FAKE ADVERTISERS TO BE PROSECUTED

Ad Club Committee Gathers Evidence to Be Submitted to District Attorney.

VIOLATORS

Merchants Against Whom Efforts Are Directed Are Mostly of "Fly-by-Night" Type--Good Firms to Be Protected.

Prosecution of several merchants in business in Portland for violation of the Oregon statute against fraudulent advertising, will be begun by the committee recently appointed by the Portland Ad Club to work in its campaign for purifying advertising. A. A. Schell, chairman of the committee, said yeaterday that the evidence in several cases is already prepared and is ready to be submitted to the prosecuting attorney. "Merchants against whom our efforts are directed," he said, "are the "fly-by-night" type, who never stay long in one place, and by means of gross mis-representation in their advertising dispose of large stocks of inferior goods, injure reputable merchants whose business is established in the city, and move on to another place before the people have had an opportunity to 'get wise' to them or their methods.

Advertising to Be Purified.

Advertising to Be Purified. "The object for which the Ad Club has taken up this movement is to eliminate fake and misrepresentation from the advertising business and to increase the efficiency of advertising. When advertising has been purified until readers will have the same confidence in the statements made in an advertisement that they have in the news published in the papers, there is no estimating the importance that advertising will reach in the business world. At the present time so much of misrepresentation has crept into it that the general public is not inclined to give over-much credence to what an advertisement says. What we are after is to drive out the fakers in all depart-ments of advertising and place the business on a basis of sincerity that will merit and inspire public confidence. The existing state law is a weapon of

The existing state law is a weapon of sufficient strength in our campaign, and we purpose to use it.

"The reliable merchant has nothing to fear from the activity of the committee, for its energies are directed solely at those who are harming legitimate business, injuring the public and destroying the people's confidence in the advertising business. The movement in Portland is not unique; it is merely a part of a National movement that has sprung up in recent years for a general "clean up" in advertising methods."

Many Clubs to Aid.

Working with the committee from the Ad Club will be representatives from the Rotary Club, Progressive Business Men's Club, Realiy Board, Retail Merchants' Association and similar organizations, who by reporting cases of infringement of the law, will assist in bringing to account fake advertisers in nearly every business activity in the city. Complaints from business men of Portland against persons using minof Portland against persons using mis-representation in their advertising in violation of the state law will be en-tertained by the committee, and steps of Portland against persons using mis-representation in their advertising in violation of the state law will be en-tertained by the committee, and steps will be taken to prosecute the offend-ers, if after investigation it is found that there are just grounds for such action.

"I have never been in any, other city," said Mr. Schell, "where so many schemes of this kind were being brought out. Most of the men who are promoting them are persons that have come here from the East and are using their wits to raise enough money to get away. Roughly estimated, the mersants of Portland threw away more than $40,000 last year on advertising in take medlums of this kind.

POLITICAL ORATORS

TO INVADE STATE

Ex-Representative Scott, of Kansas; to Open Campaign in Oregon for President Next Friday at Ontario.

Although Wisconsin and Nebraska will hold Presidential primary elections prior to the Oregon election on April 19, supporters of each of the three Republican candidates for the Presidency are planning particularly aggressive campaigns in quest of the ten delegates from this state to the National convention. Consequently Oregon electors may fortify themselves for an abundance of political oratory in the concluding three weeks of the campaign. They will have the privilege of hearing the issues discussed from at least three different angles from a Republican viewpoint. Charles J. Heggerty, a prominent attorney of San Francisco, and Mrs. Heggerty are at the Mulnomah. Mr. Heggerty is a member of the law firm of Knight & Heggerty, which defeated Mrs. Craven in her attempt to obtain the Fair millions through a pencit-written will, later declared to be a forgery. George R. Knight seconded the nomination of William McKinley for President of the United States.

BILL BEFORE CONGRESS SAID

TO BE MENACE.

Proposed Measure to Require Gasoline Craft to Carry Two Men Feared by Fishermen.

All owners of motor boats are interested in efforts to defeat a bill that has been introduced in Congress by Representative Sherwood. This bill, known as house bill 18,788, it is alleged, known as house bill 18,788, it is alleged, would destroy the gasoline engine business on the Pacific Coast and would damage the fishing industry of this Coast, as, if passed, it would require all motor boats more than 40 feet in length to carry two licensed men.

