the main subject of consideration at the meeting of Lents Grange Saturday afternoon, and it was the consensus of opinion of the speakers that roads sading from the rural districts to the market places was the right plan for read builders to adopt. The construc-tion of through highways was not favored. Judge Cleeton was the prin-cipal speaker on road laws and road construction. He urged the plan of constructing reads to the market places first, and said that counties desiring to do no should be given the authority to issue bonds for road building. Incidentally he touched on the proposed highway, but the gist of his talk was to get market roads built first. Other remarks were made on the subject. remarks were made on the subject. ### SOCIAL HYGIENE IS TOPIC

Dr. Sperry Asserts Children Have a Right to Knowledge.

In his address on "Sex and Health, delivered in the White Temple yester day afternoon under the auspices of the Society for Social Hygiene, Dr. Lyman B. Sperry declared that parents have been silent too long and that the time has come when children must be en-lightened regarding dangers to health and morals. He said children have the right to be well born, to know the truth which shall save them from the evils of immorality, the right to an environment that shall be healthful. Dr. Sperry's lecture was largely devoted to statistics covering the results

Dr. William T. Foster, president of Reed Cellege, who introduced the speaker, declared that most of the moral evils are due to a false sense of modesty; that facts regarding sex ought to be taught as directly and openly as anything that touches the life of man. Mere knowledge of the scientific fact of sex, Dr. Foster said, was not suffi-cient to overcome vice; that it must be backed by a devotion to human beings as such and a firm adherence to the principles of Christianity.

Clerk Taken to Gary, Ind., on Charge of Theft.

TESTIMONY

Bellef Is That Thomas J. Brooke Will Be Released When He Gives Testimony for Prosecution in Case of Stolen Checks.

After an affecting farewell and leaving with his young wife money enough Brooke, a clerk for the Pacific Bridge Company, was taken out of Portland late Saturday night in the custody of Sheriff Grant of Lake County, Indiana, to answer for an alleged share in extensive peculations suffered by the Illinois Steel Company, of Gary, Ind., a subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation. He had been under surveillance two weeks.

The case presents features illuminating as to the present situation in this state with reference to the difficulty in extraditing prisoners from here to other commonwealths. Two weeks ago Captain of Detectives Baty received a telegraphic request for the arrest of Brooke, signed by C. M. Greenlee, attorney for the steel company. Detective Day was sent to locate the wanted man and found him at work. He did not approach Brooke, but returned to headquarters and reported the situation. Realizing that if Brooke were placed under arrest the same situa-tion would develop as in other recent cases and there would be a long technical fight, Captain Baty telegraphed to the Indiana officials to bring their

Hubert Beattle Sees the Descendants of the Bounty Mutineers."

Hubert M. Beattle, an Oregon lad of 19, who salled away from Portland on the British ship Glenalvon in October, 1919, returned recently to Portland, after traveling 26,669 miles, sceing Ire-land, England and much of the world. The voyage of four and one-half months from Portland to Limerick, Ireland, was one continual holiday, the ship going around Cape Horn with all sail set on New Year's day. The perils of the sea were absent happily, until the River Shannon was reached, when a gale came near wrecking the vessel. A charming incident of the trip was a call at Pitcairn, in the South Seas, the Glenaivon bringing the first news received from the outside world by the received from the outside world by the people of the island in two years. A government vessel from New Zealand calls at Pitcairn once a year, that heing the only regular communication with the world at large. Saliors are not allowed to land, but two bont loads of men came out and boarded the Glenalvon, bringing fruits and pearlishells, which they exchanged for such bits of clothing as the saliors could spare. Sheets were in great demand as clothing for the women. Tobacco and Ilquor were not accepted, those articles being taboo on the island. The inhabitants, who are descendants of the mutineers of the ship Bounty, are about 200 in number.
