When I began my campaign of personal advertising, I expected to live up to my announcements fairly and squarely, and I have carried out this plan to the letter. I have no connection with any "medical company" or "institute," and I assume the entire responsibility of treating and curing my patients, as wellias all financial matters. I have more money invested in my establishment than all other Portland advertising doctors, "com-panies," etc., combined, and I will give $500 to any charity if this is not so. Watch for my next announcement exposing how the extra-charge-for-medicine "graff" is worked by the quack. I am in this war against medical humbug to the finish, and will not be through as long as there is a single quack left among the advertising doctors. Thelieve a physician has just as much right to advertise his specialty as a bank has to publish its financial standing, or a minister to announce the subject of his Sunday sermon; and I also believe that to get the confidence of the people he should be the first to fight against quackery and humbug in medical advertising.
