Prisoner Now Suggests Discovery of Letters From Typist as Motive for Drinking of Poison That Killed Mate

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 24.—The authorities are investigating the death of Mrs. Allison McFarland in connection with which her husband, advertising manager of an electrical company, is under arrest on a charge of nurses.

New light was thrown on the case

New light was thrown on the case in a statement made through counsel yeaterday for Allison McFariand.

McFariand, who had previously been quoted as regarding the death as accidental, now expresses the opinion that Mrs. McFarland had discovered letters received by him from Miss Florence Bromley, of Philadelphia, and deliberately drank the fatal drug.

Miss Bromley was employed by McFarland as his stenographer.

Mrs. McFarland died Tuesday night, after taking cyanide of potassium from a bottle which McFarland is charged with having substituted for

PORT MAY PLANT BUSHES

Blackberries Will Be Tried to Stop Sand Drifting.

MARSHFIELD, Or. Oct 24.—(Special.)—Dr. E. Mingus, a member of the Port Commission of Coos Bay, is trying a new plan for stopping the drifting of the sand on the North spit at the entrance of Coos Bay. The sand blows over the spit and into the bay. The Government has tried planting Holland grass in hopes that it would take root and stop the sand moving.

Dr. Mingus thinks he has found a better plant for this purpose in the evergreen blackberry. This variety of bush was imported here years ago and

Bishop of Eastern Oregon Is Speaker at Banquet.

REGRETTED RIVALRY IS

Villages Have Too Many Religious Organizations, Says Right Reverend R. L. Paddock at Laymen's Dinner.

"I am not seeking that more churches should be established in Eastern Oregon," said the Right Reverened Robert L. Paddock, Episcopal bishop for East-ern Oregon, at the laymen's dinner, given at the University Club Monday in honor of the bishops of Alaska, Eastern Oregon and Spokane, "but I would seek rather that less churches should

From this unexpected preface he built up a plea for unity in church work, and less keenness of sectarian rivalry. He held that it would be possible for He held that it would be possible for a single church in many towns to minister properly to the religious needs of the community, and at the same time be assured of more satisfactory support than in a place where the funds of the community are dissipated among half a dozen different denominations. Ministry Made Poorer.

"There are towns of 1000 people," he said, "that have from six to eight churches. In too many places this practice is, so to speak, pauperizing the ministry.
