

WATER PLEASANT YET FAMINE'S ON

Mt. Scott District Affected and Citizens File Their Protest.

STORAGE TANKS ARE FULL

With Millions of Gallons in Reserve and $2,000,000 Available Water Board Unable to Meet and Give Needed Relief.

With Millions of gallons of water in the storage reservoirs, and after expending $2,000,000 for the public funds to alleviate conditions throughout the city, another water famine is on in the Mount Scott district, including Woodmont, Woodstock, Kern Park and neighboring sections.

Aggravated residents, who traveled miles to clamor for a supply that would at least be sufficient to drink, were told that the members of the Water Board were unable to present in sufficient numbers to constitute a quorum at a week yesterday afternoon, and they were therefore forced to leave without gaining any relief.

A crowd that filled the Mayor's committee room had gathered and they waited a long time, expecting to lay their complaints before the members of the board in order to get relief. Finally, Superintendent Dodge arose and announced that Mayor Rosahl was not in the city hall, that Theodore R. Wilson is in the city and that J. C. Almsworth has sickness in his family. Therefore, no meeting would be held. W. R. Mackay and F. W. Wins were again in the city signing a multitude of bills, left without transacting any further business.

Hundreds Ask Relief. Numerous men and women visited Mayor Rosahl yesterday to see if they could get relief. They were all referred to the Water Board, which was scheduled to meet in the afternoon. It is not known when there will be a meeting, but the residents of the Mount Scott district are impatient, as they feel that they have waited long enough, having been put off from year to year.

In the first place, the various administrations which have been in power, pleaded lack of funds and asked the people of the districts where there were famines to wait until the new pipe line was completed. At a cost of about $1,500,000 this conduit was laid and finished last fall. In addition, two huge storage reservoirs were built at Mount Tabor. But notwithstanding this great outlay of funds and the promises that have been made there would be no water shortage this season, the first days of heat have brought out vigorous protests from the South East Side districts against what they declare unnecessary suffering, brought about by lack of adequate facilities for getting the water to their homes.

Water Yet to Be Unwound. A certain amount of red tape must be unwound. It is pointed out, before connections can be made that will give the relief sought, and the red tape cannot be unwound until the members of the Water Board can find time to meet. There is one place where 11 families are drawing water from a one-inch pipe. There is no pressure to speak of, it being impossible to flush toilets, to get bathing water or to irrigate lawns during the sprinkling hours, and the lawns in this section of the city have been damaged already. The people are anxious to get a supply of water that will at least accommodate their domestic needs, especially for house-keeping, but they also feel that they are entitled to enough water to irrigate, as other districts do, after waiting for years.

JUDGE SCORES ATTORNEYS

Tactics of Certain Class in Getting Fees Not Credit, He Says.

Methods of a class of attorneys were bitterly scored by Justice Gannon yesterday, in passing judgment in a suit in which it appeared that N. M. Born, a member of the bar, had charged John Byrns, his client, $125 for legal services worth much less, and then had borrowed $100 from Byrns, in order to be sure of getting his fee, as shown by his own testimony.

The Muttin may bar, as at present constituted, is surely not a credit to the city, said the court. "It is not one, but dozens of attorneys that are doing such things as this. A lawyer should earn his money like anyone else."

BAN OFF ON DECORATIONS

Festival Regalia Need Not Conform to Regular Building Code.

Mayor Rosahl has issued orders to the Chief of Police, Building Inspector and Chief Electrician not to interfere with merchants who are making decorations for the Rose Festival and Elks' reunion this summer, although they do not at present conform to the building code.

Taxpayers' League Gives Views on Steel Bridge Contract.

"We believe that the interests of the public require the employment of a thoroughly qualified bridge engineer who can determine the fair cost of that portion of the bridge the use of which is proposed to lease to the county," says F. W. Mulkey, president, and L. J. Goldsmith, secretary, of the Taxpayers' League, in a letter to the County Court yesterday. It is in answer to one sent out by the court seeking advice relative to what kind of a contract, if any, should be entered into with the O. W. R. & N. Company for the use for pedestrian and vehicular traffic of the upper deck of the new Steel bridge.

"When this is done and the Taxpayers' League notified," continues the communication, "it will then take up the question of a fair return on the cost and the proper adjustment of the expense and the division of the same between the county and the street railway company. The division between the county and street railway company is subordinate to the main question and should not be discussed until the basic question is settled."

OREGON DOWNS AGGIES

CORVALLIS NINE BEATEN AT EUGENE, 5 TO 4.

Exciting Game Goes Ten Innings, Making Straight Record of Three Straight Victories.

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, May 14.—(Special.)—The University of Oregon baseball team today won their third consecutive victory over the team from the Oregon Agricultural College in a 4-to-1 struggle that went ten innings. The game was one of the situations that the renewed athletic relationship between the two institutions was thoroughly tested.

