Suddenly and without previous warn-ing, Councilman Daly yesterday after-noon created a sensation at the Council noon created a sensation at the council session by declaring that he would henceforth oppose every ordinance carrying an emergency clause unless a real emergency exists.
Following out the aunouncement, Mr.
Daly fought every such clause as they came up numerous times during the meeting and in two instances, when the Council falled to sustain him, objected to passage of the measures on first reading and thereby forced a two weeks' postponement. Both were comparatively trivial.

Mr. Daly contended that the Council should use the emergency clause with great care, as he said it vitally affects the public, in that its application to an ordinance passed by the Counsil and signed by the Mayor shuts off the "Time to Call Halt," He Says. "I shall oppose all emergency clauses en ordinances except where there exists a real and not an imaginary emergency," said Mr. Daly, "All of our business has come to be of an emergency nature. An emergency, socalled, exists in everything, and it is time to call a halt."

As the business progressed and various ordinances carrying emergency clauses came up, Mr. Daly would arise and object. Many times the Council voted to eliminate the emergency clause and the ordinances would go through.

Among the exceptions made by Mr. Duly were ordinances authorizing at appropriation for electrifying the streets by the city electrician for the Rose Festival: creating sewer districts in sections urgently needing relief and paying off old warrants on which the city had been and still is paying in-

CONDUCTOR'S LIFE A TRIAL

This One Slapped by Woman Who Knew Husband's Money O. K.

Entering a Mt. Tabor car at Fifth and Morrison streets Monday evening, an elderly man with his wife and two other women, gave the conductor a silver dollar and received the proper change. A few minutes later the conductor came to the man and said:

"This was a bad dollar you gave me."

The passenger said nothing, but his wife took up the subject and said:

"Pa you did not give him a bad dollar. I know exactly what you had in your pocket. The dollar was a good one."

She told the conductor he should not insult people this way.

Toke can be loaded on cars or wagons without delay or waste.

Mr. White is considered an expert quarryman, having followed that line of work practically all his life. For more than a year he has had charge of the Taylor's Ferry quarry near Riverview Cemetery, and has changed its working to such an extent that the cost of rock production is about one-half now what it was a year ago.

"We have been looking over our quarry and gravel pit system for a long time and have found it in need of changes," said County Judge Cleeton yesterday. "After careful investigation

She told the conductor he should not insult people this way.

The conductor returned to the end of the car as gracefully as he could. At 15th street, the party left the car, the wife being the last to get off. As she passed she gave the conductor a slap in the face saying, "Take that, you wretch."

The car was crowded and the incident was witnessed by so many that the conductor, who wore two stripes on his coat sleeve, felt it his duty to say something. He said:

"A conductor's life is not always a happy one."

In each city where "The Pink Lady" shows, there are five women, known as dresners, hired for each performance. The wardrobe mistress keeps track of every gown, headdress, slipper or ornament worn by every chorus girl or principal. She catalogues them, and as each costume is replaced by a change. she puts it away in its place. The say ing, "everything in its place," was written about wardrobe mistresses. Sewing, mending torn finery, cleaning spots or making alterations keep the wardrobe mistress always busy. In Portland, besides the regular stage crew brought by "The Pink Lady," the Hellig management has for this show a crew of 50 men in its working staff.
Of these twenty-nine are stage carpenters known as "flymen" and "grips"; fourteen are in the property department and are known as "clear ers" and seventeen are in the electri cal crew and are known as "clearers' "operators."

Show's Baggage Heavy.

Statistics are not always interesting reading but just a few concerning the baggage of "The Pink Lady" are unusual. Twelve truck loads of flat scenery is carried from the station to theatre and back again when the show is over. Six of these truck loads are of properties—the furniture used in the production. There are 166 pieces of luggage—clothes, etc., packed in trunks. This does not include the individual luggage of the travelers, who look after their own suit cases and traveling bags. Their personal baggage is delivered to their hotels. Eighty-one crates are used to box the properties. Each packing box is numbered and the transportation man has that end of the work to bother about. Two assistants help at the scenery car and two at the property car and each is locked and scaled—the cars, not the assistants—by deputies of the railroad, according to a contract.

according to a contract.

Before the show reached Portland the advance man made arrangements for the transportation of the property and scenery. Arrived at the theatre, everything is unpacked at the stage entrance on the street, and the empty crates are put down in the basement. crates are put down in the basement, each one pigeonholed as neatly as if by card index—though the casual observer would see only a heterogeneous pile of all sorts and sizes of boxes. The scenery for each act is set or "struck" as it is needed. By a requirement of the law no scenery is allowed to occupy the floor space of the stage when not in use. All of the scenery is hoisted first, by pulleys and ropes, into the files.
