"Oregon First" Excursionists Return Loud in Praises for Californians.

PARTY TIRED BUT HAPPY

All Speak of Wonderful Hospitality Shown in San Francisco—Influence of Oregon Reflected by Impressive Demonstration.

BABY MAY BE CHRISTENED "OREGON FIRST." Shortly after the excursionists departed from San Francisco on the homeward trip, Harry Wilson, of this city, electrician on the spot, was apprised by a telegram that he was the father of a child named baby boy, born at 12:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon. The news spread quickly through the train and several of the Oregon First excursionists of the "Oregon First Excursionist." It was unanimously voted that the little fellow should be christened "Oregon First." The proud father agreed to this, but they admitted the final determination of the question rested with the wife and mother. In a few minutes a nurse of 420 was called and the excursionists for Master Wilson.

Welcomed by the warm rays of an Oregon March-day sun and greeted by numerous friends, the vanguard of the "Oregon First" excursion to San Francisco arrived in Portland promptly on schedule at 2:45 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Although fatigued by the exertions of almost incessant festivities in the exposition city, in addition to two days' absence from their homes, the Oregonians returned loud in their praises of the hospitality of the Californians, pleased with their triumphant entrance and comment on San Francisco and especially gratified by the complete effacement of any barriers which may have existed between Oregon and California. The exhibition of a permanent friendship which can only prove mutually advantageous.

Only about 50 of the party of 200 excursionists returned yesterday, the others, being unable to sever themselves from California and its attractions, deciding to remain for a day or two longer. Many will remain the 20-day limit granted by their tickets.

Members of the Portland Commercial Club will give the "Oregon First" excursionists a special reception at the club on Wednesday night. These pictures will be exhibited at a smoker at the Commercial Club tomorrow night. The latter part of this week, or next week, arrangements will be made for making a public exhibition of these pictures. Of this day announcement will be made.

Our visit to San Francisco, said Edgar E. Piper, president of the Commercial Club, who presided yesterday, "was the most impressive demonstration of the influence of Oregon which has ever been given to a neighboring state. The Oregon people have not only received with the generous hospitality for which California is noted, but with the unbounded interest of the public there."

community to do in the way of consideration and hospitality was expended by the San Francisco people for their Oregon visitors.

"It was a most magnificent entertainment," said Postmaster Merrick. "The people of San Francisco did everything within their power to give us a good time and they succeeded admirably. The bars are now down between Oregon and California. It would take several columns for me to express the gratitude I feel to the Californians for the reception and entertainment we received."

"The people of San Francisco are certainly royal entertainers," said H. P. Palmer. "In the estimation of San Francisco people, Portland is one of the greatest cities in the country. There is more genuine fellow feeling between the citizens of these two cities than can be found anywhere. The ties of friendship are no stronger than ever. San Francisco is growing and is becoming exceedingly prosperous. The exposition will make San Francisco a great city and it will also be a great aid to the development and progress of Portland and Oregon."

Portland is fortunate in being one of the ten great livestock centers of the United States, and in forging ahead of the centers in point of finance involved, was the statement made by D. O. Lively, of the Portland Union Stockyards, in his address yesterday at the luncheon given by the East Side Business Men's Club at the Hotel Sargent.

East Side Business Men's Club and these business men here today an invitation to come down and see the stock.

It was announced at the close of Mr. Lively's address that the East Side Business Men's Club electric train will start for the livestock show from the corner of Union avenue and East Burnside street today between 12:30 and 1 P. M. and go straight through to the stockyards. It was announced that there will be ample cars for all who may want to go. A star of several hours will be made at the show.

Among the excursionists returning yesterday were: Mr. and Mrs. George H. Hickey, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Pitcock, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar B. Piper, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Montiel, Mr. and Mrs. Kendall, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Ross, J. R. Kaufman, A. C. Callan, C. B. Merrick, R. S. Farrell, W. C. Bristol, C. W. Stinger, Paul Westinger, A. P. Tiff, J. Fred Larson, A. E. Finley, Charles H. Berg, H. P. Palmer, Phil Grossbauer and J. M. Wright, of this city; Leslie Butler, of Hood River.

Every effort should be put forth to encourage the raising of stock of all kinds in the Northwest, and save the $17,000,000 that is spent outside of this territory for such stock and sheep. We are holding a livestock show in North Portland, and we invite you to come and see what has been accomplished. Last year we had 3000 cattle, 80,000 sheep and this year we shall show fully 7500 cattle. This is the place where we can handle from one to 10 carloads of stock every day. We will show you the blue blooded stock of the West, stock whose pedigree reaches back more than 200 years. We will show you cattle whose whose progenitors reared the highlands of Scotland years ago. So, in all lines in high degree will be shown stock.

