NEW SLIT SKIRTS SHOCK

Parisian Offering Is Garment With Opening at Side Extending Well Above Knee to Be Worn With Wide Mesh Stockings.

CHICAGO, March 18.—(Special.)—Given time and opportunity the dress-makers of this country will eventually turn the woman back to the immense hoop skirts of ante-bellum days.

The Paris dressmakers' most startling contribution to milady's wardrobe this year is to be a new skirt, very narrow, with a slit at the side extending well above the knee.

MRS. HEGGIE SAYS LEWIS LED HER TO MINIMIZE REPORTS.

Mrs. Eliza Webster Reveals Desire for "Heart-to-Heart Talk" With Man Who Took Her Money.

ST. LOUIS, March 18.—Judge Amidon, presiding in the case against E. G. Lewis in the United States District Court, again, overruled objections today, the answers to which were expected to show the relation of the Postoffice Department toward the Lewis publications.

Mrs. W. C. Heggie, of Ithaca, N. Y., told of investing $2500 in Lewis' enterprises. She testified she was influenced by advertisements in the Lewis publications and by an article in the Woman's Magazine entitled "A Heart-to-Heart Talk With the Editor."

The witness said she remained none of her principal and received only a small part of the interest.

Mrs. Heggie said the fraud order and the withdrawal of the second-class mail privileges informed her of losses and she also had read in the Lewis papers that the enterprises had recovered from these losses and were in a flourishing condition.

Mrs. Eliza A. Webster's desire for a "heart-to-heart talk" with Lewis regarding her $1519 investment in the Lewis enterprises was expressed in her letter to him, which was read today in the course of testimony.

The term "critters" was applied by Mrs. Webster in her letter to the interior receipts which she received in respect of the stock which she said she expected to get when she sent her money—money raised by mortgaging her home at Emerson, Neb.

DISCRETION IS RELIED UPON

There were a number of indignant comments in the lobby of the house today on the part of members who professed to believe the correctness of the alleged interview, but the prevailing belief was that Mr. Reid was too discreet a man to make the remarks attributed to him at such a critical time.

But there was a feeling that an explanation was forthcoming from Mr. Reid. One opinion expressed was that the alleged interview was likely to create an impression among the strikers that the government would be forced to grant their demands or that social and political chaos would follow as a consequence of a refusal.

Mr. Reid is better, but the weather conditions are bad for any one suffering from a bronchial affection. The ambassador expects to return to London next week. So sure is he of complete recovery by that time that he has made an engagement to go to Belfast on March 28 to deliver a lecture on the subject of the "Elster Scot," under the auspices of the Presbyterian Historical Society.

ACCIDENT KILLS 32

Locomotive Boiler Explodes Dealing Awful Death.

MEN ARE TORN TO BITS

Southern Pacific Shops in San Antonio Wrecked When Terrible Blast Comes—Woman Blocks Away Seriously Injured.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 18.—At least 32 men were killed and parts of their bodies strewn for blocks when a big passenger locomotive in the Southern Pacific shops blew up here this morning.

The locomotive stood in a square formed by the cooper-house, blacksmith shop and roundhouse, all of which were wrecked. A part of the locomotive crashed into a house several blocks away and seriously hurt a woman.

Twenty of the bodies have been identified, but what is believed to be 12 more is little more than a tangled mass of fragments of human flesh and bones that probably never will be separated.

These fragments were found jammed into crevices about the wrecked buildings in the streets, and entangled in machinery of the shops. The identified dead:

J. Brady, machinist, Pittsburg; Walter Hourdan, engineer; Raymond E. Brady, Allegheny, Pa.; B. Mansker, Sr., foreman blacksmith shop, W. O. Hooper, machinist; William R. Bremer, machinist; James Valentine, engine inspector; H. C. Durbin, machinist; — Werber, J. R. Miller, Orange, Tex.; Albert Roberts, helper; E. B. Shaw, Calbourne, Tex., machinist; — May; J. Gordon, roundhouse employe; Carl Zysko, blacksmith; five negro helpers.

Except where indicated, the former residences of those killed are not known. The shops have been manned for several weeks by nonunion men, imported when shopmen of the Harriman lines went out. It is believed most of the killed are from the North and East.

Carelessness Thought. It is believed the explosion was caused by carelessness of some one of the killed, in allowing cold water to flow into the hot boiler of the locomotive. The locomotive was nearly new and was in the shops for inspection. It was of the large Mogul type.

Besides the 32 believed to have been killed, 50 persons were injured. Those killed by the blast or crushed by falling material when the buildings crumbled. The monster loss will be about $200,000.

Franks of the terrific impact were many, but one of the most strange was that the driving wheels were not damaged, while parts of the huge locomotive were hurled blocks. The large wheels apparently did not budge.

Woman Among Injured. Inside the machine and blacksmith shop the greatest loss of life was noted. Here 16 or more men were killed, portions of their bodies being found jammed in crevices in the roof and sides or entangled in machinery. A great portion of the wall fell inward, burying 12 men.

Mrs. B. S. Gillis, 62, in her home seven blocks away, was perhaps fatally injured when the front end of the locomotive crashed into the house, demolishing three rooms and continuing through the structure.

In the cooper shop, T. A. Williams, the foreman, was knocked under a heavy workbench, the entire structure plunging down over him, but he escaped with burns and bruises. He remained under the debris until half an hour after the explosion.

Among the strikers of the injured after the explosion arose the roar of flaming oil from the feedpipe through which the oil-burning locomotives fill their tenders. This pipe had broken and ignited. The flow of oil was out off.

In addition to all available medical aid, relief organizations, a squad of Third United States Cavalry and the city's entire police force joined in the relief work.
