

OIL-STORAGE BILL
DROPS OLD PLAN

Measure Demands Distributing Stations and Storage Outside City Limits.

SUBJECT TO BE UP TODAY

Building Owners and Merchants Are Restricted and Safeguards Are Provided—Companies Likely to Wage Hard Fight.

A proposed ordinance aimed to revolutionize the present system of oil storage in Portland bids fair to bring about a fight between the various interests involved before the health and police committee today, at 11 o'clock, when the measure, as drafted by the City Attorney, will come up for consideration.

It is expected the residence districts will be well represented, as well as the oil companies, automobile interests, railroads and others, and the measure, it is expected, will be changed considerably by the committee before final adoption.

The measure provides that distributing stations be placed in various parts of the city for all kinds of oil. At these stations no more than 10,000 gallons of any kind of oil may be kept at any one time, and the stations are to be supplied from storage tanks to be placed outside the city.

Permits Are Called. In buildings where fuel oil is stored the owner must obtain a permit. This will be granted only after the tanks in the buildings have been inspected by the Fire Chief and the Building Inspector.

The distributing stations as provided in the ordinance cannot be built any place within 500 feet of a residence, or within 1000 feet of a similar distributing station.

Explosives Are Restricted. The measure provides for storage warehouses at the distributing stations. In these explosive oils must be kept in cans of specified thickness and built of iron or steel.

The oil tanks must contain more than 150,000 gallons of oil, and must be protected by embankments or walls, which, in case the tank bursts, would contain one and one-half times as much oil as the tank is capable of holding.

For merchants a limit of 1100 gallons is provided for storage in buildings not fireproof. In fireproof buildings merchants may keep 5000 gallons of all classes of oil.

The railroad companies will be allowed to keep engine oil in properly protected tanks to meet their needs. Fuel oil may be kept in tanks and other oils in warehouses.

The measure is fashioned after the old ordinance of New York City. It is believed that the oil companies, but residence districts, it is thought, will be in favor of it. The measure is said to be the most complete one in the United States, covering the subject of oil storage.

THIEF WON'T COMPROMISE

Woman's Purse Grabbed, Thug's Pal Refuses to Return It for Pay.

Although willing to compromise and pay the thief the amount of her purse for the return of the little receptacle, which contained papers of importance, Miss Fish, living at the Meredith Apartments, at 12th and Washington streets, was rebuffed by the associate of the thief.

Miss Fish was walking along Washington street with a companion Wednesday night when a man ran up from behind and snatched her silver mesh purse, leaving the chain in her hand. The thief ran toward Mississippi street, and although chased by a crowd, was not caught.

Seeing a man standing on the sidewalk near the scene of the theft and recognizing him as the companion of the thief, Miss Fish walked up to him and told him she was willing to compromise and would pay for the return of the purse. The man protested his ignorance of the whole affair, but ran when Miss Fish entered a hotel nearby, thinking, Miss Fish believes, that she was about to telephone to the police, which she had told him she would not do if the purse were returned. The purse contained a small sum of money besides the papers.

