

GAIN OF ONE MADE IN McNAMARA JURY

Retired Tailor on Venire Establishes Record for Divergency of Views.

TEN NOW SITTING IN BOX

Ex-Union Official Who Has Directed Strikes but Does Not Approve of Them Seems to Meet Approval of Defense.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 2.—Barring one man, the third venire of prospective jurors was exhausted at the close of court tonight in the McNamara murder case.

Altogether 206 veniremen have been drawn so far. Of these, ten sat in the jury box tonight, having been accepted as to cause by both sides—a gain of one man since yesterday's session, in which no venireman was passed.

The newcomer is M. T. McNamara, a retired tailor, with a venerable beard, who credited himself on examination with more divergent sentiments than any other venireman has revealed.

New Juror Is Church Man.

He is a Presbyterian and an admirer of the Merchants' & Manufacturers' Association, of Los Angeles, as a builder-up of the city. He has participated in strikes and a union official has aided in directing them, but he is opposed to them at all times, and the state brought from him the assurance that a wide course of labor had not prejudiced him against a verdict of guilty in cases where the death penalty was involved. He is still subject to peremptory challenge, if the defense should desire to exercise it. It was considered unlikely tonight that the defense so desired.

Incident Is Noticeable.

The incident last night was when O. H. Hayes, the returned juror, was excused for actual bias, after he had said he believed he could not give McNamara a fair trial, and Judge Bordwell said he would refrain from questioning any more jurors on that point.

His Acquittal Unsettled.

Early in the day, after the court had excused several veniremen for various reasons, O. H. Hayes was reached. He said that his feelings and opinions had been against unions for some time.

From what I've heard, read and seen, especially the picketing in San Francisco, I've formed my opinion about labor unions," explained Hayes.

He added that he believed the Times was blown up by unionists and that dynamite was the agency used.

"That would influence and bias you towards this defendant, would it not?" asked Attorney Darrow.

"Yes, I think so."

"You would be more apt to believe the defendant guilty because he belonged to a union?"

"Yes."

"Do you believe the defendant guilty?"

"I believe he is."

"You know you are not a fair and impartial juror, then?"

"I think not."

"We challenge the juror," announced Darrow, "for actual bias."

"We resist and deny the challenge," snapped Horton.

"You have formed your opinion from what you have read and heard?"

"Yes."

Picketing Influences Opinion.

"Have you seen any picketing in Los Angeles?"

"No."

"The only picketing that you saw was that in San Francisco in 1904?"

"Did not what you saw influence your mind with reference to what you heard and read of the labor question?"

"It made my opinion a little stronger."

"Do I understand that you are prejudiced or hostile toward individual members of unions because they belong to unions?"

"Well, I might say yes, because if they did not approve of the unions' methods they would not belong."

"Now, James H. McNamara is a member of the Typographical Union. Does that fact prejudice you against him and prevent you from trying his case fairly and impartially?"

"It would."

"This challenge will be allowed," interrupted Judge Bordwell at this point.

Louis A. Wilhelm, a farmer and real estate man, previously had asked to be excused from jury duty, as he is clerk of a School Board in a suburb and has 12 children, six boys and six girls. He said he formed his opinions about labor unions from personal experience in Los Angeles many years ago.

"Have you any prejudice against a man because he belongs to a labor union?"

"No, sir."

Exemption Claimed too Late.

Wilhelm said he had visited the Times wreckage two or three days after the disaster and had formed an opinion that the building had been blown up by gas, because it resembled a building he had seen two years ago which was wrecked in that manner. He added that he did not believe a charge of dynamite could destroy a building of the size of the Times, "not shattering all the windows of the neighborhood."

The defense passed Wilhelm for cause.

"You're a Deputy Sheriff, aren't you?" asked District Attorney Fredericks.

"Yes."

"Do you wish to claim exemption on that ground?"

"Yes."

The defense objected that Wilhelm yesterday did not claim exemption on that ground and moved that the answer be stricken out. The court sustained the objection of the defense, and District Attorney Fredericks argued for a few moments that a man who claimed exemption ought not to be allowed to serve. The court interrupted Wilhelm further, and he maintained that conscientious opinions and scruples would prevent him from imposing the death penalty on circumstantial evidence. Then Wilhelm was excused.

Talesman Is "Wide Reader."

McNeely, the retired tailor, steered himself safely past the dangerous death penalty question by saying that he had no conscientious scruples against verdicts involving death sentences, and was passed by Attorney Darrow after a short examination.

"You're a man of wide reading," asked Attorney Horton for the state.

"Fairly wide," said McNeely.

