Mary S. Karns Sticks to Story of His Death Being Result of Scuffle. Dead Man's Career Marked With Affinities.

NEW YORK, April 14 .- (Special.)-

NEW YORK, April 14.—(Special.)—The most amazing story of many love affairs, stretching across the Continent and sometimes carried on simultaneously in different cities, will be told on Thursday at the inquest of Walter J. Snyder, killed last Sunday by scissors in the hands of Mary S. Karns in an apartment occupied by them.

The woman says that he was stabbed in the course of a scuffle. He seized her hands and drew her toward him suddenly. As he did this the scissors opened and the blades entered his breast, she mays. Scarch for evidence to discredit the woman's story has yielded little, but in the course of it, the police have discovered that Snyder's 28 years of life were crowded with romance.

romance.

He has been successively jockey, raceirack tout, bartender, fair manager, gambler and sporting writer and geems to have possessed himself of a new wife or affinity almost every year wince he reached maturity.

There is little doubt in the minds of the authorities that Snyder committed bigamy on several occasions.

THE HEART OF THE HILLS

Bluegrass and Mountain Boys Settle a Difference.

John Fox, Jr., in Scribner's.

The boy, Jason, was seated on the yard fence with his chin in his hands, his back to the house and his face toward home. He heard the stranger's step, turned his head, and, mistaking a puzzled sympathy for a challenge, dropped to the ground and came toward him, gathering fury as he came. Like lightning the him grass lad's face changed, whitening a little as he sprang forward to meet him, but Jason, motioning with his thumb, awarved behind the chimney, where the stranger swiftly threw off his coat, the mountain boy spat on his hands and like two diminutive demons they went at each other flercely and they went at each other flercely and silently. A few minutes later the two little girls rounding the chimney cor-ner saw them—Gray on top and Jason writhing and biting under him like a Mayis strong little hand had the stranger boy by his thick hair, and Mayis, feeling her arm, clutched by Mavis, feeling her arm, clutched by the stranger-girl, let go and turned on her like a fury. There was a pierc-ing scream from Marjorie, hurried footsleps answered on the porch and eld Jason and the Colonel tooked with bewildered eyes on the little blue-grass girl amazed, indignant, white with horror, Mavis shrinking away from her as though she were the one who had been threatened with a blow; the stranger-lad with a bitten thumb glenched in the hollow of one hand, of in the hollow of one hand, his face already reddening with con-trition and shame, and savage little Jason biting a bloody lip and with the lust of battle still shaking him from head to foot. said the old man sternly,

Jason's eyes fell.
"Nothin," he said sullenly, and Colonel Pendleten looked to his son with astonished inquiry, and the lad's fine face turned bewildered and foolish.
"I don't know, sir," he said at last.
"Don't know?" echoed the Colonel.

The old man broke in: "Jason, if you have lost yo' manners an' don't know how to behave when thar's strangers around, I recken you'd better go on home."

The boy did not lift his eyes.

OUR CITIES ARE DEFENDED

If the Baptist brethren of the Willamette Association are willing to profit by the alarming jeremind of their own outspoken C. H. If these Baptist ministers choose to look upon the political preferment which some Catholic may have fairly obtained as an "encroachment of the Catholic hierarchy," I wonder what euphemism they employ to designate their own machinations in their pulpits and out of them with a view to politiand out of them with a view to political domination. I suppose our liberties, both civil and religious, are to be entrusted with filial docility to the gentry of the Willamette Association, and that the 15,000,000 Catholics of this country should behave like corpses in the conduct of this democratic and representative Government.

DULL, SICK HEADACHE, BILIOUS BREATH, BAD STOMACH, CONSTIPATION-TAKE CASCARETS

Sick headaches! Always trace them to lazy liver, delayed, fermenting food in the bowels or a sick stomach. Poisonous matter, instead of being thrown out, is reabsorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, awful throbbing, sickening headache.

Cascarets remove the cause by stimulating the liver, making the poison move on and out and purifying the blood. The effect is almost instantaneous. Ladies whose sensitive organisms are especially prone to sick headaches, need not suffer, for they can be quickly cured by Cascarets. One taken tonight will straighten you out by morning—a 19-cent box means a clear head and perfect health for months. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle, cleansing, too. Children gladly take Cascarets, because they taste good and never gripe or sicken.
