

BRADY KEEPS TAFT NAUGHT TO HIMSELF

Playing Judicious Politics, ex-Governor Relegates Gooding to Slow Train.

WOOLMAN MISSES SPECIAL

Man for Whom Chief Executive Has Once Campaigned Is Given No Opportunity for Private Talk in Own Territory.

BY C. E. ARNEY. BOISE, Idaho, Oct. 12.—(Special.)—If any local politician in Idaho can be said to have made any political gains out of the hurried trip of the President through the state, that distinction belongs strictly to ex-Governor James H. Brady.

He mentioned his friends as among those who then faced the President and referred with pride to his own services as the executive officer of Idaho for the two preceding years.

At the rear of the crowd during the complimentary remarks on the occasion of his departure from Boise, Brady was seen to smile broadly.

Gooding Invited Guest. In the dining-room this morning, Gooding had, in Brady's presence, accepted the invitation of the President to join the party on the trip to Boise.

It was probably one of the disappointments of ex-Governor Gooding's political life that he missed the train first through an innate desire to show his appreciation of the President who had when a cabinet officer traveled to Idaho five years previously to add several shaves of the paprika to this already "triple" mistake.

KLAMATH FALLS MAN DIES

Native of Forestville, N. Y., Taken by Typhoid Fever.

KLAMATH FALLS, Or., Oct. 12.—(Special.)—Joseph G. Pierce, aged 44, a resident prominent here for years, died Thursday, after six weeks' illness of typhoid fever, the fourth victim within a month of the disease. He was a native of Forestville, N. Y., and came to Oregon in 1857, engaged in the Puget Sound country in the timber business until 1884, when he came to Klamath Falls.

The late Congressman A. C. Hopkins, of Pennsylvania, his uncle, and Mr. Pierce acquired 40,000 acres of timber in the Jenny Creek country, in which Mr. Pierce had a large interest up to the time of his death. At one time he owned the Weekly Express, out of which the present Daily Pioneer Press developed.

His wife and son survive him. They, and a brother, Charles H. Pierce, of Astoria, will accompany the body to Forestville, N. Y., for burial.