"As the result of your reading haven't you reached something of a feeling against the infliction of capital punishment on circumstantial evidence?" asked Attorney Horton.

"I have not," said the talesman.

"But you have views and opinions?"

"Yes."

"And you've had them a long time?"

"All my life," said McNeely, who further said he favored circumstantial evidence more than three years ago and was an officer of the Tailors' Union, participated in and directed a strike, but said he did not believe in strikes except as a last resort.

"You're not a Socialist?"

"No, sir; I am not."

"No, sir; I am not," said the talesman, making the tenth talesman so accepted.

Friend of Prosecutor Excused.

Edward R. Jeffrey, who is a brother of ex-State Horticultural Commissioner Jeffrey, said he knew District Attorney Fredericks personally and had aided in his election. He had known Attorney Horton more than three years and was associated with A. Joseph Ford, the Assistant District Attorney in charge of preparation of evidence.

"If you belonged to a union they could not work for me," he said when questioned. He entered upon this frame of mind, he said, when traveling in Europe, from observation.

The state resisted a challenge by the defense. Answering a question by Fredericks, Jeffrey again said he had family with the defendant, but said he would not work for him.

"I want to know where you got the idea that the Times and the labor union were at war with each other," said Fredericks, and the witness said his information was obtained from the public press and common rumor, and the same was true of labor unions' attitude toward the Times. He finally said he could not give the defendant a fair trial, and District Attorney Fredericks withdrew opposition.

Talesman Lisk was examined next.

"Knowing the feeling between the Times and the unions, I remarked to my family that I was not going to give my views on the cause of the disaster, 'that I hoped some other cause than a bomb would be found.'"

"Did you believe it was a dynamite bomb?" asked Lecompte Davis, of the defense.

"Well, as the boys say, I had a kind of hunch that it was."

Lisk said he owned a flour and feed mill, but did not employ union men.

He declared, however, that he was not opposed to the union and had no idea as to the guilt or innocence of the defendant. He was passed temporarily, the defense reserving the right to ask him one more question tomorrow. Court adjourned at 5 o'clock.

Rate Revision Ready

UNIFORMITY OF RULES ONE OF OBJECTS SOUGHT.

Five Thousand Articles Affected by New Order to Be Effective About February 1.

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—A general revision of railroad rates in Western and Southern territories has been prepared and will be made public early in December.

Work on this readjustment of the present classifications has been in progress the last three years. Numerous changes have been made with a view to securing a uniformity of description of articles and also uniformity in rules and minimum weights so far as possible.

The new classifications have been arranged by the various classification committees, composed of rate experts of the different railroads represented in the three territories into which the United States has been divided. It is proposed to make the new rates effective about February 1, 1912.

The new articles would be affected by the new classifications—some reductions and some increases. The increases are principally on minimum weights.

BABE IS KILLED IN AUTO

Mother Clings to Little Son While Being Hurled Through Air.

STOCKTON, Cal., Nov. 2.—Crushed beneath his mother, who clung to him while being hurled through the air from an overturning automobile, the 5-week-old son of Charles Miller, a prominent farmer of Atlanta, Cal., was killed shortly before noon today near Escalon, a small town ten miles south of this city. Miller, his wife and daughter Irene were badly injured. The Millers had almost reached their destination in Escalon, when the fat-er, who was driving a five-passenger car, endeavored to pass another automobile. The machine skidded, and plunging down a decline, overturned.

CARD OF THANKS.

I wish to thank the many friends who have expressed sympathy with my daughter, Hermina, in the death of her fiancé, the late Mr. Henry W. Lang, of Galveston, Texas.

Parisian Sage

Guaranteed for Dandruff, Falling Hair, Scalp Itch and to Make Dull, Faded Hair Radiant.

Mrs. Ella Gilbert, W. Pitt Street, Bedford, Pa., writes this interesting letter: read it!

"In the spring of 1910 I was recovering from a severe case of eczema, which left me virtually bald on the front of my head and near my ears.

"My hair kept coming out rapidly and nothing I used stopped my falling hair until I used two bottles of PARISIAN SAGE. This tonic made my hair start to grow in and in fact grew me a good, fair amount of hair, and it has entirely stopped my hair falling out. It is with pleasure that I give a public recommendation to PARISIAN SAGE, which I know is a wonder, and in a class alone. PARISIAN SAGE is the finest hair dressing on earth for men, women and children. Once used in a family its benefits are so pronounced that it becomes a necessity.

"It never fails, because it is a formula based on scientific principles. Large bottles 50 cents at Woodard, Clarke & Co. and druggists everywhere.
