stairways, were choked with the curious. Only a hundred persons saw the two brothers led through the narrow passageway into the chamber beside the jail.

Change in Demeanor Marked.

"I never saw a man change so within a few minutes," afterward declared Judge Bordwell.

Prosecutor Reads Confession.

James B. McNamara arose first. He wore dark clothing and a white tie, to which his white face added somber contrast.

"There are two sentences," said Fredericks, with deliberation, "which the court may pronounce, possibly of equal severity. One is death and the other is life imprisonment. However, in the minds of a great many persons, and possibly in the minds of the defendants, I do not know, but the sentence of imprisonment for life would be considered in some degree a less punishment than the punishment of death. There has been no dickering or bargaining in this matter. Counsel on the other side are well aware of the usual custom of granting some degree of consideration for the lives of those who have pleaded guilty—not on the ground of mercy, but on the ground of service to the state.

"State Served in Other Ways."

"The defendant has pleaded guilty. If so doing he has settled the question for all time in the minds of a great many would have been a doubtful question. He has served the state in other ways; and it is my judgment that small degree of consideration should be extended to him because of that fact."

"The court," began Judge Bordwell, turning to the prisoner an inquiring look, "desires to ask you one question and one only, Mr. McNamara. You have stated in the writing which the District Attorney has read that you placed 16 sticks of dynamite known as 90 per cent pure in the Times building and caused it to be exploded. The question I ask you is this: Did you seek to purchase for that same purpose, dynamite of a higher degree of percentage?"

"The defendant paused and seemed to lose his composure."

"Murderer at Heart," Says Judge.

"You will merit the maximum punishment prescribed by law."

San Quentin for and during your natural life.

"You may be seated." As relieved as anyone could be with a life sentence confronting him, the prisoner sat down beside his brother. The big man arose and the little brother eyed him affectionately.

John is Deeply Moved.

After the court had read the indictments charging that he had pleaded guilty of having caused the destruction of the Llewellyn Iron Works in this city, the District Attorney began a brief statement, and James B. whispered to John J. that he could sit down while the District Attorney talked.

Merely Not Merited.

The defendant arose again. "Mr. McNamara," said Judge Bordwell, "you have heard the court's remarks to your brother, and in no small degree, sir, they undoubtedly apply to you."

Anything further?

The district attorney indicated that it was customary to ask the occupation of the defendants.

SENTENCE IS FIT,
IS GOMPERS' VIEW

Federation Leader, Opposed
to Capital Punishment,
Is Satisfied.

ERA OF PEACE IS DESIRED

Bridge Workers' Union Believed Not to Have Received Single Dollar of Aid While Plots Were Under Way.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—"I am glad a death sentence was not imposed. I am opposed to capital punishment under any circumstances. I think the sentences received by both men were appropriate to the crime."

This was the statement of Samuel Gompers tonight when asked if he was satisfied with the punishment meted out to the McNamara brothers in Los Angeles today.

Miller's Criticism Resented.

"I would like to make one statement," Mr. Gompers continued, "and that is concerning the strictures made by the district attorney, Mr. Miller, as to the wisdom of my leadership of the American Federation of Labor. I want to say that if Mr. Miller has a case to prosecute against me, or anybody else, let him go ahead and prosecute; but it is not for him to say whether my leadership is wise or not. I consider his criticism a gratuitous and unwarranted impertinence. Miller has no right to set himself up as a guide. I propose to stand true to the men of labor."

Federation Wants Peace.

"All I can say to that," he replied, "is that when employers treat labor as fairly as organized labor treats employers, there will be peace. The executive committee of the American Federation of Labor is the greatest conciliatory board that ever existed anywhere. It desires peace and is always ready to meet employers half way."

McNAMARA IS IGNORED

NAME IS NOT SO MUCH AS MENTIONED BY PORTLAND BODY.

Structural Ironworkers Here Neither
Denounce Nor Commend Men
Who Plead Guilty in South.

Disdaining so much as to mention the name of either of the McNamaras, self-confessed dynamiters, members of the Portland local of Structural Iron Workers held their regular meeting last night, transacted routine business and adjourned. Failure of the Portland organization to make any expression, particularly as to John J. McNamara, who was secretary of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, was a distinct surprise.

At the meeting of our organization we devoted our time entirely to the transaction of routine business and adjourned," said Dan Conley, business agent of the Structural Iron Workers.

The name of the McNamaras was not so much as mentioned and no action was taken by the organization respecting them. So far as I have been able to learn, the disposition of the local organization of Iron Workers, and the McNamara controversy a closed incident. Aside from that we have nothing further to say."

Refusal on the part of the Structural Iron Workers last night to take any action respecting the arrest and confessions of the McNamaras is taken to preclude any probable expression on the part of organized labor concerning the men who were sentenced at Los Angeles yesterday. Immediately following the confessions of the two alleged dynamiters, Will H. Daly, president of the Oregon State Federation of Labor and president of the Central Labor Council, of this city, announced that no official action on the part of Portland organized labor towards repudiating or otherwise denouncing the McNamaras would be taken by organized labor unless the Initiative in that direction was taken by the Portland organization of Structural Iron Workers, of which John J. one of the brothers, was international secretary.

WRITER'S END IN DOUBT

DEATH OF KELLOGG DURLAND TO BE INVESTIGATED.

Action of Wife, ex-Actress, in Renewing Insurance Policy, Stirs Up Suspicion of Company.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—(Special.)—Investigations to ascertain the reason for the death of Kellogg Durland, the writer who died from drinking cyanide of potassium November 18 on a train in South Station, Boston, are under way in Boston and New York.

The Equitable Life Assurance Society, which issued a $15,000 life insurance policy for Durland, is making the Boston investigation and has held up payment on the policy.

The insurance company investigation was inspired by the fact that the insurance policy had lapsed and that Mrs. Durland paid the premium after an extension had been secured the day before Durland's death. In New York, Magistrate Corrigan is interested because of friendship for the writer.

In a statement written November 22 and repeated to Magistrate Corrigan, Mrs. Durland says that she had been separated from her husband a month or more before his death and that she believed he was insane. November 13 she took a drawing-room on the train due to leave Boston at midnight. He came to her stateroom and demanded that they both should die together in a suicide pact. He seemed excited, she declared, and she tried to calm him. Then he took poison while her back was turned.

Mrs. Durland has been an actress and a playwright. She was formerly the wife of Robert C. Haines, the actor, and was married to Durland June 12, 1908. She gave her name then as Madeline Grenville, of Chicago.

Cleanliness is a science where Schlitz is brewed. We filter even the air where the beer is cooled. Then we filter the beer. Then we sterilize every bottle.

We go to Bohemia for hops. Our barley is selected by a partner in our business.

The water is brought from rock 1,400 feet underground. Our yeast is produced forever from the same mother cell.

Schlitz beer is sent to you in Brown Bottles, protecting its purity from the brewery to your glass. Light starts decay even in pure beer. Dark glass gives protection against light.

If you knew what we know about beer, you would say, "Schlitz—Schlitz in Brown Bottles."
