THIRD AND MORRISON

STATE BARES CASE AGAINST WILDE

Prosecution Files Bill of Particulars as Ordered by Presiding Judge Gatens.

CONSPIRACY IS CHARGED

All Details of Alleged Transaction in Bonds of Omaha Telephone Company Narrated—W. Cooper Morris Mentioned.

The bill of particulars asked by the defense in the case against Louis J. Wilde and ordered furnished by Presiding Judge Gatens was filed in the Circuit Court yesterday by Deputy District Attorney Collier. In it are set forth the details of the transactions by which Wilde and W. Cooper Morris, cashier of the defunct Oregon Savings & Trust Bank, are alleged to have converted and embezzled $50,000 of the funds of that institution.

The bill sets forth that Wilde was the fiscal agent for the sale of a block of bonds of the par value of $200,000 of the Independent Telephone Company of Omaha, Neb. The bonds were the property of the Union Telephone & Construction Company of Omaha, Neb., which had received them from the Independent Telephone Company of Omaha, Neb., as part payment for the construction of a telephone plant in that city. It is said also that the bonds were accompanied by blocks of preferred and common stock of the telephone company, each of the same par value as the bonds, and that there had been issued to the construction company $1,500,000 worth of bonds and an equal amount of both common and preferred stock. It is asserted that both Morris and Wilde knew that the Independent Telephone Company had really no security for its bonds. It is alleged that Wilde was a stockholder of the Oregon Savings & Trust Bank and also of the Union Telephone & Construction Company.

Conspiracy is Alleged.

The state goes on to charge in the statement that Wilde was authorized to sell the bonds at 80 cents on the dollar, but that he and Morris entered into a conspiracy to sell them to the bank at par. This was done, it is said, and the construction company was credited as if they had been sold at 82 cents, Wilde and Morris pocketing the difference between $410,000 and $500,000, or $90,000.

As first payment on the bonds, Morris is alleged to have issued a cashier's check for $10,000, drawn on the American National Bank of San Francisco. This was made payable to S. A. Reed, treasurer of the construction company, for which Wilde was acting as fiscal agent. Morris then issued six certificates of deposit for $25,000 each, five for $50,000 each and one for $100,000, making a total in certificates of deposit of $500,000, and making $120,000 the total which the bank had expended by reason of the purchase of the bonds.

Coin Transfers Related.

The certificates of deposit for $100,000 were presented to the bank for payment, the story continues, in the name of Louis J. Wilde. He did not get the money, but was credited with that amount on the bank's books, and about the same time he is alleged to have transferred $5000 to Morris. The state declares a lack of positive knowledge as to how the transfer was made, but expresses a belief that it was by check and that the canceled voucher may now be in the possession of Louis J. Wilde.

This left a balance of $95,000 in the bank to the credit of Wilde. He is next alleged to have turned $40,000 of this over to the bank, presumably by check, although the state professes a lack of conclusive evidence as to this, and Morris is said to have taken from the vaults and appropriated to his own use in exchange for this money 40 bonds of the par value of $1000 each of the Home Telephone Company of Puget Sound. This would make a total of $40,000 which Morris received from the deal if the allegations are correct. These bonds had been purchased by the bank a few months previous. Wilde is alleged to have withdrawn his balance from the bank May 18, 1907.

New Charge is Made.

The statement is made that the transaction on which the state hopes to secure a conviction is not in fact or relate to the alleged embezzlement of approximately $12,500 about January, 1907, in connection with the purchase of bonds of the Home Telephone Company of Puget Sound or the alleged embezzlement of stocks of the same company in December, 1906.

The prosecution thus intimates that there is evidence showing that Wilde and Morris also profited from the purchase by the bank of the bonds of the Home Telephone Company of Puget Sound. This is the first time that such a charge has been made in connection with that particular transaction.

The trial of Wilde is scheduled to commence January 8. It has not yet been decided which judge will preside.

COTTON MILLS STOPPED

Refusal of Man and Two Women to Join Union Throws 300,000 Persons Out of Work.

