

250 DOGS IN CHORUS

All Sizes of Canines Snarl, Bark and Howl.

WOMEN VOICE ADMIRATION

Portland Kennel Club's Show Opens With Larger Entry List Than in 1911—Much Interest in Special Awards.

More than 250 dogs, ranging in size from the one and three-quarter-pound black and tan rat terrier to the 170-pound St. Bernard and in temperament from the mild-mannered and apologetic pug midgats to the bellowing and growling "hushy," raised their voices in a pandemonium of sound yesterday afternoon that signalized the opening of the 13th annual show of the Portland Kennel Club.

While the officers of the club hope that the entry list will total 300 dogs, graduating the show from a three to a four-point exhibition, indications are that a showing of slightly more than 250 blue-ribbon seekers will result, placing the show on a par with that of last year as to points, but presenting an entry list of at least 50 more dogs.

Rain Falls to Dampen Ardor.

Weather had no effect on the ardor of the dog fanciers or the throats of the entrants, the snarl, bark and howl of the Dogville inhabitants mingling with the "Isn't he too cute" of the feminine patrons and the "Some class to 'dat one" of the masculine admirer. Both attended the initial day of the show in numbers which completely eclipsed the first-day figures of 1911.

Airedale terriers are numerically and vocally the leaders in the 1912 show. Thirty-eight of these popular animals monopolize the general portion of the show quarters in the basement of the Veon building, completely eclipsing the bull terriers, who are only 25 strong this year. Among the best represented breeds are: Collies, 18; Cocker spaniels, 23; English setters, 18; pointers, 8; English bulldogs, 21; Boston bulldogs, 17.

Eastern Judge Pleased.

Judge Dr. Henry Jarrett, of Chestnut Hill, Pa., says that the class of dogs at the show is high, while he has many words of commendation for the management. With never a hitch between the judging of the various classes, the heaviest part of the work promises to be over with by tonight, leaving the lighter but more exacting judging for the final two days of the show.

