

THREATS AGAINST HICKS ARE RECITED

Patrolman Carlson Tells of Conversation With Picket Wortman.

DAVIS GRILLS OFFICER

Special Prosecutor Intimates That Patrolman's Statements Are Untrue—Pickets' Language Alleged Indecent.

"Blood, blood, blood," are the first words in a letter introduced last evening by the defense in the Hicks murder trial during the first night session. In the communication the writer, who signs himself Lay Henderson and represents himself to be a union man, is ranting the city for San Francisco, warns the shop owners that a plot is on foot to dynamite their shops and murder the owners of the town in their stead. The letter was written in September, 1911, and was addressed to the Phoenix Iron Works, the president of which, Samuel Morrow, was called to the stand.

The defendant's attorneys argued that, without regard to whether the letter really divulged a plot or was written maliciously, it should be permitted in evidence as it added to Hicks' apprehension. The special prosecutor, however, contended that such evidence is permissible only when insanity is pleaded as a defense. Judge Gates' remarks strongly indicated that he favors the views of the defense, but he reserved final judgment until this morning. Mr. Morrow had testified that he had shown the letter to Hicks and that the defendant had read it. Testimony that Wortman had made threats against the man who killed him was given by Herman Carlson, a policeman and ex-sergeant of police. According to Carlson, Wortman said: "Damn Hicks. If I ever get a chance I will lay him out." This was at the conclusion of a conversation in which Wortman was asked to have upbraided the policeman for "herding scabs" and had cursed Hicks volubly, declaring that he was the type of man who stood in the way of full way over industries in labor unions.

"Do you believe in ghosts, Mr. Carlson?" Special Prosecutor Davis asked in cross-examination.

"No," the policeman answered.

"Aren't you afraid that the ghost of this dead man will haunt you for all the lying statements you have made about him?" persisted Mr. Davis.

Davis Is Bitter.
The witness said that he had no such fear. Mr. Davis showed a great deal of bitterness towards Carlson, insinuating by his questions and direct statements that Carlson had sworn to lie to arrange for confessions between the strikers and those who had taken their places. This was after he had upbraided the pickets for their acts of violence and indecent language, telling Carlisle that he had a pistol on him for 19 years and that they would never advance their cause by such tactics.

"The next day," the witness said, he was asked if he had any conversation with the man who had spoken to me and said that he was thankful for my offer of help and would take advantage of it, but that he was going to be as good as me not to return. I never saw him again and no person among the strikers ever spoke to me about arranging meetings.

The witness testified that he became convinced that Hicks was in terror of losing his life. Hicks had a revolver and he might have a photograph and had been advised not to do so without consulting with the head of the police department.

Sergeant Smith declared that he had told Hicks that he would not allow the pickets to beat him, but denied that he had advised the defendant to use fire.

"What would you have done if they had attacked you?" Special Prosecutor Davis asked Smith.

"Carlisle Declines Antimony." "Well, I certainly would have protected myself. That's all I am going to say about it," was the answer.

The witness admitted that, at the request of the strikers, he had tried to gather evidence on which to base an injunction suit against the strikers and declared that he would willingly do so. He testified that he is embittered against labor unions, and replied in the negative when asked if he had not been notorious for his animosity towards organized labor while a policeman in Minneapolis, Minn.

After Smith had identified the picture of Wortman he was handed another by Special Prosecutor Davis and asked if it was also a picture of the dead man. Dan J. Malarkey, for the defense, insisted that the picture be marked for identification after Smith had failed to identify it, but Mr. Davis resisted the motion and it was denied. After an exchange of conversation extending over several minutes Mr. Malarkey succeeded in having the picture given into his possession and immediately excused Sergeant Smith and called Special Prosecutor Davis to the stand.

An interesting half hour followed. Mr. Malarkey insisted on knowing where the picture had been obtained and whose it was when it was taken. He asked the questions, pleading ignorance in some answers and raising technicalities in response to other questions.

Davis Is Questioned.
"Is that a picture of W. A. Wortman?" asked Mr. Malarkey.

"I don't know," never saw the man dead or alive," was the answer.

"Is it not a fact that you introduced this picture for the purpose of confusing and tricking the witnesses for the defense?" Mr. Malarkey finally asked.

John A. Jeffrey, another of the special prosecutors, objected to this, saying that the picture had been introduced for the purpose of testing the accuracy of the statements of the witness for the defense.

"Wortman was a fat man. They are showing the picture of a fat man, and they all say it is Wortman. We believe that if the picture of some other fat man were shown them they would take the majority of them, without any hint being given them by the contrary, would identify it as the picture of Wortman," declared Mr. Jeffrey.

Mr. Davis finally was forced to admit that he had asked a brother of W. A. Wortman to get the photograph. An objection was interposed and sustained when Mr. Malarkey insisted on knowing whose picture he had asked for. The witness left the stand without being forced to divulge the identity of the man shown in the photograph.

