STRANGER REPAYS KELLER

Man Helped by Police Captain Does Not Forget Kindness.
"This is for Captain Keller," he loaned it to me several months ago," said a man who walked into the Police Station yesterday and handed a 50-cent piece to the desk sergeant. From the description of the man Captain Keller recognized him as a man who was picked up destitute one night. The incident is of interest only because it is so seldom that the police are reimbursed for money they give out during the month to destitute persons. The last incident of having money returned that Captain Keller remembers happened about four years ago, when a sailor returned 10 cents from Liverpool, England. The dime was inserted in a large, square piece of pasteboard. It had been given him one night as the price of a bed.

WIFE FEARS FOR HUSBAND

Police Asked to Watch Spouse After Woman Leaves Him.
"I am going to leave my husband, and I am afraid he will commit suicide when I do," said Mrs. Lydia Bashaw, at the police station yesterday. She requested that the police keep watch over the abandoned husband and see that no harm came to him.
The Bashaws live at 371 1/2 East Eleventh street. They have not been harmonious, says the wife, and she has been at last constrained to take the children and go elsewhere to live. She said her husband was of morose temperament and several times had threatened to take his life.
"I don't want to see him do that," she said, "even if we can't get along together."
