Ex-New Orleans Pitcher Will Be Bundled to Nick Williams' Colts' Camp.

BY ROSCOE FAWCETT.

SANTA MARIA, Cal., March 26 .-(Special.)-Thurman Veasey, the sixfoot Southerner secured through Cleveland for the Portland Coast Champions pitching staff, probably will show up on achedule time at future Spring camps. The ex-New Orleans flinger drifted in last Sunday, a fortnight overdue, and as penalty must now go to Nick Williams' Northwesterners.

Waivers have already been asked for, and Veasey will be bundled off to Sac-ramento before the end of the week. The hig fellow admits he is ready for active service, and the additional two weeks of training should put him in splendid shape to pitch rings around some of the class B clubs.

This paring cuts the Beavers' pitch-This paring cuts the peavers pitching corps to seven veterans, Henderson, Koestner, Harkness, Lamline, Steiger, Temple and Gilligan, and one recruit, Osborne, who will be kept on the bench for the first month and then shoved in to finish a few games to demonstrate his worth.

Gilligan Case Not Settled.

But while seven names figure on the roster, Portland is absolutely sure of only the usual six, for the Gilligan case is still pending. Chances are, however, that the National Commission on the process of the process on the present appeal will stick staunchly by its original decision, de-claring Gilligan a free agent, in which case McCredie's contract holds good.

Since reporting day Ben Henderson, the Stockton bandit of outlaw fame, has picked up nearly 19 pounds, tipping the long end of the beam at close to 130 pounds. He is in superh form.

Doans, the lanky right fielder, has also let the belt out a couple of notches, while Shortstop Bancroft is fast overcoming his one chief drawback in Mc-Credie's eye by building up his body at an starming rate, an alarming rate.

Lamline, Steiger and Temple shoved the quirks over in practice today, and the boss chuckled with glee from his umpirical vantage point behind the pitcher's piate. He thinks all three are to be reliable quantities. Temple had really never let the sphere loose until this morning, and when he opened the throttle wide, the escaping steam warried the stickumiths. Lamline looks startled the stickamiths, Lamline looks like a blue ribbon this Spring.

Speck Harkness likewise exercised his salary muscles at the double rehearsal, and in a systematic and thorough manner, too. The ex-Cleveland finger does not wish to waste the forepart of the year getting his wing ready for the last half of the season, as was the case in 1811. case in 1911.

Harkness says his arm feels as strong as a steel spring, but has not yet regained the development with which I teft off last Pall. In 1909, his first weason with Portland, Speck was in shape two weeks after the initial game. Beavers May Not Get Fisher.

Judging from newspaper reports from the Cleveland Yannigans' Spring training camp. Portland may not get Gus Fisher after all. McCredie has not heard from Somers. He admitted Fisher was no lead pipe cinch, but says isn't worrying over the backstop "I'd just as soon have Adams, who seasoned with Memphis in the Southern League last year," said he. "I'm sure of one of them. I wanted Gus because he wrote me he would like to return. I see by Cleveland papers he has now changed his mind."

Fisher's mental gyrations are prob-ably due to the presence of Dan How-ley on the Portland club. McCredie figures Howley a better backstop than Fisher, and Gus evidently doesn't relish the thought of being second catcher with the Beavers. Howley has the reputation of working like a Trojan, and unless laid up by injuries, Fisher would likely be kept on the bench a great part of the time. The veterans in camp are unanimous in the belief that "Howling Dan" will prove the greatest receiver in the Coast League in 1912.

Players Get Their Numbers.

The village expression created quite a hubbub in camp this afternoon with a package containing the Bertillon number system by which Coast ball players are to be identified hereafter. 'Doc" Schmelder broke the seal on the diamond-shaped numeral bands, and immediately there ensued a scramble for No. 11, claimed jointly by Harkness. Rapps and Henderson.

Alas: a designing cutter had failed to provide the hoodoo insignia, and there will be no jinx talk in the Port-land camp and no buttens wrenched loose after some hard luck episode.

Rapps No. L. Bill Rappa secured a toe-hold on No. 1, and forthwith hied himself to a tailor-shop. The remaining identification patches were doled out heterogeneously. Gilligan secured 2, Ban-croft 3, Howley 4, Rodgers 5, Doane 6 Lindsay 7, Krueger 8, Chadbourne 3, Temple 10, Harkness 11, Henderson 12, Lamiine 14, McDowell 15, Steiger 16,

La Longe 17 and Knestner 18. McCredle decided today not to arrange the numbers weekly, as had been planned by score card concessionaires, so this present arrangement will hold good through the season, Kibbe, infielder, and Strait, outfielder.

Guigni, the crack St. Mary's College second-sacker, signed by the Boston Americans, has been obtained by Williams and his contract enrolling him in the fold of McCredie has been dispatched. Glavinich, the big St. Mary's College twirler, who showed real class here when St. Marys opened the Season at Buffalo Park with the Solons, may also be obtained by Williams. Curtis, of Port Huron, a pitcher, arrived today. The white diamonds will be sewed to the sleeves of the blue road uniforms, and the blue patches to the abbreviated arms of the white home rai-

"Ad Wolgast will fight anyone in the world at the lightweight limit. He expects to fight on July 4 and Labor day. If Tom McCarey or any other promoter wishes to match him with Johnny Kilbane, he has only to fix suitable financial conditions and the match is on.