Patrolman Tells of Threat.
Patrolman Humphrey, a witness for the defense, said that in an altercation with Wortman, the latter had threatened to "kick" him and take his star

Lack of Blood—Anæmia

Mrs. D. Claude Mathieson, of Easton, Washington, who was permanently cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, says: "When I was seventeen years of age I became afflicted with anæmia. I had to leave school and could not walk any distance without being short of breath. I had terrible, dull headaches which made me sick to my stomach. I didn't have much of an appetite and was very pale. The doctor pronounced my trouble anæmia but did not help me much. Finally my father decided to have me try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The pills helped me at once, giving me strength and color. I have been in good health since and recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in cases of anæmia."

Starved Blood—Neuralgia

Mrs. Thomas Stott, of No. 211 Jackson street, Redwood City, Cal., who was cured of neuralgia, says: "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills helped me right away and in a short time completely cured me of neuralgia. I had been suffering for nearly a year from neuralgia in my head. The pains were sharp and cutting and were through my temples and the back of my head. I was led to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through reading about them in a newspaper. I found them a great relief and was entirely cured. I now keep them in the house and always recommend them to my friends."

away. Patrolman Murray said that Wortman had been active on the picket line and conspicuous because of his great size. E. C. Brothers, also a policeman, testified that Hicks seemed to be fearful of being injured by the strikers, and that he had heard the pickets threaten to get Smith's "goat," their reference being to Sergeant Smith. All the policemen testified to acts of violence and the use of vulgar and filthy language by the strikers. They had been at various times on special duty protecting the machinists who replaced the strikers.

Other witnesses were Ellsworth Adams, also a policeman, who said that the pickets had intimidated that he would not have his job long if he became too "fresh" with them, and E. J. Sharkey, a saddlemaker who has an establishment opposite Hicks' shop, had heard O. E. Raser, the picket captain, make remarks indicating animosity toward Hicks. He told of the tactics of the gangs of strikers who would surround the defendants' shops.

The policemen have been unanimous in declaring that the machinists at work sought in every possible way to avoid trouble with the picketers.

Patrolman Tells of Assault.
At the night session E. M. Heacock testified that he was mistaken for a strikebreaker while leaving the Multnomah Iron Works, where he was having some work done last summer, and that a picket had told him, "The nights will soon be getting darker and you can't keep your eyes on all these men. We'll get some of them." Hicks, he testified, seemed to be in great fear of the strikers. On the evening of the shooting he had told Hicks about an assault on a machinist at another shop and had warned him to be careful.

nities are to be aroused in the same manner. Commercial clubs will be asked to assist in the work, which will be prosecuted under the auspices of the Manufacturers' Association. In every community the purpose will be to show what can be made in Oregon and the advantages accruing from the support of home institutions.

For the Portland end of the programme the most energetic work ever undertaken by the manufacturers will be prosecuted. In the near future there is to be a "made in Oregon" dinner, at which Oregon wares and products alone will be served. John D. Vincent, of the American Lifeograph Company, suggested to the association an effective form of industrial education for the state, which was approved. This is to have motion pictures made of the most important Oregon industries and then display the films in the state first and the country at large later.

E. Hofer, of Salem, was among the speakers. A shoe manufacturer of the East addressed the association regarding the establishment of a large shoe factory here. Rufus C. Holman, of the Howe-Davis Company, gave a short talk.

Track Bids Asked.

Construction of the new steel and concrete freighthouse on East Oak street, between East First and East Second streets, will be started by the Southern Pacific Company within 19 days. The Port of Portland is making such rapid progress in filling the sunken property between East Oak and East Burnside streets that it is probable that the entire row of blocks will be filled before the end of next week. The company now is asking the City Council for permission to lay tracks across East First, East Ash and East Ankerly streets, between East First and East Second streets, so that they may serve the shippers on the East Side from those tracks. They agree to keep the streets open for traffic and to provide temporary plank pavements. Eventually the streets will be paved with hard-surface material. Steel for the new freighthouse, which will be 49 by 206 feet, already is on the ground. It will be one-story high, excepting one end which will have two stories. The upper stories to be used as an office.

The company is asking for bids for the construction of two and a quarter miles of track at Forest Grove. This will provide for an entrance to the City of Forest Grove and for the operation of electric cars over a loop that will be built in that city.

Hearty Indorsement.

BOISE, Idaho, April 3.—(Special.)—Cassia County of this state enthusiastically indorsed the Administration of President Taft, complimenting the President on the interest he has shown to the Western state, and today instructed the county's nine delegates to the state convention at Lewiston to vote for him through the instruction of Idaho's eight delegates to the Republican National convention. The resolutions adopted by the Cassia County central committee are considered here the strongest indorsement by any county in the state.

