PORTLAND ASSOCIATION LEADS ACTIVITIES ON COAST.

Magazine Devotes Entire Issue to Organization on Pacific, Praising This City.

Portland is prominently featured in the May issue of Association Men, the official publication of the Young Men's Christian Association, which has just been received in Portland. The entire edition is devoted to the associations of the Pacific Coast, and it is indicated that the Portland Y. M. C. A. is fore-most in its many activities.

The publication calls attention to the fact that the two largest associations in the world are located on the Pacific Coast, at Portland and Los Angeles. The work in different departments of the Portland association is outlined and complimented, and editorially the mag-asine calls attention to the progressive-ness of the Y. M. C. A. on the Coast. "I soon discovered that many of our Na-tion's greatest problems would be solved on the Pacific Coast," writes the editor in describing a visit to Oregon, Washington and California. One of the leading articles in the fact that the two largest associations in

One of the leading articles in the number is written by C. N. Wonacott, assistant general secretary of the Portland association, on the subject, "Scien-tific Association Management." Mr. Wonacott goes in detail into the scheme of association management that is for lowed in Portland, and points out its successful operation. He gives credit for the success of the association dor-