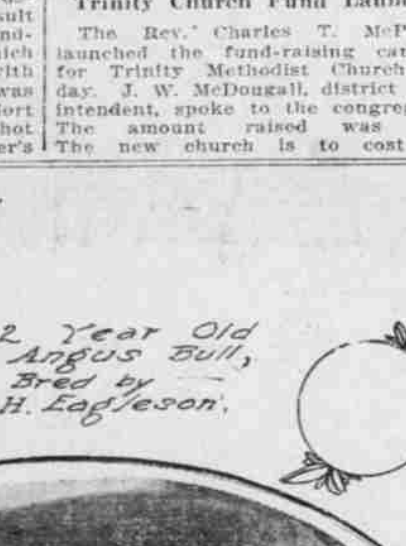

IRISH MOONLIGHTERS BUSY Members of Band Fire Shots at Persons and Destroy Their Property.

DUBLIN, March 9.—(Special)—During the last few weeks, "moonlighting" has been rampant in the west. Clara and Galway have especially distinguished themselves in the shooting of "objectionables" and the destruction of their property. In the Ryan district several gun and revolver shots were fired into the house of a herdsman, Michael Ryan, with the result that both he and his wife were wounded, while the post of the bed in which their daughter slept was riddled with shot. Early last year Ryan's son was fired at and severely injured. At Gort the son of a process server was shot as he sat at the fireside in his father's house. He was seriously hurt. At Kinnvara a man named Killeen was fired at and struck by several pellets while walking on the public road. At Drumgriffin four shots were fired into the house of Michael Kavanagh, who had a narrow escape, for as he was passing from the kitchen to another apartment a bullet grazed his ear and imbedded itself in the wall. Several shots were discharged into the house of a farmer at Ballymurphy, near Ennis, and a police sergeant on patrol at Clonboe, Galway, was shot in the thigh from behind a wall.

Second Annual Show Notable for High Quality of Animals Displayed.

STUDENT JUDGING FEATURE

Teams From Oregon and Washington Agricultural Colleges and University of Idaho Are in Close Competition.

Enthusiasm in the second annual Pacific Northwest Livestock Show brought 2000 persons to the Union Stockyards yesterday. The opening day of the show, the exhibits of purebred and fat stock were not all judged as was planned, there having been so many more entries than was expected. A band played in the large tent where the arena was located. Many hurried about trying to see in a few hours what would take at least one day. Others were grouped about the pens where the judges were giving decisions. They climbed on the heavy fences or stood on the straw, and many women were among the number, and a few children.

Student Judges Compete. The judging contest between the students of the Agricultural Colleges of Idaho, Washington and Oregon was a feature of the day. Oregon and Idaho had two teams each of five and four students, respectively, and Washington had one team of four. The students vied with each other to select the winning stock, and their winnings were considered upon comparing their opinions with those of the professional judges. They were the guests of the Union Stock Yards in company with the judges at luncheon. The management decided that the money, which would have been necessary to provide ribbons, had better be distributed in cash, making the prizes all in money. Luther W. Conover, of Chicago, who has passed his life studying cattle and many years in judging stock, was the judge of the Hereford cattle. William J. Fullman, was judge of Short Horn cattle. A. J. Spahn, of North Yakima, pioneer cattlemen of the Northwest, judged the Hereford cattle. Professional judges judged the horses with the students. F. E. McElDowney, Ladd Farm, judged the swine. Frank Brown, of Carlton, judged the beef sheep, and Frank Lacey, of Portland, judged the fat sheep.

Auction on Today. At 10 o'clock this morning there will be a large panoramic picture of all the winners taken. The feature of today will be the auctioning of all the prize-winning fat stock. The Professional Judging Contest will occur the visitors, who came in a special train from Idaho and Washington. Other clubs, including the Rotary Club, the Realtor Board, the Admen's Club and the East Side Business Men's Club will be represented in that party today. The exhibit of the Union Meat Company showing 210 different products from the carcass of a steer is worth special attention. The teams of the various colleges were as follows: Oregon First team, Professor G. R. Hanson, of the department of animal husbandry in charge; Morris Coon, J. S. Damon, A. L. Carnot, A. B.
