Washington Hatcheries Place 78,000,000 Young Fish in Northwest.

TROUT ALSO TURNED OUT

Rearing Ponds Improved. New Ones Building—Columbia River, Puget Sound, Willapa and Grays Harbor Receive Fry.

VANCOUVER, Wash., April 14.—(Special.)—All past records in planting salmon in the Columbia River by the Washington hatcheries were broken during the year last past. From April 1, 1911, to April 1, this year, 78,000,000 salmon, propagated at state hatcheries, were planted in the Columbia River, Puget Sound, Willapa Harbor and Grays Harbor. In addition to this, 3,000,000 trout were planted in the streams in this state, making a total of 81,000,000 fish planted in 1912.

More chinook salmon were taken from the Columbia River last year than for many years," said John M. Crawford, superintendent of the state fish hatcheries, here tonight. The quality of the salmon we are rearing now cannot be excelled in any other hatcheries in the world. In the Kalama salmon hatchery rearing ponds there are now 2,000,000 salmon fry, in as good condition as I have ever seen.

Mr. Crawford is an expert on salmon and the rearing of salmon. He has passed 24 years studying fish.

Kalama Ponds Improved.

A new arrangement for the concrete rearing ponds at Kalama has been made by which the aeration is much improved. There are four sets of concrete ponds, each 150 feet long, divided into 36-foot sections. They are terraced, one line being parallel with the other, but situated on a slope that there is a fall of 18 to 20 inches from one series of ponds to the other. This insures splendid circulation of water.

The system for constant aeration consists of an eight-inch main, with which a six-inch pipe is connected, extending directly over the tops of the ponds, about four feet from the surface of the water. At intervals of about ten feet half-inch holes are bored in the bottom of this pipe and the water shoots downward with great velocity into the ponds, thereby assuring splendid aeration and a constant supply of fresh water, in addition to the regular amount of water to supply the ponds.

Loss Out to Mistaken

By holding a large number of young salmon in ponds, air in the water is soon exhausted and to get the best results this system of aeration was installed. The loss of salmon, practically nothing. Two men are kept at work caring for the salmon. A shed 200 feet long has been erected to cover the ponds and protect the fish from the sun.

These salmon will be fed until the first fall rains, when they will be released to find their way to the ocean. When released the salmon will be from four to five inches in length. They will be strong, active and able to cope with their natural enemies, such as bass, trout and other cannibal fish. They will return in about three and one-half years to their native waters, the Columbia River.

New Ponds in Sight.

The bed of Fallert Creek will be leveled, a series of concrete dams will be built there, and the whole bed of the creek at this point is being reworked. When this work is finished the rearing ponds at the Kalama hatchery will accommodate 5,000,000 young salmon, or young chinook, from three to four inches in length. A large circular pond will also be constructed on land owned by the state, where 250,000 young salmon will be reared. When this work is all completed, there will be turned out between 5,000,000 and 6,000,000 young salmon every season from the Kalama hatchery.

Mr. Crawford Says that the rearing pond of the state salmon hatchery at Chinook, Wash., also has about 2,000,000 young fry, which will be turned out during the fall months. The pond at Wind River, smaller than the others, also is well stocked.

New Work Planned.

Recently the state obtained three acres of additional land at the Wind River hatchery, which will make an ideal rearing pond. This hatchery will be improved this year.

While Mr. Crawford visited Burnt Bridge Creek and obtained some splendid specimens of the Eastern brook trout, planted in the hatchery in front of the hatchery about two years ago. One of these trout measured 18 inches in length, another 14 inches.

These two trout were sent to W. L. Finley, State Game Warden, of Portland, to be preserved by him as an exhibit. Since April 1 there have been more than 100,000 trout planted in this and adjoining counties from the Clark County hatchery. Mr. Crawford will visit this hatchery to make arrangements to receive more spawn.

LONE POPULIST REGISTERS

Josephine County Still Holds One of Old Guard.

GRANTS PASS, Or., April 14.—(Special.)—Registration books, just closed, show 742 more persons registered in 1912 than in 1910 before the primaries. The 1912 registration standing at 1915 with 1254 Republican and 483 Democrats. Although this is considered a prohibition district, only eight persons registered under that title. Two years ago, 82 registered as independents, while the present registration shows 49.

Out of the 190,000 voters registered in Josephine County, but one person was able to declare himself a suffragist. Twenty-two refused to state their politics and 17 went down as non-partisans.

In 1910 one insurgent came to the surface, while the record this year shows none, but instead of the insurgent two years ago there appears one Populist.

They were sent out by the Municipal Association.

TWO CHANGES IN PRISON POLICIES ADVOCATED BY WEST.

State Board, Not Governor, Should Control Penitentiary, He Says, as Other Institutions.

SALEM, Or., April 14.—(Special.)—Two new definite prison policies were announced by Governor West today—to present to the Legislature asking that prisons be taken from the hands of the Governor and placed under control of the State Board, and to operate the prison brickyard so as to procure money for improvements he contemplates in the molding room of the prison foundry, which will be vacated by the Lowenberg Gearing Company May 1.

He intends to dominate affairs of the prison until such time as the Legislature may take action, he says, but he hopes it will be an excellent policy to place the prison under control of the Board with the other institutions, and at the same time develop a co-operative policy among them.

He intends to start preparing a bill immediately and to submit it to other members of the State Board for criticism and such amendments as are deemed necessary before the plan is put before the law-making body.

His second scheme is to make a contract with Percy V. Cotter, secretary of A. Denton here, friends of the administration, in which Cotter and Denton will agree to give their services gratuitously to the state and control the brickyard on a contract plan. By doing this the contractors will sell brick and take as much money as will be necessary for conducting the brickyard. The balance will be turned over to the penitentiary to be used for improving the molding room and establishing factories which the Governor will place in operation.

Under this plan he will avoid the law which provides that money earned from the brickyard is to be turned over to the general fund, as the money will come from the contractors in the form of a present and may be used as desired.

RECALL PETITION INDICTS CAMERON

Paper Bearing 9591 Names Is Left With Olcott Pending Crawford's Decision.

MAGUIRE BACK OF MOVE

Attorney-General Asked for Opinion Before Document Is Filed for Final Action—Petitioners Make Serious Charges.

SALEM, Or., April 14.—(Special.)—Recall petitions carrying 9591 signatures and directed against George J. Cameron, District Attorney of Multnomah County, were left today with Secretary of State Olcott by James Maguire, of Portland, pending a decision of the Attorney-General.

When the question was put up to the Attorney-General, several weeks ago, as to whether the recall amendment to the state constitution is self-executing, Mr. Crawford said he would go more fully into the authorities before passing on the question relative to the Cameron petition.

It is the desire of Maguire, according to a statement made to Secretary Olcott, to have the question settled at the primary election, but apparently the Attorney-General will not nominating ballot. The constitutional provision covering the recall provides for special elections to be called within 20 days from the time of filing the petition. These petitions have not been officially filed, but have been left for filing pending an opinion from the Attorney-General.

In the petition against Cameron, the following allegations are made:

"He uses his office not as a public trust, but himself uses it and allows others to use it for personal and political ends.

"Discrimination Charge Made.

"He discriminates between the rich and the poor and the helpless. He allows a private detective to further his power of his office to further his own purposes by making arrests and securing releases and granting immunity. He countenances gambling in favored quarters, and himself resorts to saloons which he protects in their violations of the law.

"He will not enforce the plain provision of the law alike on all offenders and uses his political position of public trust to serve his own selfish interests."

The Attorney-General is asked for an early opinion.
