CAMPANILE BELLS
RING HORRORS AGAIN

Restoration of Famous Structure Commemorated With Solemn Ceremony.

POPE SENDS HIS BLESSING

All Venice Rejoices and Inauguration Takes on International Aspect—Liberation of Pigeons Is Striking Feature.

VENICE, April 25.—The inauguration of the new Campanile of St. Mark's to replace that which fell 19 years ago, took place this morning in brilliant weather, and assumed a character of international importance. Italians and foreigners arrived by thousands on special trains and in boats from both sides of the Adriatic.

The ringing of the bells by the bell of St. Mark's, which for years had been silent, as the clock did not run because of the unsafe condition of the corner, produced great emotion in all Venetians.

The Mayor, the Aldermen and the other members of the municipality formed a great gala procession, with gondolas richly hung, escorted by the historic "Bucintauri" which they went to meet the Duke of Genoa and his suite at the landing place of the royal palace.

Importing Cortege Is Formed. A cortege was formed by the Duke of Genoa, with the Mayor, Count Grimaldi, descendant of the Doge of that name; the public Ministers, Ambassadors, Admirals, the principal authorities of the army and navy and the civil and military households of the sovereignty.

Pigeons Carry Glad News Abroad. Two thousand carrier pigeons fluttered to the four points of the compass, each with a little note attached to its neck to carry the tidings.

Pick Shot From Sea. Seamen Earn Money by Selling Old Projectiles to Admiralty.

Answers, London. Shot picking is the art of retrieving shot and shell from the bottom of the sea. In order to practice this profession nowadays a man must be in possession of a boat, plenty of courage and a license.

SINGERS HAVE THEIR DAY

Long Before the Public.

St. Paul Pioneer Press. One of the most lamentable tokens in the musical world today is the lingering too late of several notable singers who have passed away. It is the love of service to art, or the thirst for plaudits that keeps them before the public? Or is it the desire to be remembered? Whatever the reason, it is plainly evident in several cases, that good taste and self-respect should compel them to desist and rest upon their laurels.

Rarely does one hear of another like Louise Carey, who was one of the most gifted American contraltos. One of the few known. While yet in the full possession of her wonderful powers, with a world of ardent admirers yet paying her homage, she had the rare good sense to say "farewell to the stage, and she has faithfully kept her word. Many opera houses while indulging in memories of her, have had to be content with the memory of her.

But a great artist should realize that his voice at a certain point can no longer respond to the intention of the stage before the public pronounce him "passé," and the younger generation begin to wonder how he ever came to be so. This is a sad fate, and it is doubly imperative when there is no longer the necessity of singing for dollars, a comfortable fortune having been accumulated.

Sadder of all is the photograph record of a great artist's voice, marred by age. When Adeline Patten, in her 70th year, sang in this country on her numerous "farewell tours," she began to make phonograph records. The result is that one of the most glorious voices of the world has been heard, will go down to posterity, and shorn by the inevitable stamp of years. When she was in the flower of her career, the phonograph had not been heard, and yet to its present state of perfection. This fact may be urged perhaps as an apology for yielding to its temptations. He has accomplished more actual work in three years than Roosevelt did in seven.

TEARS OFF GOLD BRAID
A French Army Officer Publicly Degraded for Treason.
(Answers, London.)
For attempting to sell confidential naval documents to Germany, a French naval officer has been publicly degraded, and his name is to be forever associated with the name of traitor.

As the prisoner and his escort marched into the center of the square, the condemned man was seen to be wearing the uniform of a double-breasted, gold-embroidered frock coat, with the two lines of gold braid on the cuff, and the sword which the court martial had declared him forever disqualified from bearing.

Then a naval captain, whose golden aiguillettes dance as he walks, approached the prisoner and, without doubting a moment, he told him that the most heart-breaking part of the explanation is about to commence.
