Head of Good Roads Committee Hopes for Results.

MEETING SET FOR TODAY

Chairman Says Governor's Appointces to Unify Highway Legislation Are Free to Act in Way They See Fit.

W. B. Ayer, of this city, president of the Eastern & Western Lumber Company and chairman of the special good roads committee appointed by Governor West last week, has called a meeting of the committee at the Multnomah Hotel at 11 o'clock this morning.

It will be the function of this com-mittee to consider all of the pending bills for good roads legislation and if possible, evolve measures that will meet with the approval of the voters when submitted under the initiative in the general election next Novem-ber.

Opposition Causes Action The creation of this committee was resorted to by Governor West following the objections that were offered to the series of bills drafted and subby the grange.

Good roads advocates all over the state are hopeful that the committee last appointed by the Governor will be able to solve the knotty problem confronting them and produce from their efforts proposed legislation that will receive the general support of the voters throughout the state. On the result of the labors of this committee depends whether or not a multiplicity depends whether or not a multiplicity of good roads bills is submitted under the initiative.

Open Meetings Urged.

Open Meetings Urged.

Unless satisfactory measures are drafted it is assured that several conflicting measures on the subject will be placed on the ballot, with the natural result that in the confusion that follows the enactment of good roads' legislation, universally demanded, will in all probability be defeated.

"I am in hopes that the committee will consent to hold open meetings, that full publicity may be given to its proceedings as the work progresses," said Mr. Ayer yesterday. "However, this is a detail for the members of the committee. The meeting tomorrow has been called so as to enable the committee. The meeting tomorrow within the ten days he has allowed us to finish our labors.

"Our hands are not tied in any way, but I would not undertake to forecast the probable action of the committee. We are free to take up and indorse any of the pending bills in full, or we can disregard them altogether and draft entirely new measures.

Harmony Is Desired. "Realising the need of the proplegislation and the desire for har-lous action, I am especially ho that the committee, as a result of its labors, will succeed in drafting a bill, or series of bills, that will meet with or sories of bills, that will meet with the approval of the voters of the state and pave the way for systematic statewide co-operation in promoting needed highway construction in this state."
In addition to Mr. Ayer, who was designated as chairman by Governor West, the other members of the committee are: C. E. Spence, master of the Oregon State Grange; C. T. Prall, secretary of the Oregon Association for Highway Improvement; Bernard Daly, County Judge of Lake County, and W. K. Newell, president of the State Board of Horticulture.

Bauer's Artistry Sunshine on Rainy Day

Accomplished Planist Enthralis Audience at Heilig.

BY JOSEPH M. QUENTIN. RAINY afternoon at the Hellig A RAINY attended Bauer's plane recital and the genuine artistry he displayed were mental sunshine and marked the occasion as one of supreme marked the occasion as one of supreme musical excellence.

Bauer was born in England in the year 1873, but in his case—for he is one of the most gifted of all time, musically—he is so matured in art that he is a storehouse of all ages. Mere reckoning of time is just referred to in passing, when one measures up the worth of Harold Bauer, planist. He makes one think of the disputed but poetic doctrine of reincarnation, that many of us have lived before, and that the great ones among the race today when they excel in tasks, excel because probably they have worked at cause probably they have worked at the task so often for the mere joy of the working. Bauer has given concerts in this city on different occasions and has played here to large and enthusiastic audiences. It is a puzzle then to determine satisfactorily why yesterday afternoon's audience was so small. The same enthusiasts were there, but the crowd was not. The musical colors crowd was not. The musical colony was but slimly represented.

Bauer's programme was severely classical, remantic and partock of the nature of a concert devoted to the elu-cidation of the friendships of Schumann. Liszt and Chopin Bauer was royally received, being recalled no less than 14 times. The applause was not of the pit-pat order, either, but genuine hand-to-hand work. Bauer's art is a revto-hand work. Bauer's art is a revelation every time he gives a concert here, it is so clusive, yet marked by sincerity, and beautified by fine light and shade. Bauer is not a poseur. He is a master painter of musical color, and calls into being every conceivable degree of prism tone. Largely self the founder of a new school of plano playing, a school in which the mastery of pedal work has its proper place in plano technique.

