BOTTLED NO BOND

This Whiskey is 8 Years Old

Why pay the same price for whiskey not so good?

The United States Government permits bottling whiskey in bond at four years—that is the minimum time required.

We bottle W. H. McBrayer's Cedar Brook at eight years only, because age is the necessary requirement of perfect whiskey.

W. H. McBrayer's

GEDAR BROOM

has for three generations been regarded by the consuming public, the jobber and the retailer, as America's Foremost Whiskey. Cedar Brook costs us more—costs you the same. It is absolute perfection in whiskey. It has stood the test of the years. Today it is better than ever.

You cannot buy better than best—you cannot get more than most. W. H. McBrayer's Cedar Brook is proven best—and the most for your money. Sold wherever good taste is evidenced—wherever gentlemen congregate.