The bill, it is believed, was introduced at the request of the Eastern steam-propelled boat operators, as the gasoline boat is not much used for commercial purposes on the Atlantic Coast, but is used largely on the Pacific Coast for passenger and freight business and particularly in the fishciric Coast for passenger and freight business and particularly in the fishing industry. To require the small operator to carry two licensed men, it is held, would be ruinous.

This bill has been drawn to the attention of Portland shipping interests and they intend to interest the Portland commercial hodges to take some land commercial bodies to take some action to have Oregon's Representa-tives in Congress use their efforts to defeat it, or at least have it amended so as not to refer to motor boats on the Pacific Coast.

Fleet's Departure Not Delayed. The sailing of the Alaska fishing fleet, which is now in progress, has been delayed in former years by differences between the owners and the fishermen as to the terms that the latter were to be allowed during the season. This year there has been no discussion, as that matter was adjusted a year ago, when the representa-tives of the Fishermen's Union signed a contract with the Alaska Packers' Association, which will be in force for three years. This contract governs the prices paid by all the other compa-nies.

A Wave of Enthusiasm.

American agents of the Canadian Pacific Land Department, from the Dakotas, Hilinois, Minnesota, Iowa, Indiana, Ohio, Kentucky, Nebraska, Pennsylvania and Oklahoms, met in Chicago the other day and were addressed by the assistant to the president of the road. He said that 200,000 Americans will seek homes in Western Canada this year. "This is no guess-work," he added, "but is substantiated by carefully tabulated figures supplied by agents of the company." The announcement created a wave of enthusiasm among the agents, each, before his departure for his station, declaring that hereafter he would shout louder than ever the company's appropriate slogan, "Get Your Canadian Home From the Canadian Pacific!"

Only a few months ago Cheadle was a water-tank side track and a name on the Canadian Pacific Railroad map. Now it is making a very honest claim to the litle of a country village. It seemed only yesterday that all the business at Strathmore was transacted in the box-car 'station.' Now it can write its population in four figures, and it is racing speedily ahead.

"Twenty-six new homes—not all pretentious, to be sure—but homes just the same. Each one shelters a settler's family. Each one means from 100 to 640 acres of sod plewed out and seeded. And, later, that will mean train-loads of golden wheat and cats, new houses on a larger scale, better teams, more comforts, more education, more independence. It is the beginning of the Still another shakes of the musiv air of some other life-long profession to buy a team, build a shack and regain the treshners and virility of young manhood in the tangle of the new-plowed prairie and the sweet breath of the soil! These neighbors have seen other new countries develop. They are not tenderfeet. Some of them any Oklahoma opened up to settlement. Others went in advance of the railroads into Gregon and Washington and others broke new sod where the theiring towns of the Dakotas. Kansas and Nebraska now stand.

"But they are now all Alberta boosters. Nome of them would go back. They have goed land; they bought it at low prices and on easy terms. One of two fair crops will pay for it. So they are the happiest, best contented, mest cordial, neighborly and joily lot of people that ever got together to plant the banner of civilization in any spot on the earth."

There Is Life in the Foregoing! Mr. Huffman is a live one—and in a live country—where there are SIX MILLION ACRES of the richest farm lands beneath the canopy of heaven, being peopled by an educated, intelligent, hustling, bustling people. They are the CREAM of the country, from all walks of life—and the CREAM because they were ambitious to better their condition, knew where to go to accomplish the desire, and had the snap and ginger in them to get away from the old into the new, where there is opportunity for both farmer and business man the like of which, it is believed, is not at this time to be found elsewhere on earth! The farms of Albertia are ready made. There are no giant trees to fell or stumps to dynamite or grub. One may mount his plow and ride the very day he buys his farm!

Advance in Prices.

It is hoped no reader of these advertisements will descrive himself with the thought that Alberta's rich acres will long be sold at present prices. The railroad company at first put a low valuation on all its lands distant from its main line or branches. The soil was as rich as any, but markets were not as handy. Now that the government has guaranteed the bonds of other roads which will run ernment has guaranteed the bonds of other roads which will run directly through these lands, and which must be constructed this and next year, prices will soon be advanced to conform to those of farms adjacent to the company's own roads. The company's official publication, which reached this city last Saturday, gave notice of this advance. It is likely that the $10 to $15 per acre land will be put up to $15 to $26, and may, in fact, go to straight $20, and the $20 per acre soil to $25 per acre or more. This "jump" may come at any time.
