Rebel Corps in Oriental Empire to Be Led by Celestial Maiden.

REPUBLIC HONORS LASS

Leona Mary Jewell, Daughter of Joe Sue, Rich Merchant Here, is Selected to Be Joan of Arc of Old Empire.

PORTLAND CHINESE GIRL TO COMMAND REBEL TROOP AFTER TRAINING. Hangkong papers received by Portland Chinese announce that Sue Wi Yat will soon receive a commission giving her command of a corps of revolutionary troops...

American born and educated in the public schools of Portland, Miss Leona Mary Jewell, daughter of Joe Sue, a wealthy Chinese merchant of this city, is about to become the Joan of Arc of the revolutionary cause in China.

News of her entrance at the military school near Canton was received last night by her father, in a letter from the plucky citizenship of the new republic.

Both her father and mother, knowing her acute sympathy with the rebel cause, have repeatedly urged her to join the nursing squad of the army if she felt that she must do something for the cause, but their plucky daughter has refused to be satisfied with anything less than actual military service.

It is reported in Chinese circles that the leaders of the republican movement, particularly General Li Yuen Hong, under whom she will serve, are particularly anxious that the girl should take the field, as they believe her presence will have a great moral effect on the rebel army.

Leona Mary Jewell, or Sue Wi Yat, as she is known in her native land, was born in Portland, and was educated in the public schools of this city.

In April, 1910, she went to China on a visit, accompanied by her mother and sister. When the party was ready to return to the United States, Miss Jewell decided to remain in the Dragon Empire and teach in the schools of the then recently-opened government schools.

Her work there attracted the attention of Quasi Kai, and the Chinese merchant prince persuaded the American-born girl to give up her work in the school and take up the instructions of his own children when she had been teaching for four months in the government service.

Last year Miss Jewell was engaged to a French nobleman attached to the diplomatic corps in Shanghai, but she broke the engagement, declaring she would rather marry an American. Her action in that romance brought her considerable notoriety and at the time some accounts of her engagement and its sudden termination were printed in Oriental papers published on the Pacific Coast.

Miss Jewell has two younger sisters and two brothers, all of whom live in Portland, and all of whom are active sympathizers with the revolutionary movement. One brother, who is a member of the local Young China Association.

CUBAN CRISIS IS SEEMINGLY PASSED

Leaders of Veterans' Movement Assure Gomez Aid in Quieting Island.

HOPES OF NUNEZ VANISH

With Promises of Support to Administration, Need of Intervention by United States Becomes More Distant.

HAVANA, Jan. 18.—With the assurance made tonight to President Gomez by leaders of the veterans' movement that agitators would cease and the veterans would support the administration loyally in bringing all Cubans together and in removing the falsest excuse for American intervention, there appears to be no doubt that the crisis in Cuban affairs has been passed successfully.

The conference of the President with prominent men of all factions last night proved merely an exchange of views, no definite policy being formulated.

While the necessity of union and co-operation was recognized on all sides there was one discordant note in the attitude of the leaders of the veterans, who seemed reluctant to surrender the fruits of their heretofore triumphant campaign, and were disposed to insist upon the constitutional rights of the officers of the army and rural guard to take part in the movement.

Opposition is Gone. That this opposition has completely surrendered its position is indicated by an official memorandum issued tonight from the palace after a long conference between the President and General Nunez and Colonel Coronado, editor of Discussion, representing the veterans.

"Both veterans," the memorandum says, "declared it would be their foremost effort to restore amity and confidence throughout the republic and remove the slightest pretext that might endanger the independence of the country. They were fully resolved to put an end to the present veterans' campaign."

The veteran clubs are to continue in accordance with their laws as benevolent and patriotic institutions, in no way departing from the purposes defined in their constitutions. It also was pledged that this agreement promptly would be submitted to the general council of veterans for legal ratification.

President is Gratified. "The President is greatly gratified at these declarations which he expected in view of the ardent love from the country which has ever inspired the liberators of Cuba."

While a definite policy has not been decided upon, and doubtless there will be no further conferences, the adhesion of the veterans to the administration apparently removes all possibility of disastrous discord. Probably the first move would be the presentation in Congress tomorrow of a bill rescinding the annulment of the civil service law and affirming the equal right of all Cubans to hold office.

With the expiration of the veteran movement, the hopes of General Nunez for the Presidency apparently have vanished.

What food I ate did not seem to digest, but felt like a lump in my stomach. My stomach would bloat with gas and was sour all of the time. I was so sore about the body that I could not bear to have my clothes touch me. Later I began to be troubled with rheumatism, which settled in my limbs. They were swollen and at times my arms were so stiff that I could not raise them. There was a dull, aching pain through the small of my back and for weeks I could not bend over. Nothing seemed to help me, although I tried many remedies, until I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. A few boxes helped me and I continued with them until completely cured of both the stomach trouble and rheumatism. I am now able to do my work and am in good health."
