out Her "Freddie."

There's one tiny maid in Fortland for whom the joy and festivity of Christmas is a hollow sham. For over a year she has been an inmate of the children's ward at the Good Samari-tan Hospital and yesterday morning she learned that her 5-year old friend, Freddle Herrman, whose cot adjoins

Freddle Herrman came to the hospital from Vancouver, Wash. For many years he has been suffering from spinal trouble. It was in April last that little Marie Wagner became Freddle Herrman, whose cot adjoins her own, was dying. It was just a chance word dropped between doctor and silent-footed nurse, but it was sufficient for the child. So, when a little later in the day a cheery visitor said "Merry Christmas," to the child, she looked up stunned. "Merry Christmas! Merry Christ-mas! When Freddle is going to Jeaus. Why, there ain't no such thing as a merry Christmas if Freddle ain't a-going to be here," the wee lassie sobbed. Freddle Herrman came to the hos-

Provision Made for Wife. Taylor last night thumped on the floor of the upstairs cells of the City Jail until Jailor Websier took him to Captain Balley. Taylor asked if the reward money would be given to his wife he would confess and when Cap-tain Balley rold him that this would be done, be told his story. According to Taylor, when David Conway was killed near Muskogee early in 1908, a posse of 560 porsons scoured the country in search of Carl lingby, John Chickahaw, another man whose name he does not remember, and himself, who were sought for the orime. While the posse was after him a farmer held him up st the point of a shotgun, commanding him to hold up his hands. Taylor says he attacked the farmer, wroned the gun from him be: "But, nurse, Freddle says so-and-so." And on his part Freddle was just as reliant on his sweetheart, as the nurses dubbed the girl, and would have no hesitation in quoting her to the complete and utmost discomfiture of the whole medical staff, from the children's surgeon down to the young-est interne. What Marie said was so with Freddle. What Freddle and was so

Obsistions of the Grim. It was while Taylor was dodging arrest in Vancouver, B. C., that he met and married Martha Hows, a young girl from London, England. He did not tell her of his past, he said to Cap-tain Balley, because he loved her and he knew she would not marry him it he told her what he had done. "Thigil be a sort of a Christmas gift for the little woman," said Taylor last inght, with a smille. "She has been in fear of her life that I would be hurt when resisting arrest and if I get this monoy and put her out of reach of trouble, it will be all I can do. I can to square it." Taylor was arrested Saturday night after Anton Bucheggar, a butcher of had conquered him, following a fight in the mid of the street almost in front of Bucheggar's home. Although Taylor had two guns of 41-caliber, he refused to shoot Bucheggar, thinking to scare him and not wishing to commit mur-der. Bucheggar, physically a bigger man, held Taylor until residents of the neighborhood came to his assistance

Employes Guests at Dinner and Entertainment by Glee Club.

The annual dinner and entertain-ment given the employes of the Port-land Woolen Mill by their employers took pince yesterday afternoon in the big finishing-room of the mill at St. Johns, about 200 employes participat-ing. The afternoon's entertainment was mainly furnished by the Univer-sity of Oregon Glee Club, preceded by an address by F. L. Feet and a clos-ing talk by E. L. Thompson. Both speakers dwelt on the good feeling between the operatives that the man-The annual dinner and entertain-Both Theodore Clark Dies at Oregon City. between the owners and employes and assured the operatives that the man-agement was ever ready to consider anything conductive to their welfare. The glee club members were all en-cored, but the singing' of Kenneth Frasier, baritone, and the song in cos-tume of the Chinese, Harry Ding, were the star attractions of the entertain-ment. The dinner and supper were served cafeteris style. The Woolen Mill Company is com-posed of W. P. Olds, T. H. Wilcox, E. L. Thompson, W. M. Ladd, C. F. Lewis, F. A. Nitchey, H. W. TALKS IN PULPIT

GOVERNOR, PREACHING, SAYS LIQUOR CAUSES CRIME.

Prisoners, Paroled, Fail to Make Good Because of "Hounding," He

Saloons, woman suffrage and the prison policy each had a place in Gov-ernor West's sermon at the East Side Baptist Church yestorday morning. Governor West commented on the commercial advantages of the state and commercial advantages of the state and then shid "It is time for us to pay more attention to those things which make for the welfare of the people of the state." He said statistics show that 80 per cast of those confined in the Salem Penitentiary are there as the re-sult of the use of intoxicating liquors, and continued: "While I am not a pro-hibitionist. I am in favor of doing everything that can be done to avoid letting men get so far under the in-fluence of liquor as to be led into crime. Because men become criminals under such circumstances, we should do all we can to reform them. The trouble is the newspapers are hounding some of those on paroles"

He read a letter from one of the pa-roled convicts. In this instance and another, he said, these convicts had been discharged by their employers be-cause they were "hounded." This con-sisted, he explained, in the employers becoming aware through the news-papers that the men in their employ were "West's honor mon." "Who is the criminal," he added, "the man who is trying to make good or those who are keeping him from making good? "The women, by use of the elective franchise, can help solve the problem of crime and vice by voting against the liquor traffic."
