

IDAHO GOVERNOR'S VETO SUSTAINED

Hawley Wins Fight in Legislature on Tax Issue After Stormy Proceeding.

HOUSE VOTES RELIEF BILL

New Measure Sent to Senate in Accord With Executive's Idea. Adjournment is Withheld Until Today.

BOISE, Idaho, Jan. 30.—(Special.)—Order was brought in to the Legislature here today and a revenue relief measure—a combination of the Hawley tax commission bill, the second House tax commission measure and the relief bill Governor Hawley vetoed—was introduced in the House and sent to the Senate for ratification.

The possibility of a deadlock vanished for a few minutes when the House on the House resolution fixing adjournment at 6 o'clock tonight, and passed an act ratifying the House a motion extending the adjournment to noon tomorrow.

Bill Passed in Governor's Favor

The combination revenue bill was made a special order in the Senate tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. This measure conforms with the Governor's idea, carrying out his full cash value plan and the assessment of bank stock and mines. One Democrat left the compromise will have been struck between the Legislature and the Chief Executive.

There is now no possibility of a tax commission bill being passed.

The Governor won a victory in the House this morning when by a few votes, that body failed to pass the revenue bill over his veto.

A two-thirds vote was required, and the roll call showed the vote standing 15 for, 22 against. One Democrat left the ranks of his party and voted with the Republicans.

House Has Session

The House was at sea when it failed in the attempt to pass the vetoed bill. Majority Leader Davis sprung a session a few minutes later by introducing an entirely new bill known as No. 35, the combination measure. The Republicans and Democrats determined to enact some kind of relief legislation, sprang to the support of the bill. It was passed late this afternoon and sent to the Senate for ratification.

The Senate went on record through the passage of a memorial as opposed to the Underwood bill pending in Congress on the ground that it seeks to reduce the tariff on lead and zinc ores, and if passed will vitiate result in the closing down of many of the large mines.

Congress was also memorialized to cede to Idaho, in the event Boise Barracks, the headquarters of the First Cavalry here, composed of a section of very valuable land, is deserted as proposed by the War Department, and to be used as the central site for Idaho's state educational institutions, including the University of Idaho.

WIFE OF DEAD MAN HELD

Suicide Theory Now Doubtful, Woman Thought to Be Deranged.

SEATTLE, Wash., Jan. 30.—Mrs. Emma Jones, whose husband, Edmund Jones, aged 50 years, janitor of a bank building, was shot dead in his bedroom last Friday afternoon, was held today for an investigation into her sanity. This action was taken by the coroner after the prosecuting attorney's office after the coroner had investigated the death of Jones.

At the inquest an alienist testified that Mrs. Jones for some time had been suffering mental derangement, and that one of her frequently recurring delusions was that at night she would awake suddenly to find her husband ready to kill her. Four bullet wounds were found in Jones' head, and physicians say he could not have fired all the shots. Mrs. Jones told a neighbor that after being awakened by the sound of the shots she fainted and that upon regaining consciousness she found her husband dead.

CLERK FINED $25; PENALTY REMITTED

Technical Violation of Law by Coleman Is Dealt With Lightly.

CHARGE IS HELD POLITICAL

Finley, Incensed, Declares He Will Start Inquiry Into Handling of $10,000 Angling License Fund Long Held by Official.

MEDFORD, Or., Jan. 30.—(Special.)—Pleading guilty to a technical violation of the law because he had not remitted money from game and angling licenses to the State Treasurer quarterly, W. R. Coleman, County Clerk, was given the minimum fine of $25 by Justice of Peace Taylor today and later the fine was remitted. Incidentally a duel of words was entered into between State Game Warden Finley and C. L. Reames, counsel for Mr. Coleman, which promises to lead to a complete investigation of the affairs of the County Clerk's office and possibly of the County Court.

Attorney Reames declared that the Game Warden was in a great hurry to rush into print with statements regarding County Clerk Coleman, which he could not back up; that when he said to a attorney, Warden Finley jumped to his feet white with rage, indignantly denied the imputation of playing a political game, and wanted an investigation and would like to ask where the bank records were showing the $10,000 which Mr. Coleman declared was intact.

"I ask that a public accounting be made of this money," he cried. "If you want a fight, I will give you one. I did not intend to go farther than that. I am subject to check? Under whose name was it deposited?"

There are many friends of County Clerk Coleman in Medford who declare that no one would welcome such an investigation more than the County Clerk himself.

COOK AWARDED $5146

Jury Fixes Damages for Dredge Employee's Fall on Dock.

A jury in Judge Morrow's department of the Circuit Court yesterday returned a verdict for $5146.50 against the Columbia Contract Company, in favor of Olive Mae Schadier, who lived by the advent of Maud H. Tumbin as a candidate for State Land Commissioner.

Mrs. Tumbin is unlike the usual type of suffragette. This is her first participation in politics, but she will go thirty-six years of age, and has a proud and her age and the color of her hair. Mrs. Tumbin declares she will make a campaign that will give politics to some of the gentlemen of Washington who aspire to public office.

WOMAN IS RACE ENTRANT

MRS. MAUD TAMBIN WOULD BE STATE LAND COMMISSIONER.

Washington Politics Enlivened by Latest Announcement That Widow Will Run for Office.

