

WITNESS FOR STATE ADS HICKS' CAUSE

Furniture Dealer Tells of Hearing Commotion Preceding Shooting.

TRIAL ATTORNEYS BICKER

Right of Physician Called by Prosecution to Testify as Expert at Request of Defense Brings on Wordy Squabble.

Called as a witness for the state in the Hicks murder trial yesterday, W. Dorres, of 651 1/2 East Morrison street, gave evidence which might be construed as distinctly advantageous to the defense when being cross-examined by Dan J. Malarkey, chief counsel for the accused man.

The defense will contend that the noise which Mr. Dorres heard was caused by Wortman, who weighed about 215 pounds, throwing Hicks, a much smaller man, against the building. This would tend to uphold Hicks' contention of self-defense. On the testimony of the witness considered as a whole, however, another construction, favorable to the state, may be placed.

The furniture man said that he was in front of his place of business watching furniture unloaded from a van shortly before the shooting occurred. He saw Hicks standing on the sidewalk about 15 or 20 feet from him, possibly waiting for a Brooklyn car to convey him to his home, as it was Hicks' habit to catch his car at that point. Hicks remained standing in that position for possibly five or seven minutes, Mr. Dorres testified, and then started walking slowly toward the witness. Hicks was within about five feet of him and the latter was about to address Hicks when a woman, Mrs. Blaggenheimer, came down the street from the direction of Grand avenue and said she wished to pay Mr. Dorres some money on account.

Interval About Three Minutes. The witness entered the store with Mrs. Blaggenheimer and walked slowly with her to the office, a distance of about 30 feet. He had provided her with a seat and was in the act of sitting down himself when he heard the commotion. He thought the interval might be three minutes, but his answers to questions indicated that the event which transpired from the time he entered the store until the shot was fired was probably much less. From this the state's attorneys argue that Hicks was not in a position to take upon Hicks, which the defendant's attorneys allege occurred, and that Hicks shot with small provocation and with little reason to believe that his life was in danger.

Dr. W. W. Bruce, the physician called immediately after the shooting and who performed the autopsy on the dead man, testified that he entered the left side and tore his way through the body about an inch in front of the spinal column and imbedded itself in the chest. He testified that the surface of the right side of Wortman's body.

From this testimony the defense argues that the revolver was in the close against the victim as otherwise the bullet would have come out on the other side. The deduction is thus made that the two men were struggling when the shot was fired. This would be directly at variance with statements made by Special Prosecutor Davis in addressing the jury in advance of the taking of testimony. Mr. Davis contended that Wortman was backing away from Hicks with his hand over his face when the bullet was discharged and that Hicks discharged with his arm extended. Experts will be called to testify as to how far the bullet would penetrate under varying circumstances.

ANTI-SUFFRAGISTS MEET

Body Opposing Votes for Women Plans Statewide Opposition.

To prepare for the coming campaign the Oregon State Association opposed to the extension of the suffrage to women held its first public meeting of the year Thursday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. Gordon Voorhies, Nineteenth and Kearney streets, at which 40 women were present. Mrs. Francis J. Ballew, president, announced that this was one of a number of public meetings to be held to start the campaign to defeat the proposed woman's suffrage amendment to the state constitution. The secretary, Miss Eleanor E. Gile, read a paper, prepared by Wallace McCann, showing that the association had done in the 12 years of its existence and how it had won at the polls whenever the matter had been submitted to the voters of the state.

VICE-CONSUL WILL PREPARE FOR VISIT TO PORTLAND OF NORWEGIAN MINISTER.

H. Bryn, the Norwegian Minister to the United States, will visit the Pacific Coast and Portland early in April. H. Bryn, vice-consul for Norway, received an official letter yesterday from Henry Lunde, Norwegian Consul in San Francisco, informing him of Minister Bryn's contemplated visit. The exact date will be given later.

The object of the Minister's visit to the Coast, as given officially, is to inform himself as to conditions on the Coast in connection with the opening of the Panama Canal. As Norway ranks second as to tonnage in Portland and as she has established regular lines from Norway to Australia and other points in the Pacific, the opening of the canal is of especial importance to her.

The treasurer, Mrs. Wallace McCann, submitted her report that showed the expenses of the last campaign to have been $770, and with the suggestion that it would take much more to make the fight at the coming election. Miss Henrietta Felling, vice-president of the association, read an interesting paper on its objects and aims.

Mrs. Herbert Holman and Miss Bain, of the Lincoln school, read papers on the condition of women in the states where woman's suffrage exists, the latter giving her personal experience in Utah, where she resided for four years. Before adjournment and after tea had been served it was announced that it was the desire to increase the membership as much as possible and to that end all present were requested to interest their friends in the movement and invite them to become members.

Answers Held Unimportant.
Attorneys for the state affect to attach but little importance to this evidence, saying that Hicks and Wortman were moving about rapidly and that only the testimony of eye witnesses can establish what their positions were with respect to each other when the fatal bullet left the revolver. The only other witness was Leo Goetck, a deputy coroner, who told of conveying the body of Wortman to the morgue. The effects found in the dead man's pockets were a jackknife, which was in a left side rear trousers pocket, a handkerchief and a memorandum book, the witness said. The memorandum book, which, according to Goetck, contained addresses and entries of various kinds, was not produced in court, and Mr. Malarkey's questions on cross-examination indicated that the defense might be much interested in its production and contents. The witness said he did not know what had become of it.
