PORTLAND'S PLACE BY SEA REWARDED

Traffic Men Say City Is So Situated It Is Bound to Reap Rate Benefits.

INJUNCTION IS LIKED

W. S. Smallwood, Manager of Transportation Commission of Chamber of Commerce, New Yorkers in Oregon on Tour.

It is not believed that the series of injunctions given out against and affecting the movement of goods in and out of Portland is likely to have any lasting effect on the commerce of the port.

Trade will follow its usual course, though some of the larger shippers may be temporarily held to the shipping in the summer months. It is felt that the injunctions will be given up as soon as the railroads get through the period of increased traffic.
