Two years ago, Peery, who was making his home with Nelson Stock, of Ostrander, a village four miles north of Kelso, bought a hill of goods amounting to $12 from a Kelso firm, tendering a check for $24, bearing the forged signature of Mr. Stock, in payment. SALEM, Or., Oct. 12.—(Special.)—It is becoming more and more apparent that the State Purchasing Board is dissatisfied, not only with the operation of the law of the last Legislature creating that Board, but with C. D. Fraser, its present secretary. There is a possibility of a change being made in that position within the next few weeks.

Members of the Board practically have reached the conclusion that the new law is not a money-saving propo-have reached the conclusion that the new law is not a money-saving proposition. In the first place an appropriation of $7500 for the two years to handle the work of the State Purchasing Board eats into what profits might be made under the new arrangement. Out of this $7500 the State Board has to pay the secretary, who is sometimes called the State Purchasing Agent, an annual salary of $1500 a year. This salary is considered too high by some of the members of the Board for the amount of work that is done and for the saving accomplished.

Saving is Doubtful.

Saving Is Doubtful.

Shakeup Is Sure.

A definite official conclusion has not been regched by the body as to what course will be pursued, but individual members are not backward in expressing their opinion.

This was an administration measure which went through the Legislature in opposition to the Bowerman bill, which called for a general commissary for all the institutions. Members of the Beard express the opinion that neither of the plans would work out satisfactorily and are inclined to think that the old system is preferable. The results of the difficulty undoubtedly will be a shakeup as far as the secretary's office is concerned and there is every probability that a new clerk will be hired, unless there is a sudden change of heart among the lerk will be nired, among the sudden change of heart among the purchasing Board.
