BROWN EXPECTS TO LAND AT SUMMIT

Owner of Vancouver Baseball Club Expresses Confidence in Result.

PORTLAND BALL PARK SEEN

British Columbia Magnate Expresses Admiration for New Grandstand and Takes Notes for One He Intends to Build.

BY ROSCOE FAWCETT. Robert P. Brown, wearer of the gonfalon grin, magnate and man of affairs, was in Portland yesterday for a squint at the new ball park. Brown was the Vancouver Club, in the Northwestern League, and was en route across the 49th parallel from Long Beach, Cal., where he worked the "hit and run" and "squeeze" play on sand fless innumerable during the past

"My, what a swell layout you have!" ejaculated the moulder of the budding athletes, as he gazed enraptured over the scene of building operations at Recreation Park Brown figures on erecting a model park himself next Pall in the British Columbia metropolia, so he inspected every detail.

Old Times Recalled. By a rather peculiar coincidence the Vancouver mogul played his first game of ball on the Pacific Coast with the Portland team, 11 years ago, and the grandstand recently torn down was then in about the same unfinished shape the present plant is in. Brown says he never will forget that first day in Portland. He and Joe Tinker drifted in together from the Helena Club, of the Montana State League, on the ruins of which the Northwestern the rains of which the Northwestern the ruins of which the Northwestern Lesgue had its berth that season.

"Jack Grim was running the club, and he tried to stick us 75 cents for our locker keys," said the rudy-haired bess. "Joe and I immediately resolved ourselves into a walking delegation and went on strike. Of course we won cut. No modern shower-bath appliance."

out. No modern shower-bath appliances then. A hose attached to a cold water faucet did the work, and the men had to stand in the corner and take the ablution through the nozzie."

Between "eyesful" Brown found time to say that he believes Vancouver will again camp in close proximity to the Class B pennant, but that Spokane, Seattle and Portland all look like strong contenders. His team practically will be intact from 1911. Brinker will be missing from the outfield, but Brown's agreement with the Philadelphia Nationals calls for Dode's return, should be fall by the wayside. Jimmy Harrison, bought by Pittsburg, has been turned over to Evansville, in the Central League. Kippert is the chief addition.

Waiver Business Discussed.

The visitor laughed when asked the whyfor of his recent request for nearly a dozen waivers on such men as Emil Frisk. Eli Cates, Charley Swain, "Lefty" Gervais and others. He pointed out that he didn't have to let any of them go, even if the waivers were caught up by any team, but he rouidn't get it through his cranium way Victoria hadn't even offered the 1200 waiver price for Frisk Gates and Waiver Business Discussed. walver price for Frisk, Gates and Kippert Is Praised. He doesn't hit like Ham Donlin. He doesn't hit like Ham Hyatt, but is a swell player. Cohn, of spokane, asserts I worked a smooth trick in getting him, but he has no kick coming. He sold him to the majors and then I bought him. He must have been satisfied with the deal or he wouldn't have let him go."

After hooding down the outfield for Portland in 1301, Brown organized a league in Eastern Oregon and finally wound up at Aberdeen as boss of the

PROMOTER STANDING PAT

Ex-Featherweight Champion Hollering That He Got Worst of Decision at Vernon-Harbored Fear Coffroth Might Pike.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 21.—(Special.)—Jimmy Coffroth stands pat on the Abe Attell-Harlem Tommy Murphy 20-round match for Saturday afternoon,

Last Spring Brown asked waivers on George Engel, kept him, though no clubs refused, and then George came through and proved the most convistent pitcher in the league.

"I think my club will be stronger than in 1511," said Brown, answering a query by President McCredie, of the Portland club. "I have picked up a young outfielder named Demaggio, from Los Angeles, whom I look to make Abe should have had was a draw. by no less a person than James J.
