

ULSTER CALM WHEN CHURCHILL COMES

Promise of Sanguinary Riots Not Fulfilled; Not One Head Is Broken.

UGLY TEMPER IS AROUSED

First Lord of Admiralty, After Enthusiastic Meeting, Disappoints Crowds by Leaving in Secret on Early Train.

BELFAST, Feb. 8.—Winston Spencer Churchill's incursion here, which threatened at one time to cause a sanguinary rioting and serious loss of life, has ended without even a broken head. The first Lord of the Admiralty and John E. Redmond, leader of the Irish Nationalists, spoke today from the same platform on the home rule bill. Mr. Churchill outlined the intentions of the government with respect to the government for Ireland and declared that no greater boon could come to the empire than the settlement of the long and bitter quarrel between the British government and the Irish people.

RAIS IS SOLDIERS' ALTY

The presence in Belfast of the largest military force ever gathered to preserve peace among the Irish factions combined with a drenching rain to check the bellicose leader of the home-rule party. His hostility was mainly vented by booing and hooting. But the ugly temper was aroused and the civil authority was warned of possible consequences as shown by the fact that on their advice Mr. Churchill left the city by a special train two hours before the announced time of his departure, thus disappointing a huge crowd which assembled later to give him a mixed send-off.

UNIONISTS BURNED IN EFFLUY

The night in Belfast was quietly. Great crowds paraded the streets until a late hour, but the rival parties for the most part kept to their own quarters of the city. The Nationalist and Unionist leaders of Lord Londonderry and Sir Edward Carson, the Unionist leader.