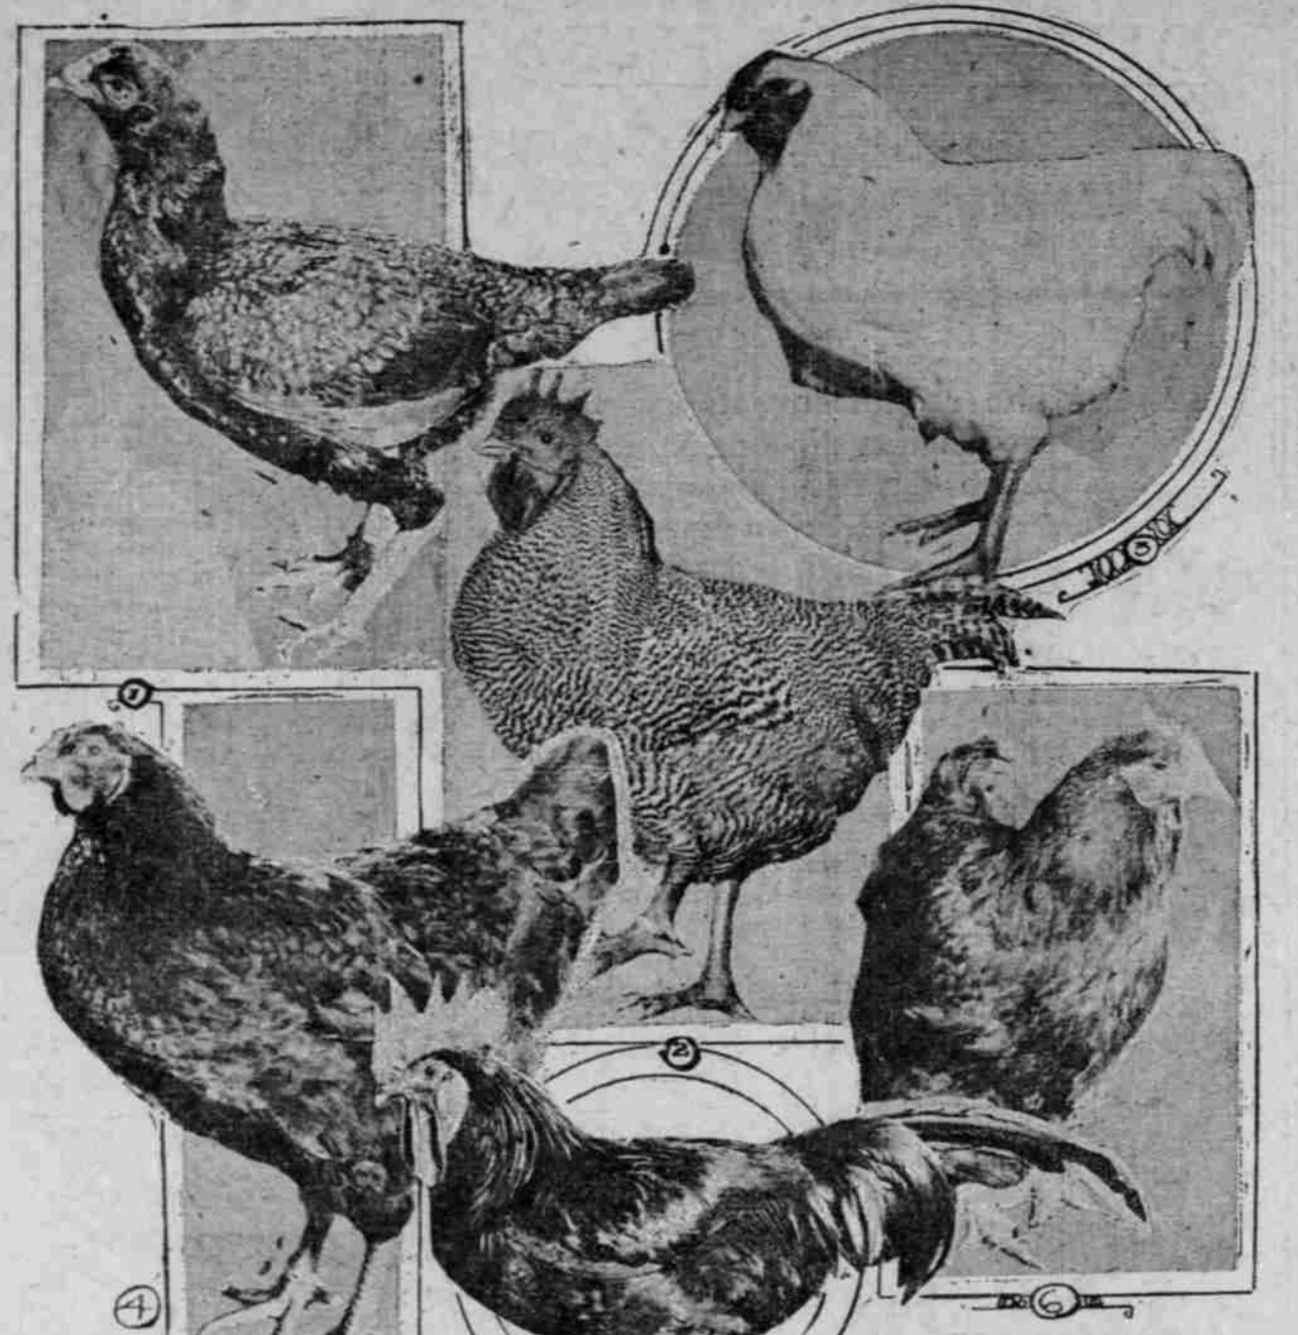

GLENDALE MAN IS SUICIDE

Body of Joseph L. Winchell Found in Woods by Searchers.

GLENDALE, Or., Dec. 7.—(Special.)—The body of Joseph L. Winchell, a prominent merchant of this city, was found in a lonely spot in the mountains about a mile from here this morning, with a bullet wound in his side. Mr. Winchell had been missing since early yesterday and searchers had been looking for him since last evening. The body was found in a sitting position, with an automatic revolver still grasped in the right hand.

Mr. Winchell was a brother of B. L. Winchell, president of the St. Louis & San Francisco Railroad, and had lived here for about 20 years. He is survived by a widow and two sons. No reason is known for suicide and it is thought his death may have resulted from an accidental discharge of the gun.

Chief and Coffey Hear Plaints.

Chief Slover and Chairman Coffey, of the police committee, entered the police station yesterday evening and ran full tilt into a red-hot indignation meeting, based partly on the night meal which had just been served at the station, and partly on the crowding of the jail.

"Do you call that coffee?" demanded one prisoner, thrusting a battered cup full of a black fluid through the bars.

"This is all I get, twice a day," said another, holding forth three slices of bread. "The liver they serve in the morning is green and a hog wouldn't eat it."

"They call this pork and beans, but the pork is nix," said another. "I see the bill for our grub last month was $495.65," said one.

"Well, I've been here three weeks and I've got the worth of the odd 65 cents of a cigar box for a spoon."

"Rotten outrage! Enough to make men anarchists," came other cries, until, to give the outbreak less reason for growing, the officials withdrew.

