FIRST MRS. ASTOR EXPECTS TO RULE

Fortune Is Relatively Small, but Social Position Is Believed Secure.

WIFE NO. 2 LESS POPULAR

Vincent to Be Master of $60,000 .-000-Muriel Will Have $15,-000,000, but Must Divide If Posthumous Child Is Born.

NEW YORK, May 5 .- (Special.) -- The real purpose of the return from England of Mrs. Ava Willing Astor-the first Mrs. Astor"-it is now said in New York society, in addition to being New York society, in addition to being near her son, Vincent, in his bereavement, is to take her place in New York as "the" Mrs. Astor, and as such become arbiter of matters fashionable and things exclusive. It is the general belief of those who know conditions, that Mrs. Ava Astor will be able to realize her ambition. The divorce suit which separated her from Colonel Astor brought no discredit upon her, and society always has welcomed her with open arms. On the other hand, with open arms. On the other hand, the Forces have not been popular. Before they captured the Colonel they were snubbed freely, and, though their resistion improved somewhat after the wedding, it is believed their influence will go for little now that Colonel Astor is dead.

Former Wife's Wealth Limited. Former Wife's Wealth Limited.

Mrs. Ava Willing Astor, however, will not be able to depend wholly upon the power of great wealth to maintain her position, for she is relatively poor not as one in the middle walks of life would estimate poverty, but as a male member of the family of Astor would. It is declared by one in a position to know, that when she was married to Astor, the Colonel, in accordance with the custom of the Astor family, made a settlement upon her, in ex-ly, made a settlement upon her, in exchange for which she signed an agreement relinquishing her dower rights. This sottlement was the income on $2,000.000, which she was to have for life, but only after the death of Colenel Asior. During her married life she received nothing as her control or the coleration of the col she received nothing as her own—only what the Colonel chose to give her. It is said, however, that in matters of coney he was generous and that she money he was generous and that she never had any complaint on that score. But when she obtained her divorce she relinquished her rights to this settlement and received in place of it, for life, the income on property known as the Knickerbocker Hotel.

Income Is $60,000 a Year.

The Knickerbocker Hotel is worth about $2,400,000, and her income from it has been on the average of about $80,000 a year. This income she will continue to receive as long as she lives, but on her death it will revert to the Astor estate, which will then be possessed by her son, Vincent. This is all she over has or ever will receive from the Astor estate.

It is said, too, that the second Mrs.

It is said, too, that the second Mrs. Aster received in settlement a sum less than gossips then professed to believe. Instead of two, three or four millions, as was loosely estimated at the time of the wedding, the settlement is declared to have been just $200,000 and no more. This was to seek Colored. more. This was in cash. Colonel Astor gave his bride many valuable jewels—it is said his gifts amounted in all to more than $250,000—but the famous free had been willed previously by fra. nore than half if a boy.

It is said, also on good authority, that Colonel John Jacob Astor had almost nothing to do with the disposition of the vast bulk of his fortune. This was made by William Astor in a will, the ferms of which were such that the only property John Jacob, his son, would bequeath, would be such as he might have acquired by purchase and held separate from the entailed Astor estate, which had come down from father to son in lineal succession from the first John Jacob Astor.

When William Astor died the estate amounted to approximately $39,000,000, At the present time it amounts to not more than $89,000,000, and is probably about $15,000,000.

shout $75,000,000.

Youth's Property Unentailed.

Vincent Astor, who will not be 31 for five months, is the first man in the lineal descent of the family since the fortune was founded who can do as he pleases with the property. There will he no frustees to watch over him, as there were to watch over his father, and if he chooses to make a will or to make any disposition of his property in his own life he will be in a position to do with it as he pleases. It is believed that the important business which induced his father to sail on the Titanic, was to arrange papers which he should sign on the attainment of his majority, which would be should be sh

TRAGEDIES LINKED WITH LOVE OF GIRL

Two Fiances of Miss Baier Are Dead; Repulsed Suitor Destroys Himself.

VOICE AND BEAUTY CHARM

Police Told Young Woman Had Persistently Refused Attentions of Man Who Died With Eyes on Her Photograph.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 5 .-(Special.)—That three men who loved Miss Edna Baier, daughter of a wealthy nerchant here, have died, and a sis-er's death was hastened by worry over he first two deaths, is a coincidence of fatalities that has caused much interested comment here.

The third victim was Howard Fisher, of Perrysville, Md. whose death resulted from inhaling illuminating gas. Fisher, who was 42 years old, came to Atlantic City on a visit a year ago and while attending services in the First Presbyterian Church first saw Miss Baler. She was leading the choir. He became infatuated with her beauty and voice. Her friends say she never encouraged his attentions. In a few months he returned to his Maryland nonths be returned to his Maryland home but remained there only a short time. When he came back here some months ago he took an apartment at the Hotel Netherland.

Eyes Last See Photograph.

He and Miss Baler had been seen together only once or twice lately. He went out on the Boardwalk gallery today and had some pictures taken, then returned to his hotel. In his room he tore up all the photographs except one, across the back of which he wrote. This is all I could do." Then he sealed all the cravices in the room. Turning on both the gas jets, he flung himself on his bed. Placing a picture of the girl he loved on a pillow near his head, he waited for death. When he was found at noon his eyes were still fixed on Miss Baler's photograph. Eyes Last See Photograph.