Cassia is one of the largest of the Southern Idaho counties. Its indorsement of Taft is taken here to indicate that the big counties in the southeast, not yet heard, will follow its lead. The nine delegates selected are: State Senator Hector C. Heighit; Louis A. Bauman, A. Lounsbury, R. T. Howells, N. Isaacson, William Jones, W. L. Robbins, Charles Telsor, O. R. Pickett. The resolutions adopted are as follows: "We, the Republicans of Cassia County, heartily indorse the wise and beneficent Administration of President Taft. We commend his attitude toward the Western settlers in advocating and signing the bill appropriating $30,000,000 for the Government reclamation projects; the interest he has taken in restoring 100,000 acres of school land withdrawn from the forest reserve, giving homes to thousands of worthy people and increasing our school funds for the benefit of our children. "We pledge our delegation to Lewiston to use every honorable means to select delegates to the Chicago convention for the re-nomination of William Howard Taft for President.

WATER RIGHTS PERPLEX

Oregon and Idaho May Be Involved in Irrigation Difficulty.

SALEM, Or., April 2.—(Special.)—H. P. Page, of Boise, has made application to the State Engineer for the appropriation of 415 second feet of water from Sucker Creek, which rises in Idaho, and has asked to store the water in Malheur County, to use for the irrigation of 2500 acres of land in Oregon and 20,000 acres in Idaho. The State of Oregon has a 50,000-acre project in Jordan Valley which derives its water supply from Sucker Creek and stores its water in Idaho. The State Engineer says that if the application is granted to Page there will not be enough water for the Jordan Valley project and in event it is not granted there is a probability that Idaho will use retaliatory tactics and not allow the Jordan Valley project to store waters in Idaho. There are several other interstate questions of this nature which are coming up or threatened and there seems to be no solution of the difficulty in sight until Federal legislation is enacted.

Fighting the Right Plague

Kill the Catarrh Germs and the White Plague Problem Is More than Half Solved.

Consumption is caused by germs; so is Catarrh. People who have catarrh are liable to become victims of dread consumption. The reason is very simple. Germs of consumption, no matter how vicious, can make little headway when the membrane of the nose, throat and bronchial tubes is in a healthy condition.

When, however, the membrane is raw, sore and inflamed because of catarrh and the ravages of devilish catarrh microbes, the germs of consumption can easily and quickly find a home to their liking and thus begin thousands of cases of consumption. It starts with a cough and ends in a coffin.

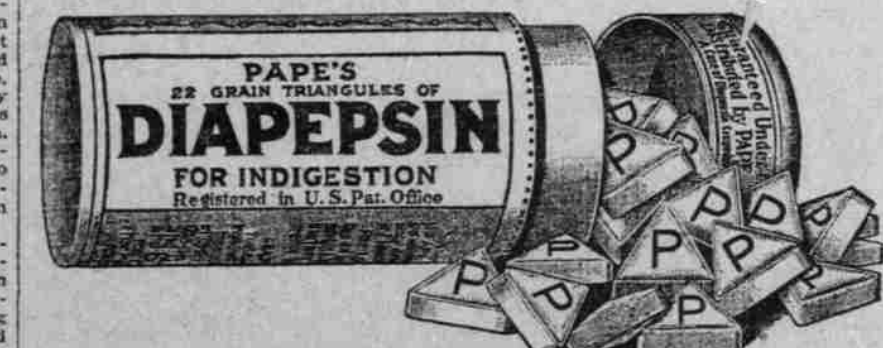

Get rid of catarrh, if you have it, and you can get rid of it if you will breathe HYOMEI, a soothing healing antiseptic air that reaches the nose and throat and goes clear into the air cells of the lungs, where it destroys catarrh germs and cures catarrh.

Sprays, douches, snuffs, ointments and stomach dousing won't cure catarrh. You've got to get where the germs are before you can kill them, and HYOMEI gets there while all other treatments fail.

Delays only invite needless danger; get a HYOMEI outfit today at any good drug store for $1.90. If you already own a HYOMEI Inhaler, you can get a bottle of HYOMEI for only 50 cents.

Do some foods you eat hit back—taste good, but work badly; ferment into stubborn lumps and cause a sick, sour, gassy stomach? Now, Mr. or Mrs. Dyspeptic, get this down! Pape's Diapepsin digests everything, leaving nothing to sour and upset you. There never was anything so safely quick, so certainly effective. No difference how badly your stomach is disordered you will get lappy relief in five minutes, but what pleases you most is that it strengthens and regulates your stomach so you can eat your favorite foods without fear.

Most remedies give you relief sometimes—they are slow, but not sure. Diapepsin is quick, positive and puts your stomach in a healthy condition so the misery won't come back.

Curing Catarrh

Accept Our Advice and Try
This Remedy at Our Risk.

Catarrh is a disease of the mucous membrane. The mucous membrane is, one may say, the interior lining of the body. Catarrh therefore may exist in any part of the system. When the catarrhal poison attacks the mucous membrane, inflammation and congestion are produced and nature falls to throw off the accumulated poison. The organ which has been afflicted ceases to perform its proper function as nature intended it should. The result is, complication upon complication, which may lead to other even more serious afflictions.

We honestly believe Revall Mucos-Tone will do wonders toward overcoming catarrh. It is made from the prescription of an eminent physician who made a long study of catarrh, and his great success with this remedy was an enviable one.
