "it in" for the man on trial. This feeling is unfortunate, for the judiciary wants to be fair, wants to see the 'square deal' played, and a feeling of justice to all should be at all times held by the judge who is trying a case. The judge did not make the laws, but he, by his position, is required to administer them. He has his rules to go by and those must be carried out to the letter. Of course, like us all, the judge is only human, and like sill humans, may sometimes make mistakes, but not intentionally.

"There is no desire on his part to make it hard for the man on trial, and I would like, in closing, to impress make it hard for the man on trial, and I would like, in closing, to impress the fact that the jurist today is trying to lift up, not to pull down. In my own case I have granted leniency and parcies in some cases which, to me, seemed to warrant the action, and few times have I regretted such actions. But if we don't play fair how can we expect Tair play T. Following Judge Morrow's address.

expect Tair play?"
Following Judge Morrow's address,
Rev. Albert Ehrgott, pastor of the East Side Baptist Church, Portland, was asked to deliver a short sermon to the prisoners and visitors. The latter were in the gallery of the chapel, while the main floor was occupied by the convicia. Ehrgott took for his subject
"The Man Who's Down," his text being but two words from the New Testament, "And Peter." His talk was to the point and his audience showed its the point and his audience showed its appreciation, the prisoners entering into the spirit of the occasion by the unusual proceedure of prolonged applause at its close.

Luncheon Had at Asylum. From the prison the Portland visit-ors went to the hospital for the insane, where luncheon was served under the direction of Mrs. Lee Steiner, wife of the Superintendent of the asplum, sided by a corps of young women. Afterwards Judge Morrow, representing the club, asked Governor West to speak.

The Governor thanked the visitors for giving him the opportunity of be-ing their host for the day, as, he said. ing their host for the day, as, he said, he wanted the people of Oregon to realize what work the institutions, which they support are doing, and where their money is going. He barely mentioned his parole system, saying relative to this, that he hoped for the best, but wanted the people "to see for themselves." State Treasurer Kay followed Governor West and pointed out that the asylum for the insane last week made its high mark for the number of per-sons cared for, with 1648 patients, over sons cared for, with 1648 patients, over whom 208 employes of the state keep watch. He said that the people of Oregon fall to understand what a task it is to handle and care for so large a number of patients and it is only through visits at the state institutions that they can learn. Speaking in behalf of Dr. Steiner, he extended a general invitation to the Oregonians to visit the asylum that they might become better acqualitied with the state come better acquainted with the state

Whether the new order will stand with the interpretation of the law is

DITCH PROJECT APPROVED Umatilla Brainage Plans Call for

$35,000 Expenditure. STANFIELD, Or, Oct. 8.—(Special.) Plans and specifications and an estimate of the cost of building the ditch for the Umatilia drainage district have been submitted to the land owners of the district. They call for the expenditure of over $25,000 for the construction of the ditch and its maintenance for a period of three years. These reports were filed by the board of directors of the district with the County Court and by them approved. It is expected that actual construction work will be begun by November 1. In order properly to drain the lands it has been found necessary to build a larger ditch than at first thought necessary, the plans calling for a ditch from the city to the west line of the Page orchard six feet wide on the bottom and approximately ten feet deep. Through the city there will be a covered drain with a 30-inch concrete tile. It has been found necessary to construct the ditch ten feet deep in order thoroughly to drain the lands.

When completed this ditch will drain

STUDENTS BUILD Arrest Threatened Unless Y. M. C. A. Repairs Street Premises.

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugens, Or., Oct. 8.—(Special.)—Exhibiting a flash of that human quality locally characterised as "Oregon Spirit," a squadron of university Y. M. C. A. men skipped their Saturday chores yester-flay in order to forestall threatened condemnation proceedings against the condemnation proceedings against the Y. M. C. A. building lot adjoining the campus.

For some time arrest had been threatened unless sidewalk repairs were made at once, but, determined to save the $1890 now on hand for the bungalow fund, the men decided to build the cement sidewalk themselves, and spent the entire day yesterday with the mortar board and tools of masonry.

The joint Christian associations own a splendid 100 by 160-foot building location on the corner of Thirteenth and Kimeaid streets, where association homes are to be erected.

Public Service Commissioner

Olympia as Result of Apoplexy. For 20 Years He Was Leader in State Politics.

OLYMPIA, Wash, Oct. 8.—H. A. Pair-child, chairman of the public service commission, died of apoplexy at his home today. He was taken ill in the night, after retiring in better health apparently than he had enjoyed since first stricken with acute indigestion a week ago.

Mr. Fairchild has played a prominent part in Washington politics for 20 years, serving as a legislator from Whatcom County, Prosecuting Attorney and as chairman of the county Republican committee at Bellingham, He was appointed chairman of the State Railroad Commission for six years in 1905, when it was organized by Governor Mead and was last June appointed by Governor Hay as chairman of the new Public Service Commission, the law creating which he drafted.

His work in connection with the establishment of railroad valuations, the reduction of grain rates, the reduction of rare rates and the rates on the Tacoma-Seattle interurban and other big cases won him a wide reputation.

J. C. Lawrence, who has been asso-i since the commission was organized, said today: "He was absolutely honest on all public questions and I never met his equal for work nor his intellectual peer for grasping great problems."

He is survived by a widow, son and an aged mother, a brother and a sister. The funeral arrangements have not been made. He was 53 years old.

CAPTAIN BERGMAN QUITS

Henderson to Succeed to Head of Umpqua Livesaving Crew.

of Coble Murder-Judge Smiles at Antics.

OLYMPIA. Oct. 8.—(Special.)—Despite the fact that father is on trial for his life, the five little children of George H. Wilson, the man accused of George H. Wilson, the man accused of murdering Mr. and Mrs. Archie Coble in their home at Hainter on the hight of July 10, 1911, play about the courtroom. Their mother has to take them into court as she herself is in attendance and she says she has no one to care for them, as all are small and have to be watched continually.

Saturday afternoon the little girl of saturday alternoon the little garl of about 3 years, nearly broke up the trial for a few minutes when she solemnly marched across the floor in-side of the railing with a man's hat jammed down over her little head. She jammed down over her little head. She had been playing about the gate that bars the public from where the attorneys sit. The gate swings both ways and she passed out, picked up the hat of an interested male spectator who paid no attention to her and then gained the center of the floor before any one noticed her. Judge Mitchell had to rap long and loud to restore order, but he himself had a smile in his eyes as he watched her. The presence of the children adds much pathos to the trial. The family is poor and while the children are clean and neatly dressed they show the need of attention.
