

Wilson, "I fix each year a maximum cut to be allowed during the year, usually for each forest, without jeopardising the future supply of timber for local use. This is done to prevent over-cutting. The maximum cut authorized during 1911 was a little less than 3,300. during 1871 was a little less than 3,300. 000,000 board feet. There was cut on the National forests during the fiscal year 1911 a total of almost 500,000,000-board feet of timber, of which about 275,000,000 feet were sold and over 123. 060,000 feet cut under free use. It is estimated that the annual cut which might be obtained from the National forests without diminishing the avail-able supply (since the increase by growth would offset it) is over 3,250. 000,000 feet, or more than six times

000,000 feet, or more than six times what was dut "Here, again, one-sixth of the mature timber that should have been out was sold or given away; five-sixths was withheld because bidders would not offor a price which Secretary Wilson thought was fair. The timber that he sold last year brought in $$45,000, at an average price of $2.56 per thousand, 12 cents more than he asked the year before. Thus, with an overstocked mar-icet, as he describes it, he is asking more for Government timber than he did a year ago, and refuses to sell even this overmature timber when he cannot get what he thinks that timber is worth. This, then, according to his own words, is Secretary Wilson's idea of "conservation with use."

Five Billion Feet Untouched.

Further perusal of the report brings out other interesting information. For instance, it is found that 290,000,000 instance, it is found that 290,000,000 feet out of 375,000,000 sold was timber killed by the forest fires of 1910. The Secretary mays he hopes ultimately to well 1,000,000,000 feet of the 5,000,000,000 feet killed by those fires: the 5,000,000,000 feet from transportation to permit of its sale. Therefore, the 5,000,000,000 feet, like the overmature timber, will stand unlouched until it fails to the recound stand unrougened until it late to the ground. There was less graning in the forest reserves during the past year than in 1916. Grazing permits were lesued for 1352,000 cattle, 92,000 horses, 7,372,000 sheep, 4500 hogs and 78,000 goats. The sheep, 4500 hogs and 15,000 goals. The amount received in grazing fees was $955,400, which is $51,419 less than the year before. The regulation of grazing in forest reserves, says the Secretary, is only incidental, yet grazing is more profitable from the Government stand-point than the selling of timber. The used more for the use point than the seiling of timber. The stockmen are paying more for the use of the forest reserves than are the lum-hermen. Secretary Wilson's report makes it appear that the Government is maintaining "grazing reserves." in which the conservation of timber is in-cidental to the regulation of the range.