MORNING TRADE URGED

CHRISTMAS CRUSH OF SHOPPERS NOW GREAT.

All Stores Crowded With Buyers, and Plea Is Made to Purchase Presents in Forenoon.

Early shopping is no longer the cry; now it should be morning shopping.

So says W. E. Lipman, who remarks that early shopping started November 15.

"The early shoppers were out in force long ago, declared Mr. Lipman. "You have only to take a walk through any store in the city to learn that in the afternoon it becomes practically impossible to handle the crowds."

"At the best of times they are compelled to wait long for attention. No great store can possibly employ enough help to handle the rush as it is now."

"We have but one plea to make: If you possibly can, shop in the morning."

The attendance yesterday at all the stores was by far the largest the season has yet shown. The throngs were impossible to pass through. They jammed up against the counters and massed at the aisle crossings. Elevators carried capacity loads. Suddenly Portland people have realized that Christmas is 14 shopping days distant—that is all.

"Mail early," beg postoffice officials. "Weigh early," beg the counter clerks. "Get your stamps early," ask those who sell the postage stickers.

And to sum it all, there is one general plea in Portland to which all shoppers and Christmas present buyers are urged to hearken: Get it done as early as possible.

White Salmon Gets Bloodhounds.

WHITE SALMON, Wash., Dec. 7.—(Special.)—To give the town protection against thugs, as well as to give chase should criminals succeed in making their get-away from town, as in the case of the would-be slayer of H. S. Hall, the night watchman, V. Saxton of this place, has received two imported young bloodhounds from Kentucky, which he is training into man-hunters.
