BIG INFUX IS PREDICTED

Residents in Middle West Said to Look Toward Coast. R. H. Crosier, advertising agent for the North Bank Road, has returned from a trip to Chicago, St. Paul and other points in the Middle West, where he studied the conditions that govern the flow of immigration to Oregon. Mr. Crosier says that uncertain weather in the Mississippi and Missouri River valleys, more than anything else, will influence a lot of people to desert their homes in those portions of the country within the next few years, in the hope of finding climatic relief in the Pacific Northwest. The movement of immigration this year has not been as heavy as in some previous years, but it is his opinion that many

He was going to serve papers on a defendant in a suit and was told that he could take a short cut over a log chute. When in the chute the yarder started and he was unable to escape, owing to the steep bank on both sides.