OLYMPIA, Wash., Jan. 30.—(Special.)—Washington politics will be enlivened by the advent of Maud H. Tumbin as a candidate for State Land Commissioner. Mrs. Tumbin has been an employee of the land department since 1902 and will make her campaign on the grounds of experience.

Her husband was an old stager into the campaign like an old stager and proud of her age and the color of her hair. Mrs. Tumbin declares she will make a campaign that will give politics to some of the gentlemen of Washington who aspire to public office.

"Of course I will tell my age," said Mrs. Tumbin. "It is a matter of age and I shall have nothing to conceal in my campaign. It will not be my purpose to appeal to the women of the state, but to the men of the state. I naturally expect their support."

"As secretary of the State Land Board it is my business to examine and check up on the reports of the inspectors. When I first entered the office of State Land Commissioner I was engaged as a stenographer and have been advanced by successive promotions to my present position as secretary of the Land Board."

"During my connection with the land office of the board and the Land Commissioner have done with regard to state lands. I have personally visited and made examinations of lands made and passed upon matters of title in connection with issuance of contracts and deeds. It has been necessary for me to make myself familiar with state laws and decisions relating to state lands and their disposition."

My regular duties require me to make up applications and prepare papers for the regular sales, as well as to dictate from 25 to 30 letters a day, answer inquiries relating to the various applications and matters before the land department and prepare the papers for signature by the Board and Commissioner.

"The question of efficiency and capability has been generally conceded, and it has been frequently said that I will have but one objection to overcome—one fight to win. That is, to be prejudiced against a woman holding office. I cannot see why the question of sex should have any weight as I know of no duty connected with the office of Commissioner of Public Lands which a woman, properly qualified and trained, could not perform."

Mrs. Tumbin is a widow and has one child, a girl now 10 years old, now attending the Lincoln School in Olympia.

The Y. M. C. A. officials are confident that heavy gains in the membership will be reported in the closing days of the week. WILLS CAUSE STIR

Three New Documents Sought in Warner Case.

DATES POINT TO FORGERY

Provisions for Disposal of Young Estate Made in Instrument Four Years After Death—Ridiculous Fraud Charged.

PENDLETON, Or., Jan. 30.—(Special.)—Demanding that the defense produce three entirely new "wills" to the estate of the late James W. Young, of Milton, prosecuting Attorney Van Vactor sprung the first sensation of the Mabel Warner will trial just before the adjournment of the afternoon session of court today.

The first will is alleged to have been witnessed by Attorney J. B. Perry and C. C. Hendricks, of this city, the second by Peter West and Louis Hummel, both dead, and the third by B. D. Hall and Dr. F. D. Watts.

Hall is a witness for the state and Watts has been leading the fight against Mrs. Warner.

The last will, admitted by all to be a palpable forgery, is made more ridiculous by bearing the date of November 22, 1909, four years after Young died. It purports to give all of the Young estate in Weston and $10,000 to Fred Young, brother of Mabel Warner, $5000 to his wife and the remainder of the estate of Mrs. Warner, where this document and the other two came from has not been divulged.

Attorneys for the defense admitted having the second will demanded in their possession, but defied the prosecution to make them produce it. They charged the state with having the other, though it is generally believed by these documents have not yet been made public. This makes a total of seven "wills" which have appeared and which purport to dispose of the Young estate.

Five Witnesses Testify.

In making his opening statement to the jury, the prosecutor declared the state would show Mrs. Warner not only uttered the so-called "fourth" will knowing it was a forgery, but that she had sought to employ certain persons to employ persons to testify for her.

R. R. Johnson for the defense declared they would prove the state's witnesses had made these propositions to Mrs. Warner and had been utterly repudiated by her. But five of the 70 witnesses subpoenaed in the case testified today.

Among the five was John McCourt, United States Attorney for Oregon, whose name appeared as a witness to the first of the wills.

INDIAN SEEKS RIGHT

Brownville Resident May Win Portion of 1480 Acres of Land.

BROWNVILLE, Or., Jan. 30.—(Special.)—A recent dispatch from Cottage Grove, published in The Oregonian, to the effect that testimony had been taken in the case of Jake Fearn, the supposed only living member of the Calapooia tribe of Indians, for the possession of 1480 acres of tribal lands contained in an allotment made to the Umpqua and Calapooia tribes in 1858, has brought out the fact that a descendant of the Calapooias resides in Brownville in the person of Indian Liza, an extremely old and nearly blind Indian woman. That this woman can establish her rights to a share of this land is believed to be beyond question by those familiar with the case, and persons here interested in the old Indian woman have taken the matter up with the officials of the Land Office at Roseburg.

Several years ago Indian Liza desired to go and live with Fearn, who she asserted at that time was the only other living member of the Calapooia tribe, but it was supposed that he had died.

Indian Liza lives on the bounty of the people of Brownville with the assistance of a small allowance from Lincoln County. She is given a home and is looked after personally at the farm of B. M. Cushman on the outskirts of the city.

Lewis County Books Audited.

CENTRALIA, Wash., Jan. 30.—(Special.)—The audit of the Lewis County books by examiners sent out by the state board of accountancy, has been completed. None of the accounts of the various county officials were found to be short, but an error was discovered of $50 in favor of County Auditor Harry Swofford. The examiner found that the county had been paying for gasoline for the automobiles of Commissioners Harms and Gray, the examiners reporting this to be illegal. The cost of the auditing to the county was $972.20.