MANCHESTER, England, Dec. 27.—The refusal of one man and two women to join a trade union, coupled with the decision of the master cotton spinners to close their mills three days in the week, caused a complete stoppage of a great portion of the cotton mills in Northwest Lancashire tonight. Efforts already are afoot to bring about a settlement but, because of one woman who left the unions after 20 years, believing the benefits are not commensurate with the payments, a long and bitter struggle is feared against the "open shop." There is danger of the right spreading to other industries.

The lockout involved 150,000 weavers, and nearly an equal number of spinners will be reduced to half pay. There are indications of probable complications through the introduction of a new issue on the question of wages.

This move has been taken by the weavers' who declare that as a lockout has been decided upon, they intend to make 5 per cent advance in wages a condition of any settlement.

It is estimated that the weekly loss in wages to the weavers and allied workers, spinners and cardroom employees will be $1,400,000. The weavers will receive about $225,000 lockout pay from the union.

that of the proposed National Reserve Association, which puts control in the hands of the banks and moneyed interests, will strengthen the power of the trusts to get capital and to keep competitors from getting it. Any such plan must be controlled by the people."

Senator La Follette described the manner of growth of trusts and monopolies and attributed to patent rights, to the tariff laws and to the money trust the reason for their being.

"At any time within the past 10 or 15 years, whenever a voice has been raised in protest, it has been silenced or discredited as an attack upon business and prosperity," he said. "Honest, unselfish, patriotic effort to awaken the public to an appreciation of the dangers threatened by this great power has been denounced as the work of the demagogue and self-seeker."

"Whoever has been conspicuous in any movement, municipal, state or National, that man has been marked and proclaimed dangerous, and wherever such a leader has been thorough-going and effective in his work—through a controlled press and upon the highest business authority even—such man has been especially characterized and recently been placed along the division line between Multnomah and Clackamas Counties by order of the County Court. The posts are eight inches square and six feet high, and are placed at every road crossing from the Willamette River to the eastern boundaries of both counties.

In 1903 the whole of England had a population of 5,000,000.

LA FOLLETTE FEARS POWER OF TRUSTS

Mr. La Follette declared, has as its aim the restoration of the Government to the people. "The real cure for the ills of democracy is more democracy," he said.

"That is what the struggle in Wisconsin, in California, in Ohio and in Pennsylvania, New Hampshire and Kansas and in every state in this Union means; that government shall be brought back and committed to the hands of the people; that they are supreme over Legislatures, over governments, over Presidents, over constitutions and over courts," he asserted.

LA FOLLETTE FEARS POWER OF TRUSTS

Mr. La Follette launched into a discussion of Robert H. Gary's plan for Federal regulation of prices as a relief from monopoly. Mr. La Follette said he had no patience with this method. In his analysis he went further and said that ultimately the Government would have to fix prices of labor, hours of employment and compensation of original producers in order to fix accurately the prices to be offered the consumers.

Instead of the Gary plan or the Taft plan of a Federal license for incorporation, Senator La Follette proposed his own plan for a commission on restraint of trade to relieve the country of the condition in which he finds it.

Trust Evil Reviewed.

The Senator saw great evil in the growth of trusts, and, describing it, said:

"A tremendous power has grown up in the country in recent years. Again and again it has proved strong enough to nominate the candidate of both political parties. It rules in the organization of legislative bodies, state and National, and of the committees which frame legislation. Its influence is felt in cabinets and in the policies of Administration. Its influence is seen in the appointment of prosecuting officers and the selection of judges upon the bench.

"In business it has crippled or destroyed competition. It makes prices and imposes its burdens upon the consuming public at will.

"In finance its power is unlimited.

"It has acquired large control of the public domain, monopolized the natural resources, timber, iron, coal and oil.

Although Senator La Follette made no direct reference to the President, nor suggested his own candidacy, he included in his speech a denunciation of the Payne-Aldrich tariff law.

Need of Elasticity Admitted.

"The passage of the Payne-Aldrich bill was the most outrageous assault on private interests on the people recorded in tariff history," said La Follette.

He criticized the proposed National Reserve of the Aldrich monetary plan.

"The greatest menace to competition at the present time is the control of credit and the concentration of money in the hands of those who control the trusts," he declared. "Elasticity in our currency is imperative and must be secured, but any plan to secure it, like