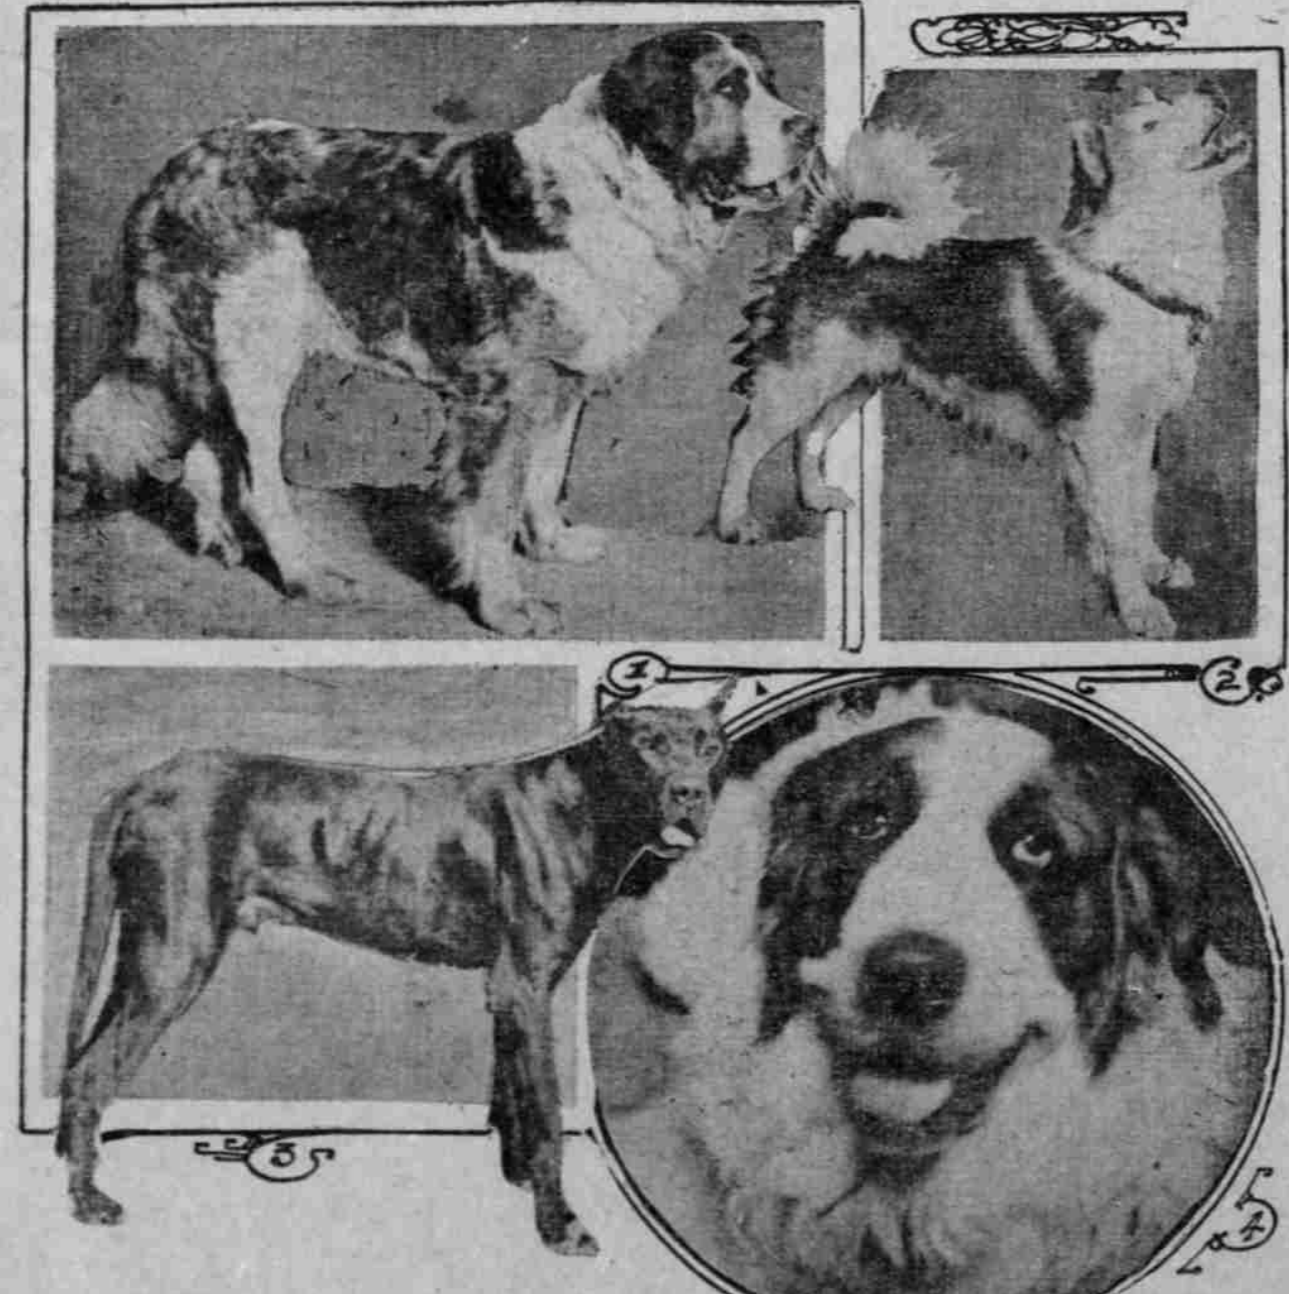

The Northwest Airedale Club will meet at 9 o'clock this morning in the dog show quarters. The 1912 futurity was awarded to Portland at the meeting last year, the local enthusiasts winning over Seattle.

Greatest interest among the dog owners is attached to the special awards, which will not be made until Saturday night.

Champion's Blonde Wife Displays Diamond Necklace Husband Didn't Mention to Officers. Cost to Be Heavy.

CHICAGO, April 3.—(Special.)—A little oversight on the part of Jack Johnson, the pugilist, when he encouraged the customs officers in New York on his return from the coronation of King George is about to cost him $9600.

If the black man's fighting blood prompts him to contest the charges of smuggling that have been preferred against him, he will be prosecuted by the Government in the immediate future, with the prospect that the cost will be much higher.

As soon as Johnson returned to Chicago his blonde wife exhibited a remarkable diamond necklace that became the envy of her neighbors. So-called members of the heavyweight's own race could not recall that they had heard of his declaring this magnificent gift to the customs officials. They finally wrote a letter to the New York customs office.

Secret Service men made a late visit to the Johnson residence and departed with the treasure, in spite of the vigorous protests of the pugilist and his wife. Lawrence Jacobs, Assistant District Attorney, who has the handling of the case, conferred with Johnson today.