The university team threw three runs in the second inning on four hits, two errors and a pass. Darnell scored for the college in the seventh and Hilsen slipped across with the second run in the eighth. Then with two out, Hitt, the college shortstop, stole home for the tying run, while pitcher Peet, of Oregon, held the ball. As in the case of Darnell's tally, this play involved a lively scramble between third base and the plate and a dramatic somersault collision, which each time resulted with a dropped ball and a safe decision.

In the 10th the Aggies took the lead after a wild pitch, an overthrow and a deep left-field hit. In Oregon's half an error by Hitt, Cobb's second three-base hit and a high infield fly from Fenton's bat, which fell safe after two were out, gave two runs and the game.

Batteries—Oregon Agricultural College: Hilsen and Phillips; Oregon, Peet and Cobb.

Hits—College, 6; University, 5. Umpire—Galbraith, of Albany.

The crowd from Corvallis contributed to the display of enthusiasm.

Strawberry Carnival Will Show Luscious Product of Umpqua Valley—Fruit Ripens Sooner Than at Kennebec.

Berries Are Sent to Club.

Members and guests taking luncheon at the Portland Commercial Club yesterday were served strawberries from the Umpqua Valley, presented to the club with the compliments of the management of the Roseburg Strawberry Carnival.

"Our strawberries ripen earlier than in any other section of the Pacific Northwest, not excepting the famous Kennebec district in the State of Washington," said C. H. Leadbetter, who related yesterday that he picked thoroughly ripened strawberries on land he owns within the corporate limits of Roseburg April 22, this year.

"One week later, the business men of Roseburg were treated to a strawberry supper, two crates of the fruit for the occasion having been gathered from a small tract near that city. This was two weeks to a day before the first shipment of this year's berries was made from Kennebec."

"The soil and climate of the Umpqua Valley particularly are adapted to the strawberry which is extensively grown, not as a separate crop, but between trees in a rapidly developing horticultural section until the fruit trees come into full bearing. We maintain that the Umpqua Valley produces strawberries earlier than any other section of the Pacific Northwest and we will not concede that their quality is excelled."

Sporting Sparks

MEIKLE, the San Francisco pitcher, has been sold to Tacoma of the Northwestern League, which club also has Ben Hunt, late of the Sacramento club. Meikle couldn't get started with the Seals this spring.

Dr. H. L. Williams, coach of football at the University of Minnesota, narrowly escaped death in an automobile accident a few days ago. He was taken to a hospital and is now on the road to recovery. Coach Richards, of Wisconsin, resigned his job the same day.

Sam Mertes, deposed Coast League umpire, has not given up the idea that he is destined to be an arbiter, for he is seeking in other fields for a new job. Mertes' chief fault is not so much the lack of judgment as lack of snap and determination. Criticism from the fans also seemed to unnerve him.

"There will always be room for two minor leagues on the Pacific Coast," says D. E. Dugdale, of Seattle, agent for the proposed all-Coast league. "The Coast League is not big enough for a circuit extending from the extreme south to the extreme north of the Coast. At this talk about a Coaster team in Seattle is all both."

Barry left Crukshank, Melver and Ingraham at home when he brought his Bugs to Portland.

Y. M. C. A. TO AID BOYS

BUREAU WILL HELP THEM SELECT LIFE WORK.

Dr. Meyer Bloomfield Who Has Introduced Movement in Boston Will Visit Portland Soon.

One of the most important innovations in the work of the Portland Young Men's Christian Association will be introduced next fall, when a vocational bureau will be established to help boys in selecting their life work. Plans for the bureau are being mapped out with great care by R. E. Perkins, head of the religious work department.

"The first activity will follow closely the work of the Vocational Bureau of Boston, which is in charge of Dr. Meyer Bloomfield. Incidentally, the Vocational Bureau in Portland will be given considerable impetus by a visit here in September of Dr. Bloomfield, who will deliver several addresses at the Y. M. C. A. and will probably speak to the students of Reed College. Dr. Bloomfield was a classmate of President Foster, of Reed, who is famous in the work of Dr. Bloomfield is doing in Boston.

"Such a bureau as we shall establish has two objects," said Mr. Perkins. "The first is to make an analysis of the vocations, in clear, simple form, so that boys may study it and gain a clear conception of the qualities that are successful in any calling. The second object is to make an analysis of the individual boy, so that it may be ascertained for what vocation he is best fitted."

"The Y. M. C. A. has come in touch with men in a large number of callings who are interested in this work and are willing to devote time to it. Early next fall the work will be taken up regularly, and one of these men will devote time each night to explaining the profession or business in which he is engaged. These men will also question boys who are interested and help them to select a calling for which they are qualified."

"It is undoubtedly true that many men make failures in their vocations in life who would do much better if they should select some other vocation than the one on which they enter. The Vocational Bureau in Boston has proved its worth in helping to eliminate such mistakes, as it takes the hold of the boy at an age when it works in most useful. We hope that the Y. M. C. A. here may build up an equally valuable department, and our plans for it are rapidly being developed."