Schumann's "Kreisleriana" and the famous fantasia he dedicated to Lisat; Lisat's "Sonato in B Minor," dedicated to Schumann; and Chopin's "Ballade in P." dedicated to Schumann, and the "Etudes, op. "10, Nos. 3 and 4," dedicated to Lisat, are classiques of almost what one might call antiquity, when measured by the compositions of, say, 1912. Therefore, any criticism of their values is not necessary this morning. Suffice it to say that these favorites were played by Bauer with conspicwere played by Bauer with conspicuous ability, with many degrees of color contrasts. Bauer had many opportunities to play encores, but he just bowed his acknowledgements—he had to hurry to prepare for his journey to Vancouver, B. C.

Vancouver, B. C.

He was as ever the calm, sane, goodnatured Bauer. After playing the heavy and exhausting programme, Bauer, with his face covered with perspiration (piano playing of the Bauer school is no easy task), lighted a cigarette and said to a man friend: "That's good." to a man friend: "That's good."

The entire concert was eminently worth while. It was one of the Lols Steers-Wynn Coman series.

GOLD COINED FROM TEARS

Film at People's Presents Indictment Against Child Labor.

"Children Who Labor," in films at the People's Theater yesterday, was received with deserved applause at each show. The subject was graph-ically handled, and the pictoral indictment against the greed of many who coin wealth from the toil and tears of childhood was set forth with inspiring severity. It taught a great lesson and provided another striking bit of evidence of the educational value of pictures. A biograph of the striping kind, about a rude fellow who griping kind, about a rude fellow who griping kind, about a rude fellow who gave up his last drop of water for a weakling, whom, however, his ideal woman loved, pleased many. Bunny's Angular Wife, in another film, adopts some rather stern neasures to repress his fondness for poker, and Willie's boasted bravery as a hunter is dashed to earth by the truth. The films were supplemented by the first of a series of excellent slides prepared by Gov-ernor West on Oregon's state institutions, yesterday's series covering the State Insane Asylum and recent im-provements there. That Trio and the Romig Twins furnished the vocal num-Homig Twins furnished the vocal numbers in a most acceptable manner.

The Star Theater offered a film feature, "The Cowboy Damon and Pythias," which was fully as exciting as any audience could assimilate in one setting. Pottery-making, an educational, was exceptionally interesting. The Lemon revealed a new way by which a discreted actor secured as

The Lemon revealed a new way by which a discarded actor secured an engagement. Other films were standard. Miss Josephine Brown sang a beautiful ditty from the "Burgomaster" and Lew Davis offered a character song that went with a vim. The entire show was meritorious and happily received by big crowds.

The Arcade offered four splendid subjects, including two dramas, one farce-comedy and an educational. The Oh Joy Theater's programme contained five distinct subjects—two dramatic offerings, two comedies and one educational film.

To those who occasionally with one educational film.

To those who occasionally with thoughtlessness take a fling at pictures, attention is directed to the fact that on every programme of the chief theaters of the Poople's Amusement Company there appeared yesterday at least one film distinctly educational.

INVALIDS ENJOY CONCERT

Webber's Juvenile Orchestra Gives a Recital at St. Vincent's Hospital.

A concert by Webber's Juvenile Stringed Orchestra of 11 pieces was enjoyed by the patients of St. Vincent's Hospital yesterday afternoon. The re-cital was given on the third floor of the building, where the largest number Many inmates came out into the cor-ridors, while other patients lay in bed and listened to the strains that floated in through open doors. The music was particularly pleasing to the patients from the children's ward. Among these was a little boy suffering from Juberculosis of the spine, and another lad with a broken leg, who were brought out on wheel chairs.

"When I formerly noted how thoroughly my little concerts were enjoyed by the patients here," said Mr. Webber, "I resolved to do my best to make the recitals more frequent, and the musicians of the city have virtually agreed to a plan that will give the patients in the hospitals an opportunity to hear good music at least once a month. several occasions at my concerts pa-tients wept as they listened to the mu-sic. One man told me he had not been out of the hospital for ten years. There are others that have been there almost as long, and these concerts are the only chances they have of hearing music."

The programme rendered yesterday was of a sprightly, cheery character, and a number of the selections contained vocal parts, which were rendered by the players.

The players were:
Zalle Colson and Mildred Van Avery, first mandolins: Ellsworth Ricketts and Roby Poffonberger, principal mandolins: Ethel Pascall, Bonita Henry and Gay Kelly, seond mandolins: Francisco Bliss, violin: Revd mandelins; Francisco Bilss, violin; Reyold Gustofson, mandela; Hazel Van Avery, and; Russell Keily, mandelin and traps
